TURKEY

The Sick Man Appears to Be Dallying With the Powers.

Belief That a Military and Naval Display Will Be Made.

Armenians Capture and Disarm a Battalion of Turkish Troops.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)—Each day shows the situation of affairs here to be growing more threatening. The reply of the porte to the communications sent to it, after the meeting of the ambassadors yesterday, has been watched with interest, as in the note the representatives used much stronger language than heretofore, and positively insisted upon being immediately informed as to what steps the Turkish government intended to take for the restoration of order in the disturbed provinces of Asia Minor. The porte today replying to the identical notes of the ambassadors of Germany, Austria and Italy, simply said that information regarding the scheme for reforms in Armenia would be forwarded to the representatives of the powers "without delay."

In other words these three ambassadors, at least, have obtained no satisfaction at all. It is not known if the notes of the ambassador of Great Britain, Russia and France have been replied to; but it is presumed that they were also assured that their requests for information regarding the proposed reforms would be complied with "without delay." Surprise is expressed even by the diplomats of this city, who expect almost anything from the porte, at the action of the sultan in sanctioning the official note issued yesterday, expressing Abdul Hamid's thanks for the energetic measures taken by the imperial authorities, "in suppressing" the disturbances in Asia Minor, asserting that "order has now been restored in all the districts recently the scene of riots and conflicts," and adding that "precautions have been taken to insure the maintenance of order."

This really looks like mocking the ambassadors, and as second in importance only to the snub administered by the sultan to Great Britain, in decorating Bahri Pasha, and giving him the command of the troops going to Sertoun after he had been removed from a governorship, at the instance of the British ambassador, Sir Phillip Currie, for his ill treatment of Armenians. As to order being restored in the disturbed districts, it need only be said that the mobolization of about 150,000 troops to be sent to these districts is progressing as actively as the Turkish govenrnment can push such an undertaking, hampered as is is by lack of funds and the incompetency of its officials. Then, again, advices received here today announce fresh disturbances at Marash, Bitlis and Sivias with their attendant massacres.

It is also announced that a battalion of Turkish troops which was in the garrison at Sertoun, and which recently distinguished itself by surrounding and shooting down a number of Armenian insurgents, was later besieged in its barracks by the Armenians, to whom the soldiers eventually capitulated with arms and ammunition, bag and baggage. It is added that the Armenians now occupy the quarters at Sertoun previously occupied by the Turkish soldiers. The Armenians, it is further stated, have also garrisoned all the important positions in and about Sertoun, and are gathering ammunition and provisions, throwing up other fortifications, and in every way preparing to hold the place. Sertoun is on the route from Arabgher to Aleppo and is an important iron mining center.

Considerable anxiety is felt in American circles here on account of the absence of news from the districts where the American missionaries are stationed and United States Ambassador Terrell has telegraphed to Commissioner Darnham at Harput, asking him if the American mission is safe. According to advices today from Hadjin several villages, in that vicinity, have been attacked by rioters who massacred the inhabitants and plundered their property. It is feared that the disturbances will spread to Hadjin.

It is stated this afternoon in European official circles here that, as a result of an additional exchange of views between the powers through their representatives here and at the different capitals, it is believed that a joint course of action, involving a display of naval and possibly military force, has already been decided upon with a view to restoring order in Armenia, recent events having clearly demonstrated that the sultan has no intention of really carrying out the scheme for reform agreed upon some time ago, after so much delay and annoyance. Nothing definite, however, appears to be known regarding the course of action decided upon, but it is now believed that the sultan will not be allowed to trifle with the ambassadors for many days longer, and news of an important nature is expected at any moment.

The financial situation here continues to be unsatisfactory in spite of the efforts of the Imperial bank to bolster up the finances of the Turkish empire. In fact, bourse business here is almost entirely suspended, and it is believed that this condition will continue until the European powers demonstrate to the sultan in the only manner that he is capable of understanding that the cruelty and incompetency of the Turkish officials can be no longer permitted to endanger the peace of Europe. A prominent member of the diplomatic corps was quoted today as saying that "the end of all this business is fast approaching." And this is the view taken of the situation by Europeans generally. It is understood that the powers have at last decided that the further "identical notes" or other such communications are useless in the case of Abdul Hamid, and that only prompt and efficient military action is likely to have any influence upon him.

The rumors so persistently circulated for many weeks past as to the probability that the sultan would be deposed were renewed on all sides today. No further details have been received here of the recent massacre at Debikir, but from all accounts the bloodshed must have been terrible in the extreme. A large part of the town was burned.

The government, it is now announced, decided yesterday to mobilize another twenty battalions of reliefs, which will make sixty battalions mobilized. And yet it was only yesterday that the porte issued an official note saying that "order has now been restored in all the districts recently the scene of riots and conflicts," etc. It is understood that these mobilized troops are intended to occupy certain strategic points in Asiatic Turkey, from each of which points flying columns will be sent out into the surrounding country in order to attempt the suppression of the constantly-occurring riots and massacres.

There is no doubt that the Turkish government is greatly alarmed at the regularity and persistence of the outbreaks in Asia Minor, and the ministers claim to believe that they are due to the influence of the foreigners. Naturally this does not tend to make the position of foreigners in Armenia or elsewhere secure. Another conference of the ambassadors was held yesterday at the official residence of the French ambassador, M. Cambon.

SOUTHERN SURGEONS.

Number of Them Meet in Washington Today.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The Southern Surgical Collegiate association opened its annual meeting here today with a large attendance of surgeons, mainly from the South, but with representatives from all parts of the country. Dr. H. E. Bussey, of Washington, delivered an address of welcome, which was responded to by the president of the association, Dr. Louis M. Tiffany, of Baltimore.

The papers read today were by Drs. Brown, of Alexandria, Va.; Vandervere, of Albany; Grant and Roberts, of Louisville; Robinson, of Danville, Va.; Gaston and Noble, of Atlanta; Lewis, of New Orleans; Price, of Philadelphia; Kelly, of Baltimore; Taber Johnson, of Washington; Rohe, of Catonsville, Md.; and Carliege, of Louisville. At noon the association attended Columbian university. They will be entertained tonight by the local medical fraternity with a banquet.

ON TO ATLANTA.

Cleveland Party Going There in Quick Time.

Cleveland, Nov. 12.—One of the most magnificently equipped railway trains ever seen in the Union station left this city today over the Big Four road, having on board about 300 members of the Cleveland chamber of commerce bound for the Atlanta exposition. The train consisted of two dining cars, a combination buffet and employes car and five sleepers.

Although the train is a very heavy one, the Big Four officials confidently expect to lower the best time on record between this city and Cincinnati by at least one hour. It is expected that the flyer will reach Atlanta by 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, over the Southern railroad. The party will celebrate Cleveland day at the exposition on Thursday. The excursion is made in the interests of trade extension as well as for pleasure.

SEIZED BY CANADIANS.

American Vessels Fishing in Prohibited Waters.

Sandusky, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Word has reached here to the effect that while a fleet of American fishing boats were engaged in lifting their nets near North Bass island yesterday the Canadian cruiser Petrel suddenly appeared. The boats scattered and all but two succeeded in cluding the Canadian boat.

These two boats with their crews of two men each were taken aboard the Petrel. Over two miles of seine nets were confiscated. Among the men seized were employes of Capt. Rosford, Sefert and Brown by name. The crews of the boats that escaped will stop their fishing in Canadian waters.

FIRE AT ASHLAND.

A Loss of $90,000 Occurs There This Morning.

Milwaukee, Nov 12.—A special to the Wisconsin from Ashland, Wis., says: The Ashland Sulphate Fibre company's immense plant was reduced to ashes this morning. The fire started in the acid room, loss $90,000; insurance, $42,000. Kennedy's mill and docks caught fire several times, but were saved.

PORTUGUESE DEFEAT AFRICANS.

Lisbon, Nov. 12.—A dispatch received here today from Lorenzo Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, says Portuguese troops have attacked the army under the command of Chief Gungunhana, near Lake Coolera. After an engagement lasting forty minutes the natives were repulsed with great loss of life. Of the Portuguese four were killed and thirty-five wounded.

WILL MAKE IT INTERESTING.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Ex-Receiver Maginnis, of the Duluth land office, against whom charges were filed and who was directed to show cause why he should not be disbarred from practicing before the interior department, is coming back at his opponents, and it is expected something interesting will follow.

HEAVY DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

New York, Nov. 12.—Judgment by default for $25,224 was entered today against Henry M. Anthony, manufacturer's agent, at 100 Read street, in favor of Rumford Chemical works, of Rhode Island, balance due on five notes made in June and July last.

SUMMER HOTEL DESTROYED.

New York, Nov. 12.—The Lawrence Beach hotel, at Lawrence, one of the largest summer hotels on Long Island, was destroyed by fire today. The total loss, it is thought, will not fall short of $200,000. It is said the property was insured for less than half that amount. The hotel was owned by the Lawrence Beach Improvement company, and was leased by John Duryea, of New York.

A RAISE IN OIL.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The Standard Oil company this morning raised the price of crude oil, north of Lima, 80 cents; south of Lima, 75 cents; Indiana, 71 cents. This is a raise of 5 cents per barrel. There is great excitement among oil men and intense activity in drilling.

THURMAN IS BETTER.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Ex-Senator Thurman slept well last night. His injured hip is better. The doctors say the patient will get up.

CHICAGO

Great Attendance at "Chicago" Day at the Atlanta Exposition.

Mayor King of Atlanta Welcomed Mayor Swift Who Responded.

All the World's Fair Officials Participated in the Affair.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 12.—The Queen City of the Lakes proved a mascot and the weather, which has been wretched throughout Illinois day at the exposition, dawned on Chicago day this morning, bright and beautiful, though still too cold to meet the Northern idea of fine weather. The badges of the Chicago visitors were conspicuous in the throngs on the streets throughout the morning, and Chicago was the toast on every hand. The attendance at the grounds in honor of the event began to pile in early and to give promise of breaking the record.

At 11 o'clock the parade, headed by President Higginbotham and the other members of the World's fair directory, in carriages, and including Governor Altgeld and staff, mounted and escorted by the Fifth Georgia and the First Illinois regiments, moved to the exposition grounds. Inside the grounds the parade made a circuit of the grand plaza and disbanded at the auditorium where the speech making took place. Hon. William H. Harper, introduced the president of the Chicago Southern States association, who presided over the exercises of the day. Mayor King welcomed the guests of the exposition and his remarks were responded to by Mayor Swift, of Chicago. Attorney General Terrell bade the visitors welcome in behalf of the state and Governor Altgeld responded for Illinois.

President Collier, of the exposition, tendered the thanks of the management to Chicago, her press and people, and President Higginbotham spoke of the World's Columbian exposition. Other addresses were delivered by Thomas E. Bryan, of the fair directory; George E. Adams, of Chicago; William T. Baker, president of the Chicago board of trade; A. P. Rouell, chairman of the Chicago Southern States association executive committee, and Col. Henry L. Lusner, of Chicago.

MASSACHUSETTS DAY.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 12.—Governor Greenhalge and party left today for the Atlanta exposition on the Shore line. They are expected to arrive there Thursday. Friday will be Massachusetts day. A reception will be tendered the visitors and it is expected that Governor Greenhalge will make an address. Adjt. Gen. Dalton is in charge of the party.

YELLOW FEVER.

A Norwegian Craft's Unpleasant Sick List.

New Castle on Tyne, Nov. 12.—The Norwegian ship Mindel, Capt. Christiansen, from Mobile, Sept. 12, for West Hartle, has been towed in here with eleven of her crew prostrated with yellow fever. Two other members of the crew died of the fever on the voyage. Owing to the spread of sickness among the crew, her commander was unable to handle her, and she drifted for several days and was finally picked up off this coast by a tug, which brought her safe into port.

Everything possible is being done for the sick men. The ship will be thoroughly disinfected before anything or anybody is allowed to land from her.

SENATOR PALMER BURNED OUT.

Detroit, Nov. 12.—Ex-Senator Palmer's residence on Woodward avenue was completely gutted by fire this morning. A large quantity of valuable bric-a-brac, paintings and furniture, valuable as mementoes were destroyed. They include a complete World's fair record, the only one in existence, and scores of tokens collected during the senator's residence in Washington and in Spain. The insurance aggregates about $35,000.

SHOEMAKERS' STRIKE.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Two hundred and fifty employes of Hardin & Todd, shoe manufacturers of this city, struck today. They claim that they were forced to work by the week instead of by the piece, as has been the custom, and that seventy-nine men were laid off and refused work unless they would leave the union. Two men were unjustly discharged, it is claimed, last Saturday for damaged work, which did not belong to them. The employers refuse to treat with the men.

TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $178,413,648; gold reserve, $92,918,479.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED.

Buffalo, Nov. 12.—Shortly before noon a frame cottage on Geneva street was burned and it is feared that the two small children of the tenant of the house, Mrs. Kurtzman, whom she left alone in the house, were consumed.

WAGES INCREASED.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—Based on the sales for the past month the wages of the 200 sheet mill workers of the United States have been advanced 2 per cent for November and December.

FILED ITS CONSTITUTION.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—The Societe Lafayette De Ouest, of Duluth, filed a copy of its constitution with the secretary of state today.

CONFESSED A MURDER.

Cleveland, Nov. 12.—Edward Campbell alias Charles Rice alias George Smith in jail here, has made a confession to the murder of Maggie McGraw, of Newark, N. J. The Newark authorities have been notified.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Annual Fall Meeting of Baseball Managers.

New York, Nov. 12.—The annual fall meeting of the National Baseball league will take place at the Fifth Avenue hotel tomorrow. Among the advance guard who have arrived in this city are F. D. Robinson, of Cleveland; Dr. Stuckey, of Louisville, and John T. Brush, of Cincinnati. Chris Von Der Abe, of St. Louis, reached Philadelphia last night on his way here. He is said to be in favor of the double umpire project, but decidedly opposed to the proposed abolition of the coaching rules.

The local cranks of the diamond are all agog today for the meeting of the New York Baseball club stockholders which is to be held in New Jersey this afternoon. It is understood that the minor stockholders will make things lively when they have their say in regard to the manner in which the club has been managed during the past season.

Presidents Brush and Freeman had a long conference last evening, but the tenor of it could not be ascertained by outsiders. Since the amalgamation of the National league and American association in 1891, the league has been in debt, but this year a lean balance sheet will be presented, and with the exception of personal bickerings, the magnates will have good reason to feel very well satisfied.

HIS OTHER WIFE.

Millionaire Robinson Had a Family Skeleton.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The friends of the late Curtis E. Robinson, formerly a prominent real estate dealer of this city, who died in 1892, were amazed to learn today that he is charged with deserting a wife in Massachusetts in the early sixties, when he came to Chicago, and his three children are probably surprised to find their rights to inheritance challenged by their Massachusetts relatives. After his death his daughter, Mrs. Ruprecht, was made the administratrix of the estate, which is represented to be worth about $1,000,000.

Today a bill was filed in the United States court by Robinson's brother, and his sister, Betsy Eames, children of his dead sister, all residing in Massachusetts, and who set up the claim that C. E. Robinson left a wife behind him in Massachusetts, and he was never married to his Chicago wife, and the three children having been born out of wedlock, are not heirs to the estate of Robinson, but that the same belongs to his Massachusetts relatives.

KITTSON'S WIFE.

Airing the Claim of the Indian Doctress.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—Before Judge Egan this morning arguments were had in the appeal case of Margaret Kittson, the Indian doctress of the Menominee tribe, who claims to have been legally married to the late Commodore Kittson. Mr. Goodrich, of Oshkosh, and Moses Clapp, of this city, appeared for the appellant, and Daniel Murphy for the estate.

There is a great mass of written testimony in the case, including affidavits and testimony taken at the time of the hearing in the probate court. Mr. Goodrich addressed the court on its value, making references to the testimony with comments on its value.

A ROUGH ROAD.

Uruan Country a Difficult Place to Reach.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The cable report that an expedition has started for Venezuela is doubted here, or that if started, it will not reach Uruan. It is pointed out that it is impossible to haul Maxim guns to Uruan, as it is a difficult and dangerous journey of six weeks for horsemen or foot passengers through dense tropical forests, without roads or habitations.

Even the mail from the Uruan district has to be carried into Venezuela and is thereafter delivered to British Guinana. The canoes might be utilized along the Cuyuni river, leading to Uruan, but this has many high waterfalls and could not be used by craft carrying heavy guns.

BELONG TO THE COUNTY.

Patton Must Turn All His Notes Over to Davis.

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—Following is the syllabus in the case of state ex rel. Fred Davis, relator, appellant, vs. William B. Patton, respondent, as delivered by Judge Mitchell yesterday:

Where one contemplating the platting of his land as a town site employes the county surveyor to make a survey of it, and a plat is made in accordance with the survey, and the county surveyor attaches to the plat his official certificate, in the form prescribed by statute, the survey is an official one and the record of it, including the field notes and calculations, are official, and should be transmitted by the county surveyor to his successor in office. Order in part reversed. Mitchell, Judge.

BRICE'S RAILWAY PLANS.

Indianapolis, Nov. 12.—Such progress has been made in the proposed consolidation of the Brice lines of railway, that it is understood here that the consolidated company will be organized Jan. 1. The Lake Erie & Western, as a separate system and name, will be wiped out and its lines merged in an aggregate of 1685 miles of road, as follows: Lake Erie & Western, 725; Cincinnati, Jackson & Michigan, 346; Cleveland, Akron & Columbus, 206; Ohio Southern, 243; Northern Ohio, 165. The headquarters will be at Indianapolis and the general officers of the Lake Erie are to retain charge.

THE PROBABLE ROBBERS.

Colorado Springs, Col., Nov. 12.—The express company officials believe that the robbery was committed by A. J. Gray, alias Sam Wells, and J. G. Stuart, alias C. J. Starr, who were arrested for the theft of $16,000 from the express wagon at Cripple Creek April 11, and who recently, in company with Tom McCarty, escaped from the jail in this city. R. T. Montgomery, who was a prisoner at the time of the escape, notified the police at Denver several days ago that Gray and Stuart plotted, when in jail, to rob the express company again. The officials of the company believe that the robbers had an accomplice in the bank.

AN INCENDIARY BLAZE.

York, Pa., Nov. 12.—The plant of the York Water Power company was destroyed by fire today of supposed incendiary origin. Loss, $150,000.

ROBBED

Masked Men at Colorado Springs Hold Up the Express Agent.

Wells-Fargo Express Co. Is Relieved of $20,000 in Currency.

Agent's Prompt Action Saved the Company $35,000 ---No Clue.

Colorado, Springs, Col., Nov. 12.—The Wells Fargo Express company has given the following official statement regarding the robbery at the Santa Fe depot last night. Twenty thousand dollars was sent from Denver to the First National bank, of Colorado Springs, early in the afternoon. This money was in currency of small denominations and was too late to be delivered to the bank. The package containing the money was placed in the depot safe and both doors locked. There was nothing to indicate its value. Evidently the thieves knew of its existence. When train No. 6 came in about 9:43 there were other packages aboard with currency to the amount of $35,000 consigned to the same bank.

These packages were delivered to the agent and placed in the safe with the other. After the train had departed, the agent, George Krout, went to the platform to straighten the cracks which were standing there and when he returned to the office he was met at the door by two masked men with drawn revolvers. The package containing the $20,000 was demanded, and the agent was compelled to open the safe and give it up. The agent said nothing about the remaining packages and the robbers left at once. The standing rewards of $300 each for information or arrest of the robbers of course, holds good, and the amount will undoubtedly be increased.

When Krout entered his office after performing his duties outside, two men, one tall, the other short, confronted him with revolvers pointed at his head and commanded him to throw up his hands. Krout, badly frightened obeyed. Then one of the robbers stepping close to the agent said: "Not a word from you. We want you to open that safe and be quick about it?" Krout denied that there was money in the safe. The revolver was pressed close to him and he was told to open the safe or suffer the consequences. He turned the combination and when the doors swung open, Krout explained that there was only one package there, and reaching in he picked up the envelope containing $20,000 which he handed to the short man.

The robbers then stepped away from the safe. Krout's action in handing out the $20,000 package and closing the doors of the safe saved the company $35,000. During all this time, the robbers did not appear in the least excited. The robbers ordered Krout to undress himself and get into bed. After he had done so, one of the robbers took pains to see that the quilts and comforters were drawn together around Krout's head. Then one of them said: "Now, go and see if there is any one about." Krout heard the door slide back and then one of the robbers said: "Wait, we have missed something. Let's take a good look over the place."

When Krout plucked up courage to jump out of bed and go outside there was no one in sight. An alarm was given and by 11 o'clock posses were scouring the vicinity of the depot and the outskirts of the town, but no trace of the robbers was found. Finally two bloodhounds were put on the trail and it was found the men had gone along Pikes Peak avenue, through the heart of the city. On the theory that they would go to Cripple Creek over the Cheyenne Mountain road, a posse started from that city to head them off. The depot agent was not 100 yards away from Krout's office while the robbery was going on, but he did not see the robbers and knew nothing about the matter until informed by Krout.

A DEAD PIONEER.

CHURCH SENSATION.

Congregational Minister Acts in a Strange Manner.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 11.—Something of a sensation is reported at the Gardner (N. D.) Congregational church, of which Rev. M. Edwards is pastor. During his absence last week, Rev. Stickney, assistant superintendent of the Congregational home missions of this state announced he would fill the pulpit last Sunday, but the regular pastor appeared on the scene and charged Stickney with working against him, and trying to rob his wife and children of support.

He appeared in church before the congregation and holding up a loaf of bread, said it was all his family had to eat, and then broke it in half, giving half to Stickney and asking him to give the other half to his superior officer Rev. Simmons. Mr. Edwards delivered the sermon instead of Stickney. The affair has created such a sensation in church circles that it is thought the Congregational Home Mission society will be compelled to investigate.

KANSAS CORN.

An Enormous Crop Has Been Safely Gathered.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 12.—Secretary Coburn, of the Kansas board of agriculture, today issued his final crop report for the year. The item of foremost interest is the yield of corn. He says: "The yield for the year, with one exception, is greater than in any previous year in the state's history. The total production is 201,457,296 bushels, an average yield on the entire area planted ($1,394,871 acres) of twenty-four bushels per acre. The average price of corn for the year is given as 23 cents per bushel, and the price at which it is being sold or contracted (delivered) now in the principal corn counties, ranges from 16 to 21 cents, and averages 18 cents. Thirty-three per cent of the crop is reported as likely to be disposed of at the latter average by the close of the present year.

The area sown to winter wheat the present season is estimated as about 70 per cent of last year's sowing, or 2,629,559 acres. The total yield of winter wheat amounts to 15,512,241 bushels. Oats, 34,-064,748 bushels.

NEZ PERCE RESERVATION.

Crowd of Homeseekers Already Gathering There.

Julietta, Idaho, Nov. 12.—Two hundred and fifty homeseekers are in camp in this vicinity waiting for the opening of the Nez Perce reservation Nov. 18. Several families have just arrived from the East. Many are leaving here daily to look over the land and make their selections.

Those who are returning are elated over their prospects. Several townsites have been surveyed. It is expected there will be 10,000 people ready to enter the reservation. The reservation will furnish homes for over 3000 families.

FOR SELLING WHISKY.

Tower, Minn., Nov. 12.—United States Deputy Marshal Tolman, of St. Paul, arrested Robert McCoy for selling whisky to Indians and brought him before United States Court Commissioner Brown for examination. He was bound over for trial, and committed to jail in default of bail. The marshal went up the Vermilion lake in search of other law breakers who furnish Indians whisky for fur or money.

Material has been shipped to build a government school house for the Nett Lake Indians, on the Vermilion Lake reservation.

LEMONS ARE HIGH.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Owing to the exceptionally high price of lemons—$10 per box—paid in the United States, the shipments of this fruit to the United States, as reported to the department of state by Consul Seymour, at Palermo, was 40,000 boxes, against 9000 boxes for the corresponding month of September last year. The Italian product of olive oil this year amounted to 55,120,175 gallons, as against 64,738,365 last year.

He also makes a report upon the extensive ravages of the philoxera in Italy, saying it has struck twenty-five provinces, and only the Venetian region is free. Vineyards aggregating 285,485 acres have been destroyed, 188,345 acres are on the way to destruction, and in Sicily alone the workmen have lost $4,-000,000 in wages.

BAD WEATHER FOR SPAIN.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The government authorities at Madrid have sent out official confirmation of the reported minor engagements which took place in Cuba the latter part of last week. It is added that the recent activity of the insurgents is due to their efforts to cripple the sugar industry at the time when the work is beginning. But, it is added, these efforts have failed. The Spanish authorities are still prevented from making decisive forward movements by the condition of the weather.

SIGNIFICANT OMISSION.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Lord Salisbury's failure to mention the Venezuelan question in his Guild hall speech is regarded as a most significant omission. The speech summed up the premier's position on all the foreign questions regarded as of pressing importance, so that this avoidance of all mention of Venezuela is construed to mean that the premier attaches less importance to it than has been supposed.

WEDDING

Paget-Whitney Nuptials in New York Today Were Very Stylish.

President Cleveland and Cabinet Were Among the Prominent Guests.

Beautiful Floral Decorations ---Simple Toilettes of the Bridal Party.

New York, Nov. 12.—The marriage of Miss Pauline Payne Whitney, to Mr. Almeric Paget was solemnized at noon today at St. Thomas, church. The bride, who is the daughter of William C. Whitney, former secretary of the navy, is known favorably in society in New York, Washington and abroad in London and Paris. The groom is the youngest son of the late Gen. Lord Alfred Paget, who was personal aide-de-camp to the queen, and grandson of the first marquis of Anglesea. The first marquis of Anglesea married a Miss King, of Georgia, and Mr. Paget's brother, Col. Arthur Paget married the only daughter of the late Mrs. Paran Stevens in 1878.

The church was beautifully decorated with ivies and chrysanthemums, and triple arches were erected across the center aisle seats, while the stone gothic pillars and abutments were entirely hidden in masses of rhododendrons. Round the chancel rail and choir stalls tree ferns and palms were placed. The chancel rail, galleries and side aisles were banked with flowers over which was artistically wrapped a hanging green and white tracery of foliage of lilies, which gave a natural unstudied effect to the decorations.

The family and immediate friends had seats separated from those reserved by the guests by a floral gate built on gothic lines extending across the center aisle. On the right sat President Cleveland and Secretary Lamont and Secretary Herbert, and in the seats immediately behind the presidential party was seated Governor and Mrs. Morton, Sir Julian Pauncefote and members of the British embassy. Dr. Chauncey M. Depew and specially invited guests. On the left were seated members of the Whitney household, Lady Colebrook and Miss Alice Paget, sisters of the groom, Lord Westmeath and personal friends of the bride.

In honor of the importance of the occasion, Deouard De Reske, who has never appeared in a church before, as a solo ist, and Mme. Nordica, sang Faure's duet, "The Crucifix," from Mendelsohn's "Elijah." Just before the bethrothal service, Mme. Nordica sang the "Ave Maria." Frank Onderick rendered "Laudis Elgic" on the violin. Handel's "Largo" was performed by Franko's orchestra, accompanied by the harp and organ, and a delightful musical program was presented before the arrival of the bridal party. This included the bridal music from Lohengrin, which was sung by the regular church choir, under the direction of Dr. George E. Warren.

Soon after 12 o'clock to the strains of the wedding march, the bridal party proceeded to the chancel in the following order: Ushers, Gould, Hoyt, John C. Furman, H. Maitland Kersey, W. Cutting, Jr., Winthrop Rutherford, Jerard Howe, Crawford Livingstone and the bride's brother, Mr. Harry Whitney. Then came four little flower maidens, Miss Catherine Barney, Miss Laura Whitney, Miss Frances Bingham, and Miss Dorothy Whitney, the bride's sister. These four little attendants wore frocks of white mousseline de soie, trimmed with fichus of lace trimmed gauze, the costume being completed with large soft hats of white felt, decorated with long white plumes. Each of the little girls carried a large basket of lilies of the valley and white roses.

Following these came six bridesmaids, Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, Miss Emily Vanderbilt Sloane, Miss Azuba Barney, Miss Beatrice Bend, Miss Susie Dimmock and Miss Edith Blake Brown. Miss Vanderbilt was in white, Miss Sloane in pink, Miss Barney in yellow, Miss Bend in heliotrope, Miss Dimmock in blue, and Miss Brown in green.

Miss Whitney entered leaning on the arm of her father. She made a beautiful bride, her wedding gown of ivory white satin was perfectly plain, without lace or embroidery, save for a heavy silk cord which ran around the edge. The corsage was finished in ruffles at either side, and the very full sleeves were finished from elbow to wrist in gauntlet style, with a narrow frill of lace at the wrist. The waist was seamless. A cluster of orange blossoms was fastened at the left side on the waist line, and the veil was made from a splendid piece of point lace which was worn by the bride's mother and which extended almost to the train.

The bridal party were met at the chancel steps by the groom and his best man, Mr. Gerad Paget. The bride and groom were met at the chancel by Bishops Potter and Leonard, and the rector, Dr. John Wesley Brown, where the charge was read by the rector of the church; Bishop Leonard performing the bethrothal service and Bishop Potter officiating at the marriage ceremony proper at the altar rail. Immediately after the ceremony, the newly wedded pair were accompanied to the vestry by the president and Sir Julian Pauncefote, who subscribed their names to the marriage registry as witnesses.

While the bridal party were signing the registry, Mme. Nordica sang, and the little flower girls presented favors to the specially invited guests. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the residence of the bride's father, to which 400 guests were bidden. In the inner hall an immense ball of white flowers was hung, beneath which the bridal couple received the congratulations of their friends. The decorations in the house were simple and effective. Around the stairway palms were grouped and the balustrades were entwined their entire length with vine leaves and smilax.

In the corridor ropes of chyrsanthemums were wound around the oaken walls and draping the rare tapestries. In the ante room, leading off the hall, tall palms with yellow feathery Japanese blossoms banked at their base, were placed. The drawing room was decorated in mauve pink catalaya orchids which hung from the vines and palms, which were draped luxuriantly around the mirrors and candelabra of the room, counteracting pleasantly the heavy furnishings of deep crimson, black and gold furnishings. The windows were banked in green and the bride and bridegroom received the wedding guests in a grove of green.

The wedding breakfast was served at small tables set in the hall room and dining room. The bridal party was seated at a crescent shaped table arranged across the bay window. The bridal couple will pass part of the honeymoon at Mr. Whitney's country seat at Westbury, L. I., and later will slowly tour through the Eastern states enroute to St. Paul, Minn., where Mr. Paget and his bride will make their future home.

LOTS OF CHILDREN.

Polish Wedding Which Unites Two Large Families.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Hannah Gozinski was married here yesterday to Joseph Koboski, who lives near Fairchild, Wis., and by this union Mr. and Mrs. Koboski establish themselves at the head of a family of thirty-four children. The match partakes somewhat of the romantic, inasmuch as it was the culmination of an acquaintanceship of only twenty-four hours. Koboski is a prosperous farmer, the father of seventeen children, and a widower. Recently he advertised for a wife.

The advertisement was read by Mrs. Gozinski, who is a widow with seventeen children. She felt that they needed the restraining hand of a father, and the advertisement gave her a chance to secure one for them. She packed up her possessions and accompanied by her children, proceeded to Fairchild and answered the advertisement in person. After being together for a few hours, they came to La Crosse and were married by a Polish priest.

O'DONNELL BEATEN.

Peter Maher Finishes Him in Half a Round.

Maspeth, L. I., Nov. 12.—The arena of the Empire Athletic club was densely crowded last evening with sports from all over the world, gathered together to see the long expected fight between Peter Maher, the Irish champion, and Steve O'Donnell, of Australia. There was a preliminary 6-round go between Casper Leon, of New York, and Billy Smith, of Philadelphia, at catch weights, and Leon was declared the winner.

Corbett was present and made a little speech to the crowd, in which he scored Fitzsimmons, and then the event of the evening came off. It was short and sweet, for Maher knocked O'Donnell down three times in sixty-three seconds, the last being a clear knock out, and the Australian was carried to his corner.

INDIANS KILLED.

Three Utes Murdered---Trouble May Follow.

Denver, Nov. 12.—A special to the News from Durango, Colo., says: David Day, indian agent, has telegraphed from Ignacio that two Indians and a squaw have been killed by unknown parties near the head of Lost Canon. The Utes are greatly enraged, and he fears for the safety of the settlers. No particulars are obtainable.

Durango, Colo., Nov. 12.—Deputy Sheriff Joseph Smith and Stanley Day, son of Indian Agent David Day, accompanied by six Indians from the Ute agency, started today for Lost Canon, near Dolores, where it is reported two Indian braves, Roc-E-Now and Ac-Ca-Witscousin, and a squaw have been murdered. It is conjectured that the murders were committed by Indians, as no reason for the killing of the Indians by whites can be assigned. Should the killing be traced to whites serious trouble may ensue.

RODE ON A RAIL.

Ashland, Ky., Nov. 12.—A report from Whitepost, Pike county, says that Mormon elders were taken from a church there Sunday night and ridden out of the state and into West Virginia on rails. The elders have been working in West Virginia for some time, crossing the river in defiance of the warning of the farmers, and were exhorting a large congregation to accept the Mormon faith, when they were assailed by a band of men, who rode them out of the state, but subjected them to no other indignities.

MUTINY ON SHIPBOARD.

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—The ship Bohemia arrived this morning with stories of mutiny and disaster. The crew headed by Second Mate Egan mutinied after the ship had been through the storm off Rio Janeiro and against his will the captain had to make for port. With the exception of the chief officer there was not a man on the vessel who sided with the skipper. The second officer, who led the mutineers, deserted at Rio De Janeiro, but the rest of the crew are aboard. They will probably be arrested, but will have the captain taken into custody for cruelty on the high seas and they state that he was responsible for the trouble.

Dr. William Lee, of Benton, a suburb of this city, has been found guilty of the charge of undue familiarity with female members of his flock, and has been formally suspended from the Presbyterian church. SCHOOLS

Thanksgiving Exercises Will Be Conducted by the School Children.

Extensive Program Will Be Given at the New Irving School.

Longfellow Pupils Will Also Give an Entertainment ---Other News.

Preparations are being made for a patriotic and proper observance of Thanksgiving day by the school children of West Duluth. At the Irving building an extensive program will be arranged for Thursday afternoon. The exercises will take place in the assembly room to which the public in general will be invited. They will mainly consist in brief historical references to Thanksgiving days of different nations, reading of Thanksgiving poems, and the singing of Thanksgiving songs by the different schools. Other music will also be provided and Professor Dudolph will be invited to appear in the program. Miss Lennon, the principal, is at the head of the affair and the success which attended the dedication of the building a short time ago and which was largely due to her efforts, is in evidence as to what the public may expect on Thanksgiving day. The only drawback to the entertainment will undoubtedly arise from the limited capacity of the assembly hall.

An incident occured at the Irving building this morning while the reporter was interviewing the principal which would doubtless have been a comforting sight to the parents of the pupils had they been there as witnesses. The fire gong was rung unceremoniously and without warning and in the space of one minute and a quarter every child had donned wraps and marched outside of the building. Within three minutes they were all back again at their desks.

Preparations for Thanksgiving day are in hand by the principal and teachers at the Longfellow school although the program has not yet been arranged. The lack of an assembly room in this building makes an effort of this kind more difficult as the joint exercises usually take place in the hallways with more or less convenience.

The things that people see are inside of them and not outside. No two people see the same thing exactly alike. One woman may look out at a beautiful landscape and see all the beauty and restfulness and grandness that there is in it. Another one will look out at the same scene and see nothing. The man who is perfectly well and vigorous enjoys life to the full. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. There isn't anything miraculous about it—it is the most natural thing in the world. It simply puts the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, in perfect order and thereby makes the blood pure and rich. All diseases live and thrive on impure blood. Keep a stream of pure, rich, red blood flowing into a diseased spot, and the disease will not stay. A man lives on rich, pure blood, and disease dies on it.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood.

FORTY YEARS

OF SUFFERING FROM PILES.

Remarkable Cure of Popular Major Dean, of Columbus, Ohio.

People who suffer from that annoying and obstinate disease will be gratified to learn that science has discovered a safe, convenient, and simple cure for every form of piles, as the experience of the popular Maj. Dean, of Columbus, Ohio, amply attests. The major says: I would like to add my name to the thousands who have been cured by the Pyramid Pile Cure. I know from experience that it is the only remedy on earth that will effectually cure piles; plenty of remedies give relief for a time, but as for a lasting cure I had tried all the salves, lotions, etc., without success. Six boxes of the Pyramid Pile Cure entirely removed all traces of a case of piles of forty years' standing.

You may rest asured that the Pyramid Pile Cure has no stauncher advocate than myself.

I feel that it is my duty to allow you to use my name in any way you may see fit, in order that other sufferers may thus be directed to what I feel certain will be a speedy relief and cure.

The Pyramid Pile Cure gives instant relief and a permanent cure in all kinds of blind, bleeding, itching piles.

It is absolutely free from opiates, cocaine and similar poisons, so common in pile cures.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00.

A book on cause and cure of Piles will be sent free by addressing the Pyramid company, Albion, Mich.

Wheat Started Out Rather Easy This Morning But Became Firmer.

Heavy Receipts at Northwestern Points as Conspicuous as Ever.

Export Clearances From the Four Atlantic Ports Were Fairly Good.

Fine weather and the usual heavy receipts at the Northwestern points and at Chicago caused the market to open rather weak but towards the close of the morning session it firmed up and closed with an advance over yesterday's last quotations. There were encouraging cables about the drop in consols, and there was some heavy buying at Chicago, where August Brosseau took in at least 1,500,000 bus and C. E. Gifford bought 600,000 bus of May wheat. May opened ⅛c higher at 58½c on the Duluth board, declined ¼c and an hour later lost another ⅛c. After the noon it sold up again to the opening price. December started unchanged at 53⅝c, declined ⅛c, reacted to 53¾c and near the close sold up to 53⅞c. Offerings of cash wheat were light. The shippers took 100,000 mus at ¼c over December, and the mills bought 30,000 bus at ½c over December. The close was ¼c higher all round than yesterday.

The excess of the receipts in the Northwest compared with those of a year ago was as conspicuous as ever. Minneapolis got 481 cars and Duluth 1041, making together 1522 compared with 844 on the corresponding day of last year. The receipts at all the primary markets together amounted to 1,517,000 bus against only 688,548 bus a year ago and the latter total looks smaller still when compared with receipts of 1,046,000 bus today at Minneapolis and Duluth alone. The day's export clearances from the four principal Atlantic ports were fairly good. They amounted in wheat and flour together to 347,000 bus. The week's exports from all countries as compiled by the board of trade were 500,000 bus smaller than a private cablegram reported them at yesterday.

Barley sold by sample at 20@27½c. Flax started at 87¾c, advanced ¼c, declined to 87¼c, sold up again at 88c but lost the advance before the close. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 55c; November, 55c; December, 54⅞c; May, 59⅝c. No. 1 northern cash, 54c; November, 54c; December, 53⅞c; May, 58⅝c. No. 2 northern cash, 49¾@51¼c. No. 3, 47@49½c. Rejected, 37@45¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 55c; No. 1 northern, 54⅛c. Rye, 33½c. No. 2 oats, 18½c. No. 3 oats, 18c. Flax, 87½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 104; oats, 9; rye, 14; barley, 50; flax, 141. Receipts—Wheat, 721,853 bus; oats, 1082; rye, 8619; barley, 41,662; flax, 86,355. Shipments—Wheat, 517,336 bus; rye, 13,350 bus; barley, 97,400 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—There was a better feeling in wheat today. The war scare having to some extent subsided operators had more time to read crop damage reports, some of which state that the rains only tended to develop the fact that damage to winter wheat had really occurred. Bradstreet's report was of a smaller increase in stocks than operators had anticipated, and this, together with a fair demand for cash wheat here and in the Northwest, gave the market a firmer tone and a slight advance, but the gain was closely contested and there is a flood of wheat for sale on every little rally. Several local operators who have been identified with the bear side have apparently covered and gone long.

The government report was considered as favorable to buyers of corn as it indicated a slightly less yield. This with fine weather and smaller estimated receipts caused a firmer market. Oats continue quite dull and provisions had only a fair trade.

Stocks—Foreigners were buyers of railway stocks today and the market closed firm at top prices of the day.

FREEDMEN'S CONVENTION.

Southern Educational Society Meets in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—At today's session of the Freedman's Aid and Southern Educational society, a lengthy debate was provoked by the report of the committee on appropriations. The feature which caused the talk was a proposition that $4000 be set aside for special schools, which are considered specially needy. This is to be apportioned among a number of Southern institutions in varying amounts.

The warmest fight was against granting $1000 to Murphy college at Sevierville, Tenn., because the property is in no way held by the society. The college was established by the "poor whites" of the region, and it is said is $4000 in debt and much hampered in its work thereby. The people in the vicinity have subscribed $3000, on the condition of the society giving $1000, and Bishop Joyce is anxious that this be done. During the discussion is was stated that 50 per cent of the students among the poor whites of the South are in the graded schools, supported by the society. Bishop Foster immediately asked: "Why should we spend our time and money giving the education which the log house will do as well? Are we to run a common school system?"

Dr. Hartzell explained that the schools among the common people have sessions during only two or three months in the year and that while the South is rapidly bettering the condition of her schools in some sections, they are very poor and this is especially true of Tennessee. Dr. Cranston, treasurer of the society, did not approve of putting a contingent fund in the hands of the board. Whatever is done should be done straightway. This thing of helping on faith that such and such a man is to give so much money," said he, "is a deception. It's just such things which have put us $200,000 in debt." Turning to another side of the question, Dr. Cranston said many teachers should be advanced. The teachers at Morristown in the Colored academy for instance, get an average of $281 a year to live on. This he declared to be an outrage. Such things should be remedied.

The Merchants hotel offers a very low rate for room and board for the winter months.

JUDGE THURMAN.

Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, "the old Roman," as he has been called because of his public virtues, will be 82 years old tomorrow. An accident with which he met last week nearly brought him to death's door, but the latest reports on his condition state that he is much better, and his friends believe his wonderful constitution will enable him to fully recuperate. But it cannot be expected his life will be spared for long. His days are fast drawing to a close, and, in his own words, he is waiting for Charon and his boat to ferry him across the Styx. He may not cross the river this year or next, but in the natural course of events he will make the trip before many years have elapsed.

Nearly fifty years ago Mr. Thurman entered congress as the youngest member of the house of representatives, and until his retirement to private life after his defeat in 1888 for the vice presidency he occupied a prominent place in the politics of this country, both in the house and in the senate, while he also sat upon the bench and made a record for rigid integrity and strict impartiality. It was the demonstration in his daily life of the virtues of true citizenship and incorruptible statesmanship that gained for him the honorable title of "the old Roman." The Chicago Chronicle says: "Judge Thurman is and always has been ruggedly, unfailingly, aggressively honest. Through a long and conspicuous career this characteristic was, without effort of display upon his part, obvious. His integrity has been seen in every relation of his life. It extended from his own fireside to the senate of the United States. He was no more fair and conscientious in the discharge of a judicial duty than of his duty as a legislative representative of the people. In an era of colossal scandals, when the contamination of grasping monopolies, of stock exchange operators, of experts in the legerdemain of railroad financing, had polluted many men in public life, Judge Thurman was untouched and undismayed."

It is recalled by the Chronicle, as one of the incidents of his career, that he stood in the senate of the United States and through sheer force of his fidelity to his trust, coupled with his acumen as a lawyer and aided by a man in many things much like himself, Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, compelled legislators in the interests of Jay Gould, who looked on from the gallery, to pass a statute requiring the Pacific roads to provide a sinking fund to meet their indebtedness to the United States and the interest thereon at its maturity. That the legislation has not been effective to the full has been no fault of his. It would have been easy for eminent counsel like himself to have accepted a retainer from the interested Pacific organizations. The lax morality of the time would have palliated, if it would not have attempted to justify, this employment of his abilities against the people whom he was serving. But no one then or at any time in his life would have dared approach Allen G. Thurman with what he would properly regard as the insult of a bribe.

A REMARKABLE CONCERN.

The last number of Electricity, published in New York, has a long article on the questionable methods and conduct of the Standard Telephone company, the parent company of the concern now seeking to get a franchise in Duluth. It reproduces the circular issued by the Standard people, in which the great profits of promoting local telephone companies are pointed out, and in which it is stated the promoters will "have $20 in cash net profit on each 'phone to play with and a stock interest in every telephone of $34 to grease common councils, to sell to local third floor and sub-cellar investors, etc." Another circular issued by this remarkable concern is also published. It contains no reference to greasing common councils, but Electricity says that "the claims made are ridiculous and could not be made by any man familiar with the telephone business unless he planned a stockjobbing scheme to secure the money of men wholly ignorant of telephone possibilities."

As to the past record of the Standard Telephone company, it is a matter of history. Electricity says. There has been nothing but continued deceit and misrepresentation. Long distance lines were promised first. Local capitalists were promised this as an inducement to go ahead and organize exchanges. The promoters were to receive the larger part of the money, and the exchange was actually to be built from the proceeds of the sale of bonds. Bonds on what? Prospective property, franchises and subscriptions for the service of the exchange secured in advance! Bonds of this nature are not easily disposed of, and as a consequence no local exchanges have been started.

Electricity asserts that the Standard company has no patents of any value. It does not own the McDonough patents. A bill of sale of these patents is now and has been in the possession of another telephone company in New York. Other patents claimed are those of A. W. Rose. Mr. Rose is a patient and industrious worker in the employ of the Standard company. His patents are not mysterious at all. There is nothing in them to warrant the formation of any company to exploit them in competition with what is already in practical use in the field of telephony. The only telephone man of any ability ever connected with the enterprise was H. H. Eldred, who long since ceased to work in harmony with the company. From all of these statements, it is evident that the company now seeking a franchise in Duluth would not be a very desirable acquisition.

MUNICIPAL SOCIALISM.

In the November number of the North American Review there is an interesting article by Hon. Robert P. Porter, formerly head of the federal census bureau, and now editor of the Cleveland World. Mr. Porter has been known for years as a strong advocate of protection, and has written considerable on the subject. He was a member of the tariff commission appointed by President Arthur, which made a report that became the basis of the tariff revision act of March 3, 1883. The subject of Mr. Porter's article in the magazine is "The Municipal Spirit in England," and his close connection with the protective policy in this country adds interest to his comments upon English "municipal spirit," which he asserts broke out in the middle of the present century. Before that time the condition of the working classes in the large towns was deplorable. But a better state of affairs dawned with the passage of various factory and mining laws, legislation relating to sanitary matters, and the artisans' dwelling-house acts, etc. What has been accomplished by the establishment of the London county council is spoken of by Mr. Porter as having done "more to encourage what is best and most advanced in local life than all London's 120 charters, running over 670 years from William the Conqueror to George II, to say nothing of the innumerable acts of parliament relating to the functions of the various boards and bodies which control the affairs of the metropolis."

It is Mr. Porter's belief that the municipal spirit of England as now developing aims at nothing short of municipal socialism—an opinion that will be endorsed by nearly everyone who is informed regarding the bold and humanitarian policy pursued by certain municipalities in England, which undertake to guarantee for the inhabitants thereof such projects as are necessary to the public weal but are beyond the power of private capital. Mr. Porter specifies in part as follows:

"Beginning with the municipalization of gas and water, the idea has extended to tramways, markets, baths, libraries, picture galleries, technical schools, artisans' dwellings, cricket fields, football grounds, tennis courts, gymnasia for girls as well as boys, regulation of refreshment tariffs, free chairs in the parks, free music, and last, though not least, it is proposed to invade the sacred rights of John Bung himself and municipalize the gin shops and public houses. At Glasgow, a short time ago, I was afforded an opportunity of riding in the new and comfortable city tram cars. These cars are gayly emblazoned with the city coat-of-arms. The men are dressed in new and handsome uniforms, and instead of tolling fourteen to sixteen hours a day to enrich a corporation, these men work ten hours, are paid higher wages than before, and to all appearances are treated like human beings. And yet traveling is cheap enough—one mile one cent. Instead of charging, as in London, a higher rate for long distances, working men are encouraged to seek homes out of town by a proportional reduction as the distance increases.

"The municipality of Glasgow took over the tramways simply because the private company refused to agree to improve the lot of its employes. Fortunately, like Liverpool and Manchester, Glasgow had wisely constructed its own tramways. They had been leased to the private company for twenty-five years, and the lease expired last year. In renewing this lease the disagreement occurred which ended in the determination of the city to carry on the business itself. The old company refused to sell its rolling stock, whereupon the municipal corporation, not to be bluffed, purchased a new and handsome outfit, lighted the cars by electricity, and is today carrying on the business, I hope, successfully. Meantime, the old company has transformed itself into an omnibus company, and is trying to compete with the municipality. It is a pity Brooklyn was not in a position to have promptly done the same thing and ended the recent trouble."

Mr. Porter points out that the real debatable question which the growth of the municipal idea or municipal spirit is forcing to the front is, How far can municipalities go in this direction without undermining the whole fabric of free competition? The London county council, responsible as it is for the health of the people of London, declines to use its position as an employer of labor to degrade it by reducing compensation below a fair rate. Mr. Porter defends this step on protectionist grounds, although he says that municipal government in England is spreading its functions to a somewhat dangerous extent.

In 1892 the state of New York cast 1,264,218 votes for president, of which Mr. Cleveland had 654,868; Mr. Harrison 609,350. Last year Hon. Levi P. Morton received 673,818 and David B. Hill 517,700. Thousands of Democrats voted for the Republican gubernatorial candidate to make sure of Hill's discomfiture. This year the Democratic vote for the head of its ticket was 503,000, and the Republican vote for its leading nominee 601,000. Undoubtedly there are more voters in New York state than in 1892, when the total ballots reached 1,264,218, so there is a large reserve of voters that when they come out may upset all political calculations based on the voting for the past two years.

This country is fast becoming a nation of bacon-eaters and the demand for bacon is very much greater now than it was only a few years ago. This demand leads to a well-defined call for bacon breeds of swine and those breeds which can be depended on to produce meat well streaked with lean have a prospect of becoming very popular. The bacon made in America has hitherto been too fat to meet with great favor in the markets of the world. In Europe Danish bacon has first place, while that of Canada is taken in preference to that from this country. This is because of the great amount of lean meat in the product of these countries as compared with ours.

The railroad commissioners of Maine have decided that the paralleling of steam lines by electric railroads is to be licensed only where a clear case of "public exigency" demands it. They have refused their approval to the location of an electric line which was so intended to compete with a steam railroad whose gross receipts from passengers between the two stations covered in the application was but $12 a day. The commissioners held that, if there was a public exigency for competition, it would be indicated by the volume of business on the existing lines of communication.

New Jersey has just completed a census, and is pleased and proud to find that its population, not counting mosquitoes, is 1,672,942, an increase in five years of 16 per cent. Newark is the biggest city, with 215,816, with Jersey City second with 182,713. These two cities have grown at the expense of such pleasant old places as Bordentown and Red Bank. Of course they took the census when the summer resorts were crowded.

The increase of $5,250,000 in the total fire losses for October makes the totals for the first ten months of 1895 nearly $4,000,000 greater than for the corresponding period last year. A considerable part of the increase is undoubtedly due to incendiarism, says the New York World. These are portentious figures, and should stimulate underwriters and others to ascertain, if possible, all the reasons of such increased devastation by fires.

Not a few Massachusetts women took the trouble to go to the polls on Tuesday and vote against woman suffrage, but their number was not large, and they did not determine the negative result. The inexpediency of woman suffrage was declared by the thousands and tens of thousands of women who neither registered nor went to the polls. Their sentiments were expressed by the masculine voters.

Two Brooklyn men made the most novel election bet on record. One is a Catholic and the other a Protestant, and the loser is to change his religion. The Catholic bet on Democratic success, and he is now getting ready to join a Methodist church, the selection made by his conqueror.

THE ROUNDER.

"Our superintendent," said a well known local telegrapher to the Rounder, "is what is known among the boys as a 'has been,' and occasionally when he feels young and sprightly and thinks he has a good 'nerve' he takes some operator's place and proceeds to show the boys along the line how to telegraph. Most of them are onto him and take it the best they can without a murmur.

"I was in his office one day last week, however, when things didn't go quite according to program. A new man had just been sent to 'Q' and he wasn't familiar with the old man's 'Morse.' Just as the superintendent was passing 'Q' wire a message was hung on the hook. As soon as he saw it he opened the key and commenced sending it to 'Q.'

"'I can't get that, it's chipple,' said the new man.

"'Where shall I go ahead,' asked the superintendent.

"'Oh, get relief, you ham,' replied Q. 'I've got no time to play with students.'

"'Who are you,' said the superintendent, signing 'X' his individual call.

"'Oh, excuse me,' said 'Q.' 'I didn't know it was you Mr. X. I thought it was some drunken tramp.'

"'It's a good thing he apologized,' said 'X' to me, as he finished the message and went into his private office.

"The boys along the line swear they will pension the man at 'Q' for life if he ever loses his position as the old man hasn't been near the wire since."

Hunting parties seldom affect much in the way of dress, and a recent deer hunting party which arrived in the city and spread broadcast the statement that they had killed an unlimited number of deer which would follow on a later train was no exception. The later train story, by the way, was received with open derision by their friends and the members of the party are daily besieged with queries as to whether that train has arrived yet, but that is another story. This party got off the train at the Union depot and was immediately approached by a capper for a lumber jack's hotel who remarked:

"Say, boys, do you want a good cheap hotel?"

The members of the party, who wear boiled shirts and sharpened trousers when they are not deer hunting, were doubtful whether to be amused or insulted.

* * *

As the Rounder sauntered along Superior street the other day his attention was attracted to a crowd which filled the sidewalk in front of Howard & Haynie's establishment. Interested at once he pushed his way through to a point where he could command a view of the window. It was worth his while, for he saw a charming picture in the most incongruous setting imaginable.

A sweet-faced, grandmotherly old lady, with a pretty white cap surmounting her kind old face with its glorious crown of white hairs, sat in the window industriously operating an old fashioned spinning wheel. Looking neither to right nor left, but steadily at her work, she spun away as though she sat in some comfortable living room on a New England homestead a hundred years back, instead of a show window of a modern, enterprising store in a modern Western city, surveyed by a gaping crowd from a public street. The wheel itself was just such a one as may be found in the attics of many of those old New England homes.

The picture brought up pleasant memories to Eastern born citizens of this land of the free and refuge of the persecuted, and they thought of the kind old grandmother in the Eastern home and the cobwebbed old spinning wheel in the attic. Then some unfeeling alien in the crowd joggled the watcher's elbow and broke his reverie by an unsympathetic remark, and he moved on.

NO BIDS

One Proposition Only for the Purchase of Bonds Was Received.

New Ordinance Increasing Rate of Interest Passed Last Evening.

Injunction Suit Against the Issuance of Bonds Has Been Commenced.

No one could complain of monotony at the council meeting last night. The proceedings opened with the service of a summons in an injunction suit and closed with the first reading of a new 4½ per cent water bond ordinance with a star chamber session in the interim.

As soon as the council was called to order Deputy United States Marshal T. J. Sheehan, who had been swapping fish stories with President Howard arose and announced that he held summons for the mayor, comptroller, city clerk and common council to appear at the United States court to answer to injunction proceedings against the city in the matter of the water bond issue. Then Mr. Sheehan passed around the little documents being introduced to each official by President Howard, who officiated as master of ceremonies. The marshal approached Alderman-at-large William Craig and noting William's self-conscious smile was about to serve a summons on him when a burst of laughter from the spectators interrupted him.

Then Clerk Richardson read a communication from N. J. Upham & Co., of Duluth, offering to negotiate the sale of $1,000,000 worth of bonds in consideration of a commission of one half per cent additional interest during the life of the bonds or the plain English, 15 per cent in installments. Everyone gasped and the proposition was filed without comment. This was the only communication received on the subject of the bonds and the aldermen looked grave. The routine business was hustled through and then Alderman Lerch, who seemed pained at the publicity of the proceedings moved that the council go into executive session. The spectators filed out and left the city fathers alone with their thoughts and the city attorney.

THE SECRET SESSION.

As soon as the doors were closed and Tom O'Brien placed on the outer guard President Howard, who had originated the secret session idea remarked in a stage whisper:

"Hist!"

Everyone histed. Then a great discussion arose. President Howard wanted the clerk to be instructed to re-advertise for bids with the rate of interest increased to 4½ per cent. Alderman Hale thought the people should meet the council in conference before any further steps were taken and introduced a resolution to that effect which was voted down.

Alderman Harwood opposed the conference idea strenuously on the ground that the people had already given the council instructions and they should carry them out without more waste of time. Aldermen Lerch and Ash favored raising the offered interest to 4½ per cent and finally the old water bond ordinance was revamped ready for passage, with the help of the city attorney and the doors were again thrown open.

Alderman Ash introduced the ordinance authorizing the issuance of $1,000,000 bonds at 4½ per cent with other forms and conditions unchanged. It was passed unanimously on the first reading. Then Alderman Hale came up smiling with a resolution calling a conference with taxpayers and citizens at the council chamber on next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This was passed previous to adjournment.

Considerable routine business was disposed of during the evening. Everything was hustled through in short order.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

Aldermen Hale, Ohafson and Trevillon were chosen by the chair as the committee of three to act on the joint committee with representatives of the various commercial bodies in figuring out a plan to reduce city expenditures.

A lengthy petition signed by Henry C. Spalding and others asking that an expert investigation be made into the relative merits of the supply of water from the hillside streams east of the city and the pumping of water from Lake Superior was referred to the waterworks special committee. The petitioners suggest the appointment of a commission composed of two outside engineers and one eminent chemist to conduct the investigation which they think should be made at once.

A resolution passed at the last meeting providing for the construction of a 66-foot road through 26-51-13 was returned with the mayor's veto. The petition for the road was explained by Mayor Lewis to be signed by no one who would have to pay for the improvement and that he does not deem the improvement necessary.

AN INJUNCTION SUIT.

Suit to Restrain the City From Selling Bonds.

The first of the many injunction suits which were threatened before the election has been begun. It was filed in the United States court yesterday afternoon, and the city officials and aldermen were summoned last evening to appear before the United States court on the first Monday in January, 1896. The suit is brought to restrain the city from issuing bonds for the construction of an independent water plant, and the plaintiffs are Dexter M. Ferry, William J. Trunstead and Charles Trunstead, of Michigan, and Annabelle M. Gowan and Mary Jane Graham, of New York. The plaintiffs' attorneys are Draper, Davis & Hollister, Washburn, Lewis & Judson, of Duluth, and Flandrau, Squiers & Cutcheon, of St. Paul.

The complainants claim to own property in Duluth valued at $200,000 and to be heavy taxpayers. The location of the city, the topography, etc., is explained. The issuance of a franchise to the Duluth Gas and Water company is recited, and also the assessed valuation of the city, indebtedness and expenses. The franchise, it is claimed, created "contractural rights and relations which still exist and are binding on the city of Duluth. It is asserted that the company has expended $2,000,000 in putting in its plant; that the city's contract calls for the payment of $24,000 or more annually for hydrant rental; that the company is furnishing pure and wholesome water, and that the company has sold bonds amounting to $1,800,000 which are a first mortgage lien on the plant."

ELECTION DECLARED INVALID.

The calling of the special election of Aug. 12, 1895, is recited and its validity is questioned, a number of irregularities being alleged. It is claimed that under the law three judges must be appointed for each precinct twenty-five days before election, and also two clerks, to be chosen from the principal political parties; that the council appointed the judges but failed to appoint the clerks until one week before the election; that in many cases the judges and clerks were all from the same political party, whereas the law says that not more than two shall be from the same party. The registration is also attacked and the ballot is claimed to have been misleading. The judges are accused of having left their places and electioneered among the voters.

The passage of the bond ordinance is recited and many alleged difficulties connected with the construction of a new system are presented. It is asserted that it will cost the city $4,000,000 to build a new plant and that the $1,856,000 is totally inadequate; also, that a new plant will not pay in competition with the present one, and the taxpayers will have to pay the deficiency. The complainants declare that there is no necessity for the construction of a new plant, and that the interests of taxpayers would not be benefited thereby. If the city were allowed to go on and tear up the streets, an epidemic of fever and sickness would be produced. The claim is set up that the present company is amply able to meet all demands, and that a new plant would mean unnecessary and increased taxation.

AFRAID OF LITIGATION.

The claim is made that the company denies the city's right to build an independent system, and will take the matter into the courts and cause much expensive litigation. The proposed action of the city through its officers and council is held contrary to equity and good conscience, and tends to the manifest wrong and injury of the voters, they allege. They declare themselves remediless by the strict rules of law, and maintain that their relief is only through equity. They ask that the defendants answer each and every charge and that the council be decreed and ordered to have no power to issue water and light bonds or to issue, negotiate or sell the same; also, that the construction of the proposed plant be adjudged wholly unnecessary and productive of no benefit or advantage to a large part in value of the city and of irreparable injury to the voters.

The complaint closes by asking that the city be enjoined from accepting any bids for bonds or using the proceeds, and against doing anything under the election or creating any additional indebtedness.

George R. Wendling.

Tonight Duluth people will have an opportunity to hear George R. Wendling, the well known lecturer, and will undoubtedly take advantage of it. He will speak at the First Methodist church on "The Man of Galilee." Henry Watterson's paper, the Louisville Courier Journal, says of Wendling:

"Ingersoll uses weapons—ridicule, for instance—which Wendling would scorn to dally with. Ingersoll is intensely animal. Wendling loftily spiritual. Ingersoll shakes his fist in the face of Deity. Wendling reveres the eternal that lies coiled in a little child's soul."

A musicale prelude, consisting of a half hour organ recital, will be given by Arthur G. Drake. He will play four numbers as follows:

"Marche Religieuse" .....Guilmant
War March from Wagner's "Rienzi" ..... Kelley
"Ave Marie," "Cotelloy".....Verdi
Fantasia on Themes, from "Tannhauser" .....Wagner-Morgan

WILL TAKE A JAUNT.

At the council caucus yesterday afternoon the aldermen decided to visit St. Paul a week fromne xt Friday and stay over Saturday. Alderman Howard, who left for the Twin Cities last night, will warn the St. Paulites. Aldermen Mitchell, Ash and Ten Brook have been appointed a committee on transportation and arrangements.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some reading that will prove interesting to young mothers. How to guard against the disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by all druggists.

KEEP PREPARED.

The Slogan of the Business and Professional Man.

The Sure Hope of the Busy Brain-Worker.

The Only Protection of Those Who Work and Toil.

Keep Yourself Strong, Vigorous and Well.

By Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Nothing contributes to sucess like preparation. In every department of human activity this truth is constantly illustrated.

During the war of the Rebellion the issues of battles were quite as often decided by the relative conditions, as by the strength of the forces. The general or commanding officer who was best prepared gained the day; the surprised army was generally routed.

So in our daily affairs, the professional or business man who is constantly prepared for emergencies conquers his circumstances and emerges from every difficulty triumphant, and is a sucess; while the men and women whom events find unprepared are overcome or injured in their several ventures. Preparation is half of any battle in life.

So it is in regard to our health. If we keep our system in a sound condition to meet the various conditions of weather, the prevalent possibilities of contracting disease, and especially the great strain, wear and fatigue of our hurrying, rushing daily life, we are always prepared against these dangers.

The first requisite is pure blood and strong nerves. They command health, and exempt us from the liability of sickness.

Don't neglect it. Don't think because you are comparatively well you are safe. It is not so. The blood needs constant attention. It requires toning, needs correcting often before it gives any sign. The nerve force, nerve energies and strength are being constantly used up in business, pleasure or dissipation, and our brain and nerves require strengthening and invigorating. Keep well and strong by taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, for its chief merit is that it not only cures weakness and disease, but it is a sure preventive of breaking down from overwork or other causes; a sure renewer of strength, power and vigor. It is recognized everywhere as the great-ests medical discovery of the age because of this grand quality. It makes you well and keeps you well.

FREDERICK P. COGGESHALL.

Mr. Frederick P. Coggeshall, the veteran bookseller of Lowell, Mass., used it and it made him well and kept him strong to work, vigorous to think and to plan, full of power, energy and ambition. He says:

"My trouble was an affection of the head. I would go to bed and sleep like an infant all night, but would waken in the morning with a terrible pain in the head, which utterly incapacitated me for business. Getting no relief from remedies tried, a friend recommended me to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I took the advice of my friend, and after taking it for four or five days I began to experience great relief and was soon able to attend to business.

"If restless or troubled with insomnia at night, I always take a dose of Nervura and get immediate relief. The invigorating qualities of this medicine are simply marvelous and after four or five doses I feel all right again. Other members of my family have used the Nervura, and I strongly recommend it to all persons of a nervous temperament, or those suffering from undue mental or physical strain."

Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.

Six weeks ago I suffered with a very severe cold; was almost unable to speak. My friends all advised me to consult a physician. Noticing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised in the St. Paul Volks Zeitung I procured a bottle, and after taking it a short while was entirely well. I now most heartily recommend this remedy to anyone suffering with a cold. William Keil, 678 Selby avenue, St. Paul, Minn. For sale by all druggists.

GAVE HIS WIFE AWAY.

Then Started a Suit for Adultery Against Her.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 12.—One of the most peculiar cases, if the facts are as represented, ever known in a civilized community has come to light by the arrest of two former Sioux Falls people at Fort Dodge, Ia. Two weeks ago J. W. Nesbitt and Mrs. O. H. Woodworth were arrested at Fort Dodge on the charge of adultery, the complaint being sworn to by the husband of Mrs. Woodworth. Neither party denies the charge, and here is where the peculiar part comes in. Nesbitt says that Woodworth gave his wife to him.

A copy of a letter now in the hands of the authorities at Fort Dodge has been received here. It is written by Woodworth to Nesbitt. Among other things saying Nettie has concluded to go and visit you. Take good care of her, for she is a good girl, and will treat you all right, and "dear Jack, I turn my wife, my dear, loving wife, over to you, treat her nicely and all will be well."

There are other peculiar passages which would go to show that Nesbitt's story is true, and that Mrs. Woodworth loved Nesbitt better than her husband, and the latter, knowing this, turned her over to the latter. The letter was received here by Nesbitt in jail.

FATHER MATHEW SOCIETY.

A regular meeting of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence society was held last evening at St. Thomas' school. A communication from the national secretary, which made some valuable suggestions for the local society, was read. The society intends to give a series of temperance lectures during the winter, and also distribute a large amount of temperance literature. The entertainment committee was instructed to arrange for the first lecture about Dec. 1. Bishop McGolrick was present and made a few remarks, and advised the purchase of more literature, which the secretary was instructed to do.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-fifth or silver anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lundberg, was celebrated on Sunday evening at their home, 118 East Third street. About twenty-five of their friends were present and were handsomely entertained. Many beautiful gifts were received. Mr. and Mrs. Lundberg were married in Duluth, and have always lived here.

INTERURBAN SOCIETY.

The Interurban Medical society will meet on Friday evening at the West Superior hotel, in West Superior. This will be the annual meeting, and officers will be elected. Dr. Taylor, of Duluth, will read a paper. The society has been in existence a year, and meetings have been held every second month alternately in the two cities. They have been productive not only of good fellowship, but have materially aided and advanced the members.

EMMA KROEGER'S SUICIDE.

Wasecu, Minn., Nov. 12.—Miss Emma Kroeger, aged 24, and a domestic in the family of B. G. Sutlief, who resides in the town of Wilton, this county, committed suicide yesterday by taking poison. No cause is known. She was around the house at her usual work, apparently as happy as ever. In the afternoon she complained of headache and went to the pantry, took down a tea cup, also a bottle of aconite, a bottle of carbolic acid and a box of paris green, mixing all three in the tea cup into paste and then eating it. Aid was given her, but she died this morning after suffering terribly.

FOR NERVOUSNESS

USE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

Dr. T. G. Comstock, attending physician at Good Samaritan hospital, St. Louis, Mo., says: "We have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia, nervous conditions and nervous diseases. It has the unanimous approval of the medical staff of this hospital."

HINCKLEY PEOPLE MAD.

Hinckley, Minn., Nov. 12.—Great indignation is felt here over the remarks of Mr. Saltzer, one of the speakers at the dedication of a Presbyterian church here Sunday. He said: "The Lord was merciful to other communities by burning the people of Hinckley, thus avoiding contamination." The church people are up in arms. Saltzer is a Sunday school organizer. A public meeting will be held to demand a retraction. The feelings of the persons who lost relatives and friends in the fire are intense.

PHYSICIANS HAVE FOUND OUT

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit, which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact, which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formindable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

MR. UDELL'S LITTLE JOB.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 12.—Alva Udell, a Los Angeles attorney, is here for the purpose of securing warrants for the arrest of the United States soldiers who killed Charles Stewart in this city during the railroad strike a year ago last July. Stewart was not a striker, but was shot when he refused to halt when ordered to do so by the soldiers. He will not tell who is employing him. He has warrants for the arrest of Capt. Roberts, of the artillery, and thirteen other soldiers.

WHAT FOLKS SAY.

DO THEY KNOW WHAT THEY HAVE KIDNEYS FOR?

If They Don't, They Know at Least When They Are Sick, and They Know, When They Are Cured, What Cured Them.

See if the Following Applies to You.

Do you know what your kidneys are for?

They are for filtering and purifying your blood.

Do you suffer from pains in your back and sides, sleeplessness, nervousness, puffiness of your eyelids, swelling of your feet and ankles?

If you do, it is because your kidneys are not purifying your blood.

Bad blood is like bad water. It is poisonous.

But it is made in your blood every minute. It is made from the waste that goes on in your body.

Whenever you move or think you wear out some part of the matter which makes up your body or brain.

This waste matter is of no further use. It is like kitchen garbage. It must be thrown away.

Your blood puts new matter in its place and carries the waste to your kidneys.

Your kidneys filter it out of your blood and throw it out of your body.

That is what your kidneys are for.

This is why Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure blood troubles and kidney troubles. Because they make the kidneys filter the blood.

Here is a letter from a prominent gentleman of Boston. He says:

Boston, Aug. 9, '95.
Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—

It is with great pleasure that I recommend the wonderful medicinal properties of your excellent remedy. I have for years been a great sufferer from acute kidney troubles, and have tried every known medicine without any beneficial results.

Through the advice of a physician I was induced to try Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, and after using the first box I was convinced I had at last found a permanent cure.

I am now perfectly well, and two boxes of Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills is what did it. It would be impossible for me to say too much in their praise.

Very truly yours,
James H. Lynch,
No. 26 Irving street.

Blood troubles don't mean skin diseases only.

They may mean rheumatism, gout, anaemia, chlorosis, pale, bloodless complexion, lack of ambition, headache, dizziness, hysteria, neuralgia, etc.

These diseases are not generally called blood diseases, but they are blood diseases all the same.

They are, because they are caused by a poison in the blood which the kidneys don't properly filter.

The proof of it is that as soon as the kidneys begin to filter the blood all these diseases disappear.

And the best way to cure the kidneys and make them do their work of filtering the blood is to take Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

There is nothing harmful about Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills. Nothing but pure vegetable healing and tonic herbs and roots.

They are recommended by physicians and specialists who have tested them and found out their great curative powers, and thousands of people who have been cured by Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, after they had given up all hope, will always continue to sing their praises.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Annual Convention Begins at Washington Today.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The nineteenth annual convention of the Knights of Labor will begin here today. The session will continue for about ten days, but all business transacted will be guarded with the utmost secrecy, not even the Knights of Labor, other than the delegates or alternates, being allowed admission. On the coming Saturday evening a grand reception and banquet will be held. On this occasion many addresses will be made by prominent knights.

General Master Workman Sovereign is here and expresses himself as being very much encouraged. He thinks the progress of the Knights of Labor is more marked at present than ever before, and that the increase of membership, in the face of the hard times, is exceedingly gratifying. One of the important subjects to be discussed at the convention will be the attitude of the members toward political parties during the coming campaign. While the Populists have embodied many of the principles of the Knights in their platform, the latter think that, in view of their voting strength, the organization should go further. A large number of delegates are in the city.

IT MAY DO AS MUCH FOR YOU.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good results. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50 cents. At Duluth Drug company's drug store.

Cases Where Assessments for Improvements Are Not Levied.

Instances In Which This Can Prove to Be a Disadvantage.

If the Suit Is Won the Board Can Well Feel Uneasy.

A short time ago when the board of public works reported to the council a number of assessments which had failed for lack of confirmation, there were some omissions from the report, which do not read very favorably to the board. They are embodied in the partial reports prepared by Alderman French, under the direction of the council, and consist of contracts made and improvements completed for which no assessments were ever levied, and others on which a single and final assessment was levied long after the award of contract and the completion of the work.

Under the city charter a first assessment of 75 per cent should be levied immediately after the contract is awarded and the final assessment should be made immediately upon the completion of the work. The contractors are paid in city orders or improvement certificates, upon which the city pays 7 per cent interest from the date of issue until the assessment is finally levied. In case of failure or delay to assess the interest must be paid from the over burdened general fund and the city is a loser to that extent.

It is decidedly embarrassing to a person who purchases property to be called upon to pay assessments which should have been levied months, if not years, before. And yet this is frequently the case. It is especially annoying in that it is illegal under the charter, and on the authority of the city attorney.

LIABLE FOR NEGLECT.

According to the city charter, under the chapter relating to local improvements and special assessments, a city officer who neglects to perform any duty enjoined upon him by this chapter, or who shall consent or connive at any evasion of its provisions, whereby any proceedings required by this chapter shall be prevented or hindered, shall be liable to the city for such neglect or refusal, individually, upon his official bond for double the amount involved.

It is under this section that City Attorney Cant is now proceeding against the board of public works to recover $414.56, or double the loss alleged to have been sustained by the city through the neglect of the board to levy an assessment for the construction of a sanitary sewer between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues west, for which the contract was awarded on April 18, 1895. Should this be a good claim in law as well as in reason, the board of public works will find themselves scratching to settle for many other cases of a similar nature were unearthed by the investigations of Alderman French, whose work was cut short by illness. In consequence, but a partial report has been placed in City Attorney Cant's hands, but among its items are some which are liable to cause the board trouble.

SOME OF THOSE MISSING.

The following taken at random from the report serve as an instance:

A portion of Minnesota avenue was ordered improved and contract let for $3775 on Oct. 16, 1894. No assessment has ever been made.

The contract for building a culvert on Twenty-sixth avenue west, from Michigan street to Superior street, and from Superior street to First street, was let April 8, 1895. The assessment amounting to $5966.70 has never been made.

The contract for improving New street, from Seventeenth to Eighteenth avenues west, amounting to $2358, was let in May, 1895. No assessment has yet been made.

The contract for building a sewer in Ralston street, from Forty-third avenue east to London road, was let May 18, 1895. No assessment has yet been made. $2030.50.

The contract for improving Seventy-first avenue west, from the St. Paul & Duluth tracks to Raleigh street, was let July 3, 1895. No assessment. $1666.

The contract for improving Orange street, from Highland avenue to the west line of Duluth Heights, was let July 10, 1895. No assessment. Amount, $6429.38.

The contract for improving Twenty-eighth avenue west to west line of bridge at Forty-seventh avenue west, was let Aug. 7, 1895. No assessment. Amount, $4056.66.

The contract for improving Palm street, from Arlington avenue to the west line of Duluth Heights, was let Aug. 13, 1895. No assessment. Amount, $6484.13.

The contract for constructing the sewer in First alley, from Washington avenue to Eighth avenue east, together with improvements aggregating $957.25, was let July 31, 1895. No assessment.

A final assessment of $2731.88 for improving Norton avenue, from the south line of the Sixth division to State street, has yet to be made.

A final assessment of $3019.78 for improving Second avenue west, from the south line of Sixth division to State street, has yet to be made.

A final assessment of $1720.48 for improving Main street, from Fourth avenue west to First avenue east, has yet to be made.

THE COURT FILINGS.

The case of John M. Williams against the Standard Ore company has been dismissed by stipulation. Judge Morris has filed findings in favor of W. F. Fortune against Andrea Furni for $55.76 for goods.

STUCKEY INDICTED.

Amount He Is Charged With Taking Is $4,500.

The grand jury finished its work yesterday and was formally discharged in the afternoon after returning three more indictments. The most important indictment was against Charles H. Stuckey, charging him with grand larceny in the first degree.

The indictment alleges that on Oct. 16, 1895, Stuckey, as cashier of the State bank, had in his possession in that capacity the sum of $11,000, and that upon that day he unlawfully embezzled the sum of $4500. It is not stated what became of the remaining $6500.

Harry Smith for stealing a quantity of merchandise and $51 from Panton & Watson was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. Mike Peterelle was indicted for assault in the second degree for attacking Thomas Coperell at Kelsey with a knife.

County Attorney Arbury has recovered from his slight siege of illness, and he will be on hand to try this term's criminal business. The criminal term will probably be longer than the civil jury calendar if all the cases on the calendar are ready to come to trial.

Elmer Halling, D. Ward Kennedy, A. F. James and Jacob Larson were arraigned yesterday afternoon and given until this afternoon to plead. Larson was admitted to ball in the sum of $500.

Before Judge Moer this morning the case of J. J. Wilson against P. G. Kraemer et al was still on trial, and Judge Morris was trying the case of John Grant against the Missabe road. Judge Ensign was indisposed so Judge Morris occupied his room, and there was no court in room 3.

Heating the Armory.

A few weeks ago the drill hall in the Howard block was leased until May 1, 1896, at a monthly rental of $75. The place is not heated and lacks a chimney. An adjoining laundry furnished the steam last year for $15 per month. Now the laundry man has decided the sum is insufficient and demands $30 a month for heat.

The matter came up at the council caucus yesterday, and a number of the aldermen were decidedly in favor of the erection of an armory by the city. Alderman Trevillion waxed indignant at the laundryman and proposed to put in a stove and run the pipe through the window. The matter was laid over until the next council meeting.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

The ministers met yesterday and decided to hold union thanksgiving services at the First Baptist church. Dr. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon, and the pastors of a number of the churches will participate. Rev. C. H. Patton, of Pilgrim Congregational church, will preach at West Duluth in Westminster Presbyterian church.

The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. The Centurion's Cargo Was Released This Morning.

The cargo of the steamer Centurion, which was libeled about ten days ago by the steamer Penobscot, which boat claimed $20,000 for saving the Centurion, has been released and will be turned over to the owners tomorrow. It has been in the hands of the United States marshal for a week or more, but as it was expected that a proper bond would be given by the owner, the marshal made no disposition of it.

A bond was finally drawn up and taken to Collector Olund, who approved it. The attorney for the libellant refused to accept his approval, however, claiming that Judge Nelson must approve it, he being in the district and acting in the case. This caused a hitch in the proceedings, but yesterday afternoon the attorneys got together and last night they went to St. Paul with a bond for Judge Nelson to approve, which he did this morning. The amount is $40,000. United States Marshal O'Connor came up last evening and returned on the night train.

LOW WATER TROUBLES.

Washington, Nov. 12.—In answer to a circular letter of inquiry the naval hydrographic officer has received a report from the Superior branch, touching low water in the lakes. The commander of the City of Duluth reported that the only difficulty he experienced on his last trip was in coming down the Sault Ste. Marie river when bottom was touched, near Sailors' Encampment. A good deal of trouble, however, was reported from St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, but 16½ feet of water being found in the former.

NOT YET DECIDED.

The Herald was misinformed yesterday regarding the court's decision in the case of Isabella J. Schofield against the Gas and Water company. It appears that the court did not pass upon the question of whether the company could collect for the back water rent of a former occupant or not. The application for a restraining order was denied, and the case will come up for trial upon its merits.

Although many remedies are pushed into the market by spicy advertisements, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup still takes the lead.

DE CAMPOS WILL REMAIN.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The minister of war, Gen. A. Z. Carrega, declares that the rumors circulated in connection with the proposed retirement of Capt. Gen. Martinez de Campos, from conducting the operations against the insurgents of the island of Cuba, are entirely without foundation. The government has never for a moment considered the question of calling De Campos in and he retains the entire confidence of the ministers and the queen regent. The minister of justice expresses his entire approval of the military and political course followed by De Campos.

WORK

There Is Always Plenty of It for the Western Congressmen.

Mr. Towne Will Have His Full Share from the Outlook.

Some Bills That Should Be Brought Up at Next Session.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. Towne will find a number of important local matters awaiting his attention when he takes his seat at the opening of the Fifty-fourth congress. Representative Baldwin, at the last session, made considerable of a record in the matter of introducing bills, and was tolerably successful in gettting them through the house. Some of the most important to the interests of the Sixth district, however, either did not pass the house or else were sidetracked in the senate, and these Congressman Towne will have to look after at the coming session. It is a well understood fact that the member who is most successful in securing igislation for his district is the one who introduces his bills early in the session. The second session is so short that little is usually done besides passing the regular appropriation bills, and it takes an experienced member to get through any sort of private measure.

One of the most important of the bills introduced by Mr. Baldwin was an act for the sale of the pine lands upon the White Earth, Red Lake and other Chippewa reservations. This bill passed the house, but Senator Davis refused to permit it to go through the senate until he was satisfied as to the claim of the state of Minnesota to school lands on the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections of these reservations. The bill could be amended so as to provide for reserving the pine upon these sections until the status of the state's claim could be settled, however, and doubtless Senator Davis would then withdraw his opposition to the measure. Baldwin's bill provided for the sale of this pine in forty acre parcels.

Another measure which seemed to have had the indorsement of everybody concerned, but which failed of passage owing to the economical policy of the last congress, was that providing for the establishment of a branch hydrographic office at Duluth. The chief hydrographer, as well as officials of the navy department, were anxious to have this bill passed, and there was no opposition to it in congress. At the last moment, however, Mr. Sayers, of the appropriations committee, decided that the government could not afford the luxury of another establishment of this sort during the hard times of last year, and so the bill was not brought up in the house at all. The annual report of the hydrographer recently published strongly recommends a branch office at Duluth. With such a prestige, Mr. Towne should have no difficulty in getting the small appropriation necessary to carry out the project.

A bill was also introduced at the last session appropriating $10,000 for the establishing of an assay office in the government building at Duluth, and owing to the development of the mines in the Rainy Lake region the director of the mint could doubtless be induced to recommend this bill at the coming session. There is no assay office in that section and considerable inconvenience is caused miners owing to this fact.

The project of the Altamonte Water company may also be brought up in congress again next winter. Mr. Towne was in Washington last winter while this bill was under consideration, but did not commit himself either one way or the other on the measure, so that it is not known whether he would introduce and champion a bill for the Altamonte company or not. It is certain, however, that no such measure as that introduced by Maj. Baldwin can pass the house in the face of the opposition of such men as Representatives Tawney, Kiefer, Cannon and many other Northwestern members. Mr. Reed voted for it at the last session and would doubtless give time for the consideration of the bill, but if it passes the house it must be in a greatly modified form.

Of course, Mr. Towne's most important duty will be to see that his district does not get left when the river and harbor bill is formulated. It is known that he is desirous of securing a place on the river and harbor committee, and if he does, naturally Duluth will be well taken care of so far as waterway improvements are concerned. These are only a few of the many important matters that will demand the attention of the new congressman from the Sixth district at the coming session, and it will be thus seen that he will be a busy man if he looks after nothing else but the local needs of his district. This he will not be able to do, as many important national questions will come up to which he will doubtless be inclined to give considerable attention. A congressman from the West, if he does his duty, does not have the sinecure that some people imagine.

Housekeepers of all nations unite in praise of Price's cream baking powder.

ANOTHER BLOW AT FOOTBALL.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13.—A great commotion has been caused at Harvard by the announcement that the faculty has requested Capt. Brewer, of the 'varsity football eleven, to refrain from taking part in any football contests during the remainder of the season. In other words, the faculty has placed him on what is termed "athletic probation" for neglecting his studies. The students characterized the action as another blow to football. Capt. Brewer will play in practice and do all he can to aid the team.

WARD WANTS HIS NAME ERASED.

New York, Nov. 13.—Ex-Capt. John M. Ward has sent a communication to the board of directors of the National league asking that his name be removed from the reserve list of the New York club. He bases his claim on the ground that according to the rules a contract should have been proffered to him at the close of the season of 1894. As this was not done Ward claims that he is released. He also insists that the keeping of his name on the list hurts his standing as a lawyer as it gives the impression that he has not permanently retired from baseball.

EXILES RETURNING.

Pardoned Hawaiians Return to Their Native Land.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—The Occidental and Oriental steamship Coptic, Capt. Lindsay, arrived last night from the Orient and Hawaii. Among her passengers was Mr. Hatch, late minister of foreign affairs at Hawaii. Mr. Hatch did not have much to report. All of the exiles, with a few exceptions, have been pardoned, and many of them are returning to the country, late steamers bringing several.

Ex-Queen Liliuokalani has been ill, it was reported, but her sickness was not regarded as being serious. The cholera had disappeared, but its lesson remained. The drainage of Honolulu has been almost perfect; creeks have been walled up to stop overflowing and swamps have been cleaned up. Business was badly depressed by the cholera, but with the removal of quarantine embargos it was improving. The situation as to the government was absolutely unchanged. Mr. Hatch will join his wife here at San Francisco.

Another passenger of importance was Maj. Subolitch, of the Russian army. He talks of commerce and industrial developments, attaching the greatest importance to the trans-Siberian railway. He says that Russia plans the establishment of great fish canneries on the Asiatic coast. Their operation means competition with the United States fishing interests. The general was accompanied by his wife.

BURNED OUT.

Fire in Bozeman Tunnel Lasted Nine Weeks.

Livingston, Mont., Nov. 13.—The fire in the Bozeman tunnel which has been raging furiously for the past nine weeks, has at last burned itself out. The tunnel is now about clear of smoke and deadly gases and nothing much but steam is at present issuing from either end. A force of men has been put to work and as the tunnel cools sufficiently the task of cleaning it out will be commenced.

The fire has caused several very bad caves and thousands of tons of rock have fallen on the track. This obstruction will be removed as fast as possible, temporary timbering will be put in. It is expected that this work will take two months or more, but as soon as it is completed trains will be run through the mountain again.

The Northern Pacific, it is stated has decided to line and arch the entire tunnel with solid brick masonry. The work, however, will not interfere with the use of the tunnel.

NAIL MILL FIRE.

Morning Fire in Quaker City With Big Damages.

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Fire which broke out in the wire nail factory of Townsend & Co., Glenwood avenue and Third street, early this morning, destroyed the building, stock and machinery. Loss $150,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire orliginated in the eastern end of the building on the first floor, but could not be told what caused it. There were twenty-six nail machines, ranging in value from $500 to $1000, and spike machines worth from $3000 to $5000 each in the building. A number of new machines were to have been installed next week. About 200 persons were employed.

BUILD MANY CARS.

New Contracts Further Encourage the Iron Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The Industrial World will tomorrow say: "The iron market continues quiet and generally steady for pig metal, but as the demand for cars is active, the inquiry for manufactured iron and steel is well maintained. Contracts for at least 2000 cars were placed last week andorders for 3000 early this week, to be gotten out as soon as possible. The iron, axles, springs, malleables, etc., required to build and equip this amount of rolling stock will aggregate a heavy tonnage for quick delivery. The recent election results have imparted a more cheerful and stronger tone to the iron market generally."

'FRISCO NOT TO BE OUTDONE.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Arrangements are now well under way for the second big horse show, which opens in this city Dec. 3. The exhibit will be continued for five days, and each afternoon and evening an elaborate program will be carried out. The display of thoroughbreds will not only be a feature from a turf standpoint, but will be the main social function of the season. The society people are all interested in the venture, and of the 100 boxes ninety-four have already been sold. One feature will be the four-in-hand display, for which there are ten entries. Special prizes have been offered for almost every class.

Housekeepers, careful of health and wealth, use Price's baking powder.

AMERICAN ART EXHIBIT ABROAD.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The artists of Germany are to have a show of paintings and scriptures at the same time that Berlin makes her exposition of industrial objects to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the foundation of the royal academy of arts. It will be an international exhibition and United States Consul De Kay who reports the facts to the state department is endeavoring to facilitate the exhibition of the work of American artists.

NOT WORTH THE INSURANCE.

London, Nov. 13.—The proceedings in the suit brought by Dr. Herring to recover $15,000 insurance by the loss of his schooner-yacht Mohican were continued this morning. Two yacht brokers testified that they could replace the Mohican for less than $5000.

JOHN B. DRAKE DEAD.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—John B. Drake died tonight of paralysis of the heart. For years he was manager of the Grand Pacific hotel and had amassed a large fortune in the hotel business, and was one of the best known and most successful men in his line in the country.

UNFAIR

The St. James Gazette Says as Much of Lord Dunraven.

He Should Come Here and Prove His Charges or Retract.

Came Here Expecting Trickery and It Became a Mania With Him.

London, Nov. 13.—Headed "Should Dunraven Apologize?" the St. James Gazette this afternoon publishes a leading article in which it again severely criticizes his lordship. It says: "Lord Dunraven arrived in New York with the preconceived idea that the Defender was going to play this trick upon him and having expected it was going to be done, he found an easy way to convince himself."

The article concludes: "Let Lord Dunraven return to New York and assist the New York Yacht club committee in its investigation. If he can prove it, we know the Americans well enough to believe that they will acknowledge he has been wronged. If he does not prove it, the accuser owes Mr. Iselin and others a very handsome apology. Otherwise we are afraid that most people will think that temper and mortification betrayed him into behaving badly."

The Yachting World says that British yachtsmen "will want more than merely idle assertions before they disbelieve Lord Dunraven." And adds: "The whole history of the cup contests is one of jugglery upon the part of the Americans who are not the best of sportsmen."

The Press Association sends out the following paragraph: "Lord Dunraven declines to see any press men with reference to his pamphlet, or to notice in any way the attacks provoked thereby. He absolutely adheres to all the statements contained therein.

EAT ROAST OX.

Commercial Travelers Entertained at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13.—Drummers' day at the exposition brought 5000 commercial travelers to the city. The exercises consisted of a street parade of the drummers and gorgeously decorated floats representing their business interests fitly. At the exposition there was a Commercial Travelers' congress at which many matters of interest to the commercial South were discussed. Afterward there was a barbecue for the drummers and their friends at which 5000 people were fed.

The International League of Press Clubs, 100 strong, are in Atlanta and tomorrow will hold a congress. Today they held a preliminary meeting to discuss their program for the day. The majority of the members came in special sleepers from the East and their numbers are being added to by the arrival of every train.

OBJECT TO PAYING INTEREST.

New York, Nov. 13.—A bill of exceptions has been filed by the American Loan and Trust company, of Boston, to the report of Judge Cornish, master in chancery, which favored the payment of the interest due Feb. 1, 1895, on Oregon Short Line first mortgage 6s and the interest January and July, 1895, on the Utah Northern first mortgage 7s.

DEATH OF DR. S. A. KEAN.

Delaware, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Rev. Dr. Samuel Ashton Kean, a noted evangelist and author, widely known in religious circles throughout the United States is dead from heart disease, aged 53 years. Dr. Kean was well known as the author of "Faith Papers," "Praise Papers" and "Pentecostal Papers," which have gone into many thousands of homes and religious libraries.

KILLED THE ENGINEER.

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 13.—A wreck on the Cleveland, Lorraine & Wheeling railway at Warwick, fifteen miles south of here, resulted in the death of one man. The engineer on stopping whistled for a flag man to be sent out. The conductor, Charles Ernest, and Brakeman John Adams were asleep and did not hear the signal. The second ran into the first at the rate of twenty miles. The loss will be about $20,000.

JUMPED HIS BAIL.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 13.—W. H. Carr, ex-deputy United States marshal, has jumped his $15,000 bond and is now said to be in Mexico or South America. He was charged with murder in assisting Bob and Bill Christian, the outlaws, to escape from jail, Chief of Police Jones being killed at the time.

LIVELY TIMES AT TAHLEQUAH.

Tahlequah, I. T., Nov. 13.—The largest crowd that ever assembled in this city is here, the occasion being the Cherokee legislature and the convening of the first United States court that was ever held here. Judge William M. Springer is presiding. The court is burdened with a large docket.

MYSTERIOUS DOUBLE MURDER.

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 13.—A woman and child were found murdered near here last night. The murderer this morning killed himself. He registered at his hotel C. Z. Shinier and family. He had nearly $1700 in bills on his person. The woman had previously said she was from St. Louis. The man said he was going to Monterey as superintendent of the railway shops there. Mystery surrounds the affair and the authorities are investigating.

TWO N. P. RECEIVERS.

That the Plan and Burleigh Will Be One.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 13.—The special train bearing Receiver Burleigh, of the Northern Pacific, and his party arrived here late last night. The party consisted of Judge C. H. Hanford, President Rolston, of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, and Counsel H. B. Turner, of New York; ex-Senator John C. Spooner, of Wisconsin; George R. Peck, of Milwaukee, counsel for the Adams committee; Silas W. Pettit, counsel for the Brayton Ives board of directors; W. A. Underwood, of New York, counsel for Receiver Burleigh; W. D. Tyler, president of the Washington and Columbia River railroad. It was learned from an authoritative source that Receiver Burleigh is certain of being one of the probable two receivers, and that it is also probable that Judges Gilbert and Hanford's court here will be the court of primary jurisdiction.

Judge Hanford would not discuss these details, but said: "The details of what was done at Portland yesterday cannot for many reasons be made public. However, I can say this: These people, namely the representatives of the Adams committee, the Farmers' Loan and Trust company and the Northern Pacific Railroad company, have come out from the East with their desires formulated in a request which they intend to present to all the federal courts having jurisdiction over the Northern Pacific property. It is their intention to start here and present this request to the courts from here East.

"The nature of the request will not be made public until it is finally presented to the court at New York. These gentlemen had a consultation with Judge Gilbert and myself at Portland and presented the request. They are now on their way East to present it to the other judges."

While crossing the Columbia river on the transfer boat, ex-United States Senator Spooner fell from a car step, his abdomen striking a projecting rod. He suffered great pain, and some feared he was injured internally. The injury proves not necessarily serious, but Senator Spooner will be compelled to remain quiet for several days.

HOPEFUL FOR M'KINLEY.

Senator Sherman Thinks His Nomination Assured.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13.—The following letter has been received by Col. H. G. Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times, from John Sherman in response to a congratulatory note in reference to the latter's determination to lend his assistance in leading the Republican forces in favor of McKinley:

"Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C., Nov. 7, 1895.

"Col. H. G. Otis: Your note of the 29th ulto., is received for which please accept my hearty thanks. The recent elections have cleared the political sky and I believe fairly open a way for the nomination of Maj. McKinley. He will be heartily supported from Ohio and I trust be nominated and elected. Very truly yours, John Sherman."

ANY QUANTITY OF SWAG.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13.—The police have recovered $141,600 more in stocks and bonds from the home of James Stevens Chaffee, who was arrested for receiving stolen property. Among the certificates are Nos. 55 and 56 for twenty shares in the C. N. Nelson Lumber company, of St. Paul and Cloquet, Minn. Documentary evidence was also found that the stocks had been turned over to Chaffee by William Barrett, the notorious burglar, and his wife. Chaffee claims the exchange was in consideration of heavy sums spent in Barrett's defense in court. Some of the articles have been identified by the widow of the late Millionaire Frederick L. Ames as having been stolen from her home several years ago, and also from the home of ex-Governor Oliver Ames. Many other articles have been identified by their owners.

BIG ORIENTAL TRADE IN REACH.

Washington, Nov. 13.—United States Consul Jernigan, in a report to the state department on labor and wages in China, urges the merchants of America to be ready to seize upon the splendid opportunities for trade that are sure to follow the approaching awakening of China. He shows how at present the trade balance is $35,000,000 against us in the case of Japan and China, while Great Britain, several thousand miles more distant, had an equal balance in her favor. The consul general holds that the European merchant is much more favored than his American competitor by the government aid afforded to the great steamship lines. Mr. Jernigan argues for the cutting of the Nicaragua canal, the establishing of an American bank in China, and an American journal.

TREATMENT OF VETERANS.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Nov. 13.—The Northwestern Soldiers Home association met here today in its first annual session. Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota, Colorado, Kansas, and Iowa are represented, and delegates from several other states are expected. Sessions continue two or three days. Never has or never will outlive its usefulness—Dr. Price's baking powder.

RAILWAY BUILDING IN GERMANY.

Washington, Nov. 13.—According to Commercial Agent More, at Weimer, Germany, there were constructed in Europe during 1894, 4190 miles of new railways, Russia showing the greatest gain, with 678 miles. In fast express trains England leads with an average of speed of 61.75 miles per hour, with Germany a close second, 51.25.

GROVER AS A FISH CHARMER.

Washington, Nov. 13.—A man giving his name as Thurman Hillyer and his home in Missouri was taken in charge by the police at the White House this morning. He said he was being chased by a sword fish, and desired the president's protection. His sanity will be inquired into.

ITALY'S SMALL LEMON YIELD.

Washington, Nov. 13.—United States Consul Dean, at Naples, reports to the state department that the Italian orange and lemon crop will be less than last year, or two-thirds of the average, and the same is true of all citrous fruits.

ADMITTED TO PRACTICE.

Washington, Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Lee, of Duluth, has been admitted to practice before the interior department as agent in land cases.

CAVALRY

Troop Ready to Be Sent to Protect Colorado Settlers.

Serious Uprising of the Southern Utes Is Apprehended.

Killing May Provoke Them to Take the Warpath.

Washington, Nov. 13.—At the request of the interior department, Gen. Wheaton, commanding the department of Colorado, has been instructed to hold a troop of cavalry in readiness to dispatch if necessary to the scene of the killing of the two Ute Indians.

FEARS FOR SETTLERS.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—A special to the Republican from Rico, Col., says: No definite information can be obtained as to the particulars of the murder of the two Ute bucks and one squaw in the vicinity of Platen creek or Lost Canon, and fears are entertained of an outbreak of the Southern Utes, who are in that part of the country. Grave fears are entertained for the safety of settlers, and inquiries have been sent for friends there, and warning sent others to look to their safety and return to Durango at the earliest possible moment. A serious outbreak was feared among the Utes, who are off their reservation, and it is believed that the murders were provoked either by slaughtering game or theft of stock.

CASTILLO AT FAULT.

Havana Papers Say Only His Resignation Will Suffice.

Havana, Nov. 13.—Diaro Del Marin, the leading reformist organ of Cuba publishes an editorial today in which it makes a strong attack upon Senor Canovas Del Castillo, the Spanish premier, directly insinuating that Capt. Gen. Martinez De Campos is backing his policy. The article also makes strong charges against the present policy of favoring the conservatives and says:

"Only the resignation of Canovas Del Castillo can save us. The rebellion was started in a small portion of the province of Santiago De Cuba, and by the policy adopted has increased, sweeping like a wave into the provinces of Puerto Pricipe, Santa Clara and Matanzas, and even the province of Pinar Del Rio is threatened."

This article has caused great discussion as nobody thought anyone would dare to attack Martinez De Campos and call public attention to the importance of the rebellion. The article under the circumstances is considered unpatriotic and has caused great indignation in some quarters.

Nothing helps to improve the table so much as Dr. Price's baking powder.

JEFFEREY NOT TO RETIRE.

New York, Nov. 13.—President Jefferey and George Coppell, chairman of the board of directors of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad have arrived in this city, after a trip over the system. Mr. Coppell reports the physical and financial condition of the property to be excellent and estimates a surplus for October over all charges from $40,000 to $150,000.

Mr. Coppell authorized the statement that Mr. Jefferey had no idea of leaving the Rio Grande to take the presidency of the Atchison. He has never been a candidate for the position and is largely interested in the Denver & Rio Grande property.

RIOTS IN VIENNA.

Populace Resents Emperor's Removal of Dr. Lueger.

Vienna, Nov. 13.—Dr. Lueger, the antisemite leader in the reichsrath, who was re-elected burgomaster of this city on Oct. 29 last, and whose election Emperor Francis refused to sanction, was again re-elected today, in accordance with his announced intention of having himself elected over and over again until the government yields its approval to his election.

Lueger intimated his readiness to accept the office, whereupon Dr. Fribels, president of the imperial council, which was appointed in May last to administer the municipal affairs of the city on account of the abolition for the time of the municipal body, announced on behalf of the lieutenant governor the dissolution of the civic council.

The members of the body quitted the hall amid great excitement and were greeted with tremendous cheers from the crowd of people assembled outside. The demonstration lasted for some time, and the police were eventually compelled to make several arrests and disperse the gathering.

A mob of about 100 men afterward proceeded to the Imperial Hapsburg, the palace of the Austrian princes since the thirteenth century, shouting, "Long live Lueger." The police stopped the main body from engaging in this demonstration, but some of them succeeded in forcing their way into the palace grounds, from which they were eventually ejected by the life guards.

SHOOT

Lord Douglass Threatens To Take His Wife's Life.

Her Ladyship's Mother Appears and Stirs Things Up Badly.

Domestic Troubles of Transplanted Blue Blood Magnify at Los Angeles.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—An Examiner Los Angeles special says: Lord Sholto Douglass last evening threatened to take the life of his wife. In the corridor of the Ardmore in highly pitched tones, he informed Lady Douglass that if she entered her mother's room he would shoot her. Lady Douglass was cool and collected during all this loud talk and did exactly what he told her not to do. She went to her mother's room and talked with her. Lord Douglass did not shoot her, nor did he make any attempt to.

Mrs. M. Mooney arrived in Los Angeles yesterday. There was no one to meet her. She had given it out that she was coming here for war and it certainly seems as though she had told what she had come for. Mrs. Mooney proceeded to the Burbank theater and in the corridor she met her daughter, Lady Douglass. The meeting was very cordial. After a brief conversation, Lady Douglass proceeded with her mother to a hotel where Mrs. Mooney engaged a suite of rooms.

At the usual hour Lady Dougless appeared at the stage door of the Burbank theater, but Lord Sholto was not with her. She was accompanied by her mother. The stage doorkeeper admitted both ladies. Shortly after Lord Sholto turned up. As soon as he heard where Mrs. Mooney was, he became greatly enraged. Manager Frauley was told to go and invite her to leave. He did so. Mrs. Mooney said it was all right and that she would stay. Manager Frauley then said that Mrs. Mooney must leave the dressing room.

There was no much. Lady Douglass was loyal to her filial affection. Drawing herself up to her full height she said with great dramatic power that where her mother could not stay, she would not. Then Lady Douglass withdrew to her dressing room, packed up her belongings with the aid of her mother and left the theater. Lord Sholto, who had during the interval been prancing around behind the scenes, trailed behind. When Lady Douglass arrived at the hotel his lordship went in after her and then he made the threat to shoot her, but he evidently reconsidered his words. Hostilities ceased for the while, but they were resumed today. At least that is what Mrs. Mooney says and Mrs. Mooney knows.

NO TRUTH IN IT.

Defender's Crew Says Dunraven's Charge Is False.

New York, Nov. 13.—A local paper prints a statement from Capt. F. P. Wood, of Green's Landing, Maine, the man who selected the crew for Defender. The statement follows:

"Since reading Dunraven's report, I have interviewed some twenty of Defender's crew, all honorable men, and every one of them says there was not a change made in ballast or trim after Defender was measured for the race. When this crew left Deer Isle to join Defender, I told them that they had an honorable enemy to fight. If I had said, 'you have a mad school boy to fight,' I should have come much nearer the truth."

In an interview with some of the crew, they testify that "we, the undersigned members of Defender's crew, wish to say that there is no truth in Dunraven's report in regard to change of ballast or trim of the yacht Defender after she was measured for the race. We are in hope that in '96 England will send a true sportsman, with lots of sand in him to fight us for the cup.

Unequal to Family Duties--No Appetite

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Strength and Courage to Work.

"I was in such condition I could not walk even about the house to attend to household duties and care for my children and family. I did not have the strength of a child. I was treated by several physicians, who pronounced my trouble Scrofula and Female Weakness. I could eat only a slice of bread and drink a cup of tea, three times a day. Sometimes I could stand a soft boiled egg for dinner. I became reduced to skin and bones; at last they had to draw me about the house seated in a rocking chair. I was in a terrible state when my husband, having noticed advertisements of Hood's

SUSPENSE

All Parties in Turkey Hoping for Action by the Powers.

Army in Revolt Because of No Money or Food.

French and Italian Warships Set Sail for the Rendezvous.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

Constantinople, Nov. 13.—The Turkish minister for foreign affairs, Tewfik Pasha, replied today to the notes of the diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, Russia and France, assuring them, as he had previously assured the ambassadors of Germany, Austria and Italy "that the Turkish government's statement as to what measures it intends to take for the suppression of the disorders in Asia Minor will be presented to the ambassadors without delay."

Another complication seems likely to arise, which may give the sultan further excuse for inaction. The Hali Rifat ministry is said to be tottering and another cabinet change is likely to occur at any time.

The rumors concerning the possible deposition of Abdul Hamid are still current, but the statement that the imperial yacht is lying off the palace with steam up intimating that the sultan is preparing to seek safety by flight, is a weak fabrication. The imperial yacht is sadly out of repair and is laid up for the winter. The statement published in the United States that there has been trouble at Angora and Palu and that 1000 Armenians there have been massacred is also a clumsy invention. No news of a disturbance of any kind has reached here from Angora or Palu.

In the meanwhile fresh disturbances are reported from Malaitah, where a number of persons have been killed, including four priests of the Society of Jesus, who were under French protection. The French ambassador, M. Cambon, has been appealed to and is preparing a very strong representation on the subject for the porte. A squadron of five French warships has sailed from Smyrna for Turkish waters, and it is stated that an Italian fleet will rendezvous with the British fleet within a few days. There has been most serious trouble at Caesarea, not far from Jerusalem, but no details of the rioting have yet reached this city.

A great panic prevails at Moosh, owing to the Kurdish movement. All those who can are hastily fleeing from the city and neighborhood. Many people are reported to have been robbed and murdered while fleeing. The Kurds are said to be in arms throughout the district. Troops, it is claimed by the authorities, are being hurried to the spot.

Replying to the inquiry of the United States ambassador, Mr. Terrell, as to the safety of the American missionaries, Commissioner Darnham has telegraphed from Harput saying that the missionaries are alive, but in extreme danger. Mr. Terrell has informed Tewfik Pasha that the government will be held responsible for the safety of the Americans. The Turkish minister for foreign affairs has assured Mr. Terrell that everything possible will be done for their protection. As Mr. Terrell has great influence with the palace authorities it may be presumed that Tewfik Pasha will keep his word.

The most serious state of affairs still prevails at Zeitoun, where the Armenians recently captured a battalion of Turkish troops with their arms, ammunition and supplies, and afterward occupied the barracks and all the strategic positions in and about that city. The government is striving very hard to prevail upon the Armenians there to lay down their arms promising that they shall not be in any way molested if they return to their homes and surrender the Turkish soldiers they hold prisoners, with their arms, etc. But the Armenians have so frequently been the victims of similar promises that it is not considered likely that they will give up their prisoners or the positions they hold. In this case some desperate fighting may shortly take place as a large force of Turkish regulars and reserves are moving rapidly upon Zeitoun. The captured soldiers it is known have been well treated by the Armenians much to the surprise of the authorities here, who expected that they would be killed.

The Turkish minister for the interior, Memduh Pasha, has issued instructions to the provincial officials to carefully watch all public conveyances passing in and out of the boundaries of their districts for arms, ammunition and seditious literature, quantities of which are reported to have been smuggled into different parts of the empire recently.

The Turkish officials claim that some Armenians recently captured in arms against the sultan had Russian rifles and ammunition in their possession. This is not thought extraordinary here, as it has been known for a year past that the Armenians have been obtaining arms from the Russian provinces. But the Turks are trying to make much of this in their usual tactics of playing one country against another.

The distribution of revolutionary literature throughout Asia Minor is being carried on extensively in spite of the precautions taken by the Turkish governors, and not a day passes without incendiary placards being torn down by the police here and in all the big cities. There seems to be no doubt that the spirit of revolution is spreading even among the old Turks, and the young Turkish party is said to be ripe for a revolt.

The greatest trouble under which the porte seems to be laboring is the great difficulty it is experiencing in carrying out the military measures decided upon in Asia Minor. The financial situation here is pretty nearly as bad as it can be, and there seems to be no possibility of improving it. Even suppose a big new Turkish loan could be raised, which is unlikely, the money would as usual, it is believed, be turned into other than legitimate channels, and in a short time the situation would be as bad as ever. This condition of affairs is particularly aggravating on account of the spread of revolts in certain provinces, particularly in Syria, where the rellefs who were recently called upon to join the army stubbornly refused to leave their houses. It is claimed in official Turkish circles here that the refusal is due to their fear of being attacked by the Fruses; but the real reason seems to be that they are almost certain to have to serve without pay and on short rations. The government is undoubtedly in a very bad position, and, as already intimated, another change of ministry is impending.

The army needs money for pay, equipment and provisions, and the same state of affairs prevails in the navy. But the arrears of pay are not forthcoming, and there is much grumbling in consequence, except among the palace troops. The latter are kept well fed, well paid and comfortably idle, for upon them depends the safety of Abdul Hamid, who, as is well known, is in hourly dread of assassination. Under these circumstances it is not astonishing that the army and navy are becoming disaffected, and nobody would be astonished to hear that they have sided with the revolutionists, should the expected uprising take place. It is believed that the powers will not take definite action against the porte until the naval squadrons have assembled in Turkish waters, which will be also the time the British ambassador to Turkey returns here after consulting with his government as to the future action of Great Britain.

In the meanwhile the state of suspense is decidedly wearying, and the ambassadors themselves will be greatly relieved when the hour for action upon the part of Europe arrives. Nobody doubts that this time is coming; it seems now to be only a question of days.

TO THE BENCH.

Secretary Carlisle to Be Succeeded by Fairchild.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The Post today says that Secretary Carlisle may be appointed to the supreme court bench to succeed the late Justice Jackson. The Post says that some time ago the president had practically fixed upon Judge Rufus Peckham, of the New York court of appeals, for the place. It then continues:

"All these plans, however, are said to have been changed by the recent elections. Had Kntucky elected a Democratic legislature, it was confidently expected that Mr. Carlisle would, on March 4, 1897, step from the cabinet into the senate. This ambition cannot now be realized. The political revolution in Kentucky has also materially affected Mr. Carlisle's chances for the presidential nomination, as well as greatly reduced the advisability of being a candidate with the odds so largely against the Democrats. Under these circumstances the political future has little attraction for Mr. Carlisle, besides which, his tastes and desires lead him naturally to a judicial position. He has been so loyal to the president, even to the extent of sacrificing to some extent his prestige in his own state that his appointment to the supreme court would not be questioned.

"Should Mr. Carlisle leave the treasury his place will undoubtedly be filled by a New York man, and Charles S. Fairchild is said to have been practically determined upon for the position. Mr. Fairchild has already occupied the post of secretary of the treasury, and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office. Mr. Carlisle has never been persona grata with the financiers of New York, but Mr. Fairchild would enter with their full indorsement."

THREATENED PULLMAN'S LIFE.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—William Sherman, a window cleaner at the Pullman building, was arrested last night for threatening the lives of George M. Pullman and John B. Griffin, manager of the building. Sherman said he would have made the attempt last night if he had not been taken into custody. He is undoubtedly insane. Sherman states that he consulted a fortune teller, hoping to find the cause of his insomnia. The woman told him he was troubled by secret enemies, and that unless he killed them before Nov. 15 or 27, they would kill him. She described the men to him, and the descriptions were those of Mr. Pullman and Mr. Griffin. Sherman was removed to the dentention hospital.

Heart Trouble Quickly Cured.

A Convincing Testimonial.

MISS ELLA KURTZ.

"For 19 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became excited, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were shooting through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before, I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—
Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by David Ogilvie and Henrietta M. Ogilvie, his wife, mortgagors, to Wilfred H. Harned, mortgagee, dated December 17th, 1889, and recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on March 8th, 1890, at eight (8) o'clock a. m., in Book fifty-four (54) of mortgages, on page thirteen (13); which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter assigned by said Wilfred H. Harned to J. J. Janeway, Executor, by an instrument dated March 25th, 1895, and recorded in said register of deeds' office on March 28th, 1893, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., in Book eighty-three (83) of assignment of mortgages, on page four hundred one (401); such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum of three thousand five hundred ($3500) dollars thereby secured, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from June 17th, 1895, with exchange;

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of three thousand five hundred eighty-eight and 64-100 ($3588.64) dollars, principal, interest and exchange;

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of the easterly twenty-four feet and seven inches (24 ft. 7 in.) of the southerly seventy-two feet and four inches (72 ft. 4 in.) of lot numbered ninety-five (95), in block numbered forty-seven (47), in Duluth Proper, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the office of the register of deeds for said county; being a rectangular plat of ground having a frontage of twenty-six feet and six inches (26 ft. 6 in.) on West Fourth street, in Duluth Minnesota, and seventy-two feet and four inches (72 ft. 4 in.) in depth, the westerly boundary line of which rectangle is twenty-three feet and six inches (23 ft. 6 in.) distant easterly from and parallel with the easterly line of Sixth avenue west, in said city; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the sixth (6th) day of December, A. D. 1895, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt, interest and the insurance premiums and taxes which may have been paid upon said premises by said assignee of said mortgagee prior to said day of sale, and seventy-five ($75.00) dollars attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated October 22nd, 1895.

Charles Iltis Who Was Refused a Plumber's License Is Combative.

Made a Sewer Connection at West Duluth Without a License.

Now Declares He Will Take the Matter Into the Courts.

At the council meeting last Monday evening it will be remembered an application was presented by Charles Iltis for a plumber's license. This license was asked for in order that Mr. Iltis, the West Duluth plumber, might be armed with the proper authority to make connections with the Central avenue sewer, as the city ordinance require a license for this purpose. The application was accompanied with the required fee of $25 and the bond of $1000 with the proper sureties.

The license was not granted, however, through opposition which came from the Master Plumbers' association and the Trades union. Their objection is based on the claim that Mr. Iltis is not a competent plumber, in consequence of which he has not been admitted to the Plumbers' union. On the other hand the application was accompanied by a petition signed by about twenty-five business men of West Duluth asking that Mr. Iltis be granted the desired license.

This was the status of the matter until yesterday when Mr. Iltis completed the connection with Mr. Gilley's new building and the Central avenue sewer without the necessary license. A notice was served on him by the city engineer, but the work was finished regardless of the warning. It is understood that Mr. Iltis defies the ordinance relative to the question in order to bring it into the courts and test the legality of the action of the council in the matter.

McCleary Wants Additional Tariff on Them.

St. Paul, Nov. 13.—Congressman McCleary called at the capitol this morning. He is making preparations to leave next week for Washington, in order to be on hand at the opening of congress.

"There will be some tariff legislation during the coming session," said he. "I believe our Democratic friends themselves will urge the pasage of some measure to increase the reveune. The question will be to secure a measure that will pass congress and at the same time meet the approval of the president. I shall contend for a duty on wool, rye, butter and eggs. There is a strong demand for further protection on the articles I have mentioned, and I think they will be supported by the delegation from all Western states. It will come pretty hard for the Democrats to agree upon protection for these articles, and especially wool, but that is what they will have to come to. I doubt very much if anything in the way of financial legislation will be attempted at this time."

ILL TREATMENT OF WORKMEN.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Secretary Herbert has received through representatives of the International Association of Machinists charges against Foreman Howett, of the Brooklyn navy yard and a number of subordinate officials in the machinery department, touching the traetment of workmen and disposition of government property. NO MORE NEEDED.

Washington, Nov. 13.—In the present state of affairs in Turkey the navy department will not add to the strength of the United States squadron now in Turkish waters, which will consist of the San Francisco and the Marblehead. It is felt that these two vessels are ample to protect American residents in Turkey, even in the event of actual hostilities, and to assemble a strong naval force there now might be construed as a joint participation by the United States in the demands which are being made on the porte, whereas this government has no intention of becoming embroiled in any foreign complications.

The executive responded with an emphatic denial and the men struck at each other, when friends separated them. Wheat Ruled Firmer Today and Prices Took a Slight Upturn.

Really Nothing in the News to Cause Any Bullish Feeling.

If Northwestern Receipts Should Decline, Prices Might Go Higher.

Wheat opened dull and slightly easier this morning but soon became firmer and ruled quite strong without any apparent reason for an advance. The Northwestern receipts of wheat were 115 cars less than on the corresponding day of last week, and although they were 453 cars more than at the similar date on the year before, the comparison with last week's number was the point laid hold of by the speculative crowd, and on that slim pretext they started to bull the market. It could not be called a matter of small significance if the falling off compared with a week ago promised to become a permanent feature of the Northwestern movement, but very few people expect such a result. The world has come to regard the spring wheat crop of the Dakotas and Minnesota as phenomenally large and a disappointment in that respect would, of course, put an entirely different face upon the outlook. The receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis must be maintained somewhere around their present volume to keep prices down to their recent level.

The Duluth receipts today were 520,092 bus, and there were 669 cars here, against 323 on the corresponding date last year. The Liverpool market was quoted a shade higher at the opening, but the shadow of that shade was obliterated by the second report from there which noted the loss of ¼d advance with which it started. Paris and Berlin were each a trifle higher. Reports from New York were that foreign orders for foreign futures at the opening were to buy, but the demand for shipment was very slack. Twenty loads were reported to have been worked for export. Paris reported wheat 10 to 15 centimes lower and Berlin was ½ mark higher.

Speculative trading on the Duluth board was not heavy. May opened about ¼c lower at the split 58⅝-½c but advanced to 58⅞c and held firm around that point, touching 59c near noon and advancing to 59⅛c later. December opened late ⅛c higher at 54c and advanced ¼c with light trading. Offerings of cash wheat were liberal and the shippers bought about 200,000 bus at ⅛c over December. The mills were not in the market, declining to buy at the small advance. The close was ½c higher than yesterday for cash stuff and ⅜c higher for futures. Barley sold by sample at 23@27½c. Flax was steady at 87¾c, and about 15,000 bus changed hands. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 55½c; November, 55½c; December, 55¼c; May, 60c. No. 1 northern cash, 54½c; November, 54½c; December, 54¼c; May, 59c. No. 2 northern cash, 50¼@51¾c. No. 3, 45@50c. Rejected, 37½@46¼c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 55½c; No. 1 northern, 54½c. Rye, 33½c. No. 2 oats, 18½c. No. 3 oats, 18c. Flax, 87¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 669; oats, 10; rye, 7; barley, 45; flax, 94. Receipts—Wheat, 520,092 bus; oats, 5076 bus; rye, 5244 bus; barley, 28,049 bus; flax, 36,069 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 427,743 bus; flax, 139,618 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Quite a number of advices coming from the Northwest say the receipts up there are likely to fall off. They may be correct, although we are inclined to doubt them. Guess the movement will be very large for quite a while to come, but we notice in the meantime the market price of wheat up there has gained ⅜c on Chicago the last week. There is a good demand for cash wheat here to go into the winter wheat country. We are very close to a working basis for Liverpool. Great many inquiries for spring wheat here today. Cables are steady, our market has been firm, shorts have been good buyers, wheat has reached a point where it is cheap enough. There is a lot of December wheat to be liquidated yet, as everybody knows, just as we know receipts were going to be large. State reports coming in show winter wheat in bad condition.

Corn—Shorts in corn today have run nicely. St. Louis has been a prominent buyer, we believe to cover short lines of corn put out at lower prices. It may be possible that they may get corn to sell higher on this rally, but on any bulge from here in May corn we would rather sell it than buy it. We have repeatedly wired you that we were consistently arrayed on the bull side on all breaks, but not on the bulges do we advise buying corn.

Oats not very active. Everybody is looking for 15c oats but we advise buying them on the breaks.

Provisions dull with hardly anybody in the pit. Trade is so narrow and so light they cannot either buy or sell much stuff at the market. We continue our advice, provisions should be bought on the breaks, taking advantage of these swells to sell them.

Stocks—The shorts in Sugar scooted to cover, frightening the timid ones in the grangers and the balance of the industrials. We continue our advice to sell the list on all rallies.

Puts, December wheat, 57⅜@½c.
Calls, December wheat, 58c.
Curb, December wheat, 57¾c.
Puts and calls, May corn, 29⅝c.

KIRK'S EOS

Is Exactly What Is Claimed for It—The Proof Is Positive.

"I would not be without Eos," said Mrs. David Ryan, of Bluff street, Pittsburg, Pa. "It is the best cleaning preparation I have ever used; I have always found it a laborious task to wash my dishes and get them in the shape I want them. I like my china to shine, and with ordinary soap and preparations I have had to rinse them several times with scalding water and rub them hard with a dry cloth. It was a revelation to me when I tried Eos on my chinaware. I do not have to rub to make it shine, and finally tried to polish them without so much hot water and found they polish just the same. Then my hands used to get so red and ugly in the greasy hot water, that I know was filled with strong acids from the soaps, but since I commenced using Eos I do not have that trouble any more. I can now wash dishes, scrub and keep my hands in water all day and they will look no worse for it. I have persuaded my mother and sister to try Eos, and now they are as great exponents of it as myself."

Kirk's Eos is for sale at all grocers. A large package for 5 cents.

THE TREND OF COMMERCE.

Recently The Herald published some figures showing the amount of lake commerce handled at this port, as compared with the marine commerce of New York and Chicago. The comparison was very favorable to Duluth, particularly when the great disparity in the population of the three cities is taken into consideration. It should also be remembered that the port of Duluth represents a growth of only about twenty-five years, because it was not until late in the summer of 1870 the first shipments of wheat and flour were made by lake. This was a few days after the first railway train entered Duluth. On the other hand, Chicago became a grain and shipping port in 1839, when wheat and corn were loaded on sailing vessels in bags and carried to Buffalo, and in 1845 the first grain elevator in Chicago was erected.

Chicago had a great start in the race for commercial supremacy. An advantage of thirty years is not easily overcome. During that period Chicago obtained a strong hold upon the whole Northwestern commerce. Its railway system was extended to all the new states in the Northwest. It was the entrepot to all this vast territory and with the rapid development of the latter the trade and commerce of Chicago grew and prospered. When the first railroad entered Duluth, Chicago was already a great commercial point and was already giving promise of being the largest city in the country. The growth of Duluth's lake commerce since that date and the gradual extension of the railway system now centering here are known to all. The rapid development of the marine business at this port has been one of the remarkable events of the past decade in commercial history. Duluth has steadily been encroaching upon the territory that Chicago had long regarded as its own, and today it is a strong and aggressive competitor of the Windy city throughout the whole Northwest.

These remarks are prompted by the appearance of a noteworthy news article in the Chicago Tribune a few days ago. It is not a lengthy article—only a single paragraph—but it tells a story about which columns could be written without doing the subject complete justice. Here is the paragraph:

"The Vessel-Owners' Towing company, after a service of twenty-five years on Chicago river, virtually went out of business last night. At 5 o'clock the regular tugs were put out of commission and the boats which were on the lake were laid up as soon as they arrived. For the present two tugs, it is said, will be continued in service at South Chicago. The company was organized in 1871 and had thirteen boats. Its president is Capt. J. L. Higgie. Year by year towing has fallen off in Chicago river owing partly to the change in vessels from sail to steam and partly to the diversion of much of Chicago's marine commerce to the head of Lake Superior."

Read the above once again slowly and comprehend its full meaning. After twenty-five years of service, the great towing company of Chicago has gone out of business because towing has fallen off in Chicago river. And what is the cause of this decline in the towing business? While the change in vessels from sail to steam has been one of the reasons, the most important factor has been, as the Chicago paper admits, "the diversion of much of Chicago's marine commerce to the head of Lake Superior." Duluth is today the greatest grain shipping port on the chain of lakes. Duluth is the largest primary wheat market in America. Duluth is the greatest flour shipping port in the West; last year the shipments of flour from this port were 6,176,113 barrels, while Chicago shipped only 4,747,932 barrels. Ten years ago Duluth's flour shipments were so small that no record was kept of them. Duluth is rapidly coming to the front as an ore-shipping point. It is one of the greatest coal receiving points in the West. There is no other point that equals Duluth in lumber shipments, which last year aggregated 250,000,000 feet. In the handling of merchandise of all descriptions its advance has been remarkable. The figures of the Sault canal tell the story. In 1887 the value of the freight carried in vessels through that canal was $79,031,757. In 1894 the value of its tonnage had increased to $143,114,502. Two-thirds of this represents the commerce of Duluth. In view of this phenomenal growth, it is not surprising that the lake commerce at Chicago is declining because of its diversion of the business to the head of Lake Superior.

MR. M'CLEARY'S EXHIBITION.

The Mankato Free Press says The Herald "seems to feel very sore" over the result of the McCleary-Harvey debate in this city last week, and it follows this up with the astonishing assertion that "Mr. McCleary gave Mr. Harvey the hardest twisting he ever got upon the platform in debate." Both these statements are incorrect. The Herald does not feel sore over the result of the debate and it has never thought that there was any reason for feeling sore, particularly in view of the fact that the single gold standard champion was completely out-classed in the debate and made such a poor showing that even the gold standard men in the audience were disappointed. If this is "the hardest twisting" Mr. Harvey ever received in a debate, he has certainly been fortunate, because it was the almost unanimous opinion of those who listened to Mr. McCleary and Mr. Harvey that the latter had by far the best of the debate. The Free Press expresses disbelief in the charge that Mr. McCleary acted in an unfair and ungentlemanly manner and cites the excellent reputation which he enjoys at home in this respect. The Herald is quite willing to leave the decision of this question to any unprejudiced person who attended the debate. It is the generally expressed opinion in Duluth that Mr. McCleary was not only unfair and ungentlemanly, but actually insulting in his manner.

According to the Mankato paper, the criticisms upon Mr. McCleary are made because he demolished Mr. Harvey's arguments, and it states that "Mr. McCleary produced the Congressional Record showing that Mr. Harvey had misquoted it, and upon this misquotation had built the whole of his argument." All that is necessary to say in reply to this assertion is that Mr. McCleary did not show that Mr. Harvey had misquoted the Record. It is true that he attempted to show this, but he failed miserably. He came here with a large number of "authorities" to discuss solely the manner in which the act of 1873 was passed and refused to discuss any other point because he imagined that he had got Mr. Harvey at a disadvantage, the latter having expected to discuss the silver question in a more general manner. But despite this fact, Mr. Harvey came out ahead in the debate—and Mr. McCleary lost his temper and made a sorry exhibition of himself.

Mr. Horr made a much better argument at Chicago on "the crime of 1873" than did Mr. McCleary, and there are a dozen men in Duluth on the gold standard side who could present their arguments much more clearly and effectively than did Mr. McCleary. As a debater, the latter gentleman is not a success. Of course he was seriously handicapped by the weakness of any argument that can be produced in favor of the gold standard, but if he possessed the ability and knowledge of the subject with which he has been credited he would not have fallen down so miserably as he did in the debate with Mr. Harvey.

THE HERALD WAS CORRECT.

A New York gentleman who read the Sun's denial of The Herald's statement regarding its prophecies of Mr. Cleveland's defeat in 1892 has come to the support of The Herald with several quotations from the Sun's files. They are embodied in a communication which is published in this issue, and they prove conclusively that The Herald's assertion was strictly correct. The Sun did say that Mr. Cleveland could not be elected to a second term, and it made this statement on several occasions.

"Neither in the open field nor indirectly, by trick and device, can Mr. Cleveland beat Mr. Harrison," said the Sun a few days preceding the holding of the Democratic convention which nominated Mr. Cleveland. And yet the Sun now asserts that it never expressed the opinion that Mr. Cleveland could be elected! Editor Dana must imagine that the readers of his excellent newspaper have very short memories. Or, possibly, his own memory has become somewhat impaired.

ESSENTIAL REQUISITES.

The St. Cloud Journal-Press says: "The Duluth Herald does not hesitate to say that it will support a Duluth man for congress, regardless of political considerations." This is another instance of the careless way in which the Journal-Press reads its exchanges, or of the manner in which it misrepresents their statements. The Herald did not say it "will support a Duluth man for congress, regardless of political considerations." What it stated was that any man who desired its support for congress must demonstrate his ability and his desire to look after the special interests of Duluth as well as the interests of the whole Sixth district in congress.

There are no doubt men in the district, both Democrats and Republicans, living outside of Duluth, who possess these qualifications. But their political beliefs would also necessarily be considered. But the mere fact that a man is a Republican or a Democrat is not sufficient to entitle him to an election to congress. He must represent more than mere party beliefs. The special needs of the district, and the peculiar needs of Duluth are of paramount importance.

THE WIFE RECEIVES ALL.

A reader of The Herald writes as follows: "Will you please inform some of your readers through the columns of The Herald what part of her husband's estate can a woman in the state of Minnesota receive, he dying intestate and having no children? Please state also, how the residue of the estate is disposed of."

The Minnesota law gives to the wife the whole of the estate of the husband who dies intestate and leaving no children. Of course the estate is subject to any debts that he may have contracted, excepting that the homestead goes to the widow absolutely free from any claims. Should there be any children of a deceased child of the husband they will receive the same share of the estate that their parent would have received, if living.

Next month the revision Bible committee, which began its labors in 1870, and to which the world is indebted for what is popularly known as the "revised version," will have completed and published the revision of the apocryphal books. There was some objection to the revision of this part of the Bible, owing to the fear that the knowledge that they were for centuries regarded as a part of the inspired Scriptures might disturb the belief of plain, every-day people. They are to be published, however, and whoever cares to may compare them with the books which have been pronounced of divine inspiration and draw his own conclusions.

The Tennessee centennial exposition, which will open at Nashville, the capital of the state, Sept. 1, 1896, and continue 100 days, while commemorating the centenary of the commonwealth, will be interstate and international in its character. Every state, every country, every interest that proposes a respectable display will find room for the purpose, and in addition the management will lend every assistance possible. Tennessee will expend $1,500,000 on the fair, and there is no doubt, judging from the extensive preparations being made, that it will be a great success.

The frightful treatment of the Armenians by the Turks should be stopped at once, if it takes all the European nations to put an end to it. Fully 10,000 persons have been massacred in Armenia since the blood-thirsty Turks began their present campaign of butchery. The spectacle of the great European nations calmly ignoring this frightful carnival of bloodshed, or, at best, only making puerile and contemptible efforts to stop it, is a reproach to mankind and a menace to civilization in the East.

Regarding the report that Corbett is about to turn over the championship belt to "One-eyed Connelly," who has never been on the stage, the St. Louis Star-Sayings recalls the impassioned exclamation imputed to the immortal Edwin Booth on the morning after Actor John L. Sullivan was laid low by Actor James J. Corbett at New Orleans some years ago. Mr. Booth, when he read the news, was reported to have said: "Thank God! The championship still remains in the profession." Connelly must either go to acting or forego the belt.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles has been figuring on the cost of fortifying our entire coast. He thinks the sum necessary would be at least $125,000,000. That sum would provide a fleet of more than twenty first-class battleships, fully armed and equipped, and there are many who believe that such a fleet would do more to guarantee us against a foreign war than all the land fortifications that could be built.

It is said that the duke of Marlborough will hurry his bride across the water because he is so much in love with her that he cannot bear the shadow cast upon the girl by the disagreeable separation between her father and her mother. If this be so, the duke is very much more in love with the girl than has been supposed.

Police Judge Campbell, of San Francisco, joined the Salvation Army in that city last week. Mrs. Ballington Booth is preaching there, and at one of her meetings the judge stood up and asked to be prayed for, and afterward joined the forces.

THE ROUNDER.

The Rounder's bashful friend has been mentioned before in this column, so he needs no introduction at this time. Not long ago he was about to depart from the city on a short trip and the evening before he left he called upon some friends in whose family there was a bright little girl of two and a half years who had taken something of a fancy for him. As he was about to leave the child was instructed to kiss Mr. Blank good bye, as he was "going away on the choo-choo."

The child did so and then turned to her aunt, upon whom Mr. Blank was more particularly calling, and said: "Oo kiss 'im goo' by." Mr. Blank blushed vividly and attempted to hush the child, but she would not be hushed. She looked reproachfully at the aunt who refused to perform this office, and then turned confidently to her mother, who stood near. "Oo kiss 'im goo' by," she said, and the bashful man's confusion was extreme.

Lately a young man sat in a hotel lobby holding a moral conversation with his uncle who was in the city on business and who had stopped for a time to visit his nephew. As they sat there entered a well known business man who had lately sat in a game of poker with the young man. During the progress of that game this man had conceived a wholesome respect for the young man by virtue of a certain curious combination of circumstances by which an ace full on trays had accumulated in the young man's hands against a pat flush which had arrayed its beaming countenance in the other's. The limit was modest, but interest waxed strong, and the young man had bet his full house like a senator with a Western gold mine back of him.

Well, when the business man came in he immediately remarked: "Young man you have the making of a great poker player in you," and proceeded to inform the uncle of those particular qualities of a successful poker player, which the young man possessed, the young man looked as if he wished he was not there and the uncle was considerably surprised at discovering this trait in his innocent nephew. In a foolish moment the former told the Rounder about it.

THE NEW YORK SUN.

It Predicted President Cleveland's Defeat in 1892.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice that the New York Sun denies your assertion that it predicted President Cleveland's defeat in 1892. You were right, and the proof thereof is obtainable from the Sun files for May and June, 1892, during which period its editorial columns contained, almost daily, frenzied denunciations of Mr. Cleveland and his supporters, coupled with warnings that if he were nominated, the Democratic party would suffer an ignominious defeat in the coming presidential election (November, 1892.) Here is a sample of Mr. Dana's foolish editorial assertions:

"There is not one intelligent Democrat in the country, who believes that Mr. Cleveland could carry New York, or that, if defeated in the Empire state, he could obtain a majority of the presidential electors."

This exact alone convicts the Sun of deliberate falsehood in its editorial of Nov. 8, 1895. Its columns in June, 1892, form a series of wild assertions and haphazard guess work, as regards the presidential contest. On June 11 it said, editorially:

"We deem Mr. Cleveland's nomination a total impossibility at Chicago."

Further along on the 11th it said:

"The Mugwumps have not only killed Mr. Cleveland stone dead, they have made the nomination of Governor Hill an absolute necessity. They have made it unsafe to give to the Chicago nomination, the aspect in New York city and state of a defeat for Governor Hill, and thus of a victory for Mr. Cleveland's Mugwump backers."

On June 14 the irrepressible Mr. Dana chirps out this gem:

"Beat Cleveland at Chicago, and you have beaten Harrison."

Further along in the paper of the 14th the aged dean of the journalistic corps of the Sun evolves the following "brilliant" prediction:

"Neither in the open field, nor indirectly by trick and device can Mr. Cleveland beat Mr. Harrison."

Many columns could be filled with such choice excerpts. Suffice it to say, it is by such persistent and malicious attacks on the Democracy, that the New York Sun has fallen from its high estate as the leading organ and champion of its party, until its name is a byword and a laughing stock among the politicians of both parties.

RETURNED TO WORK.

The Strikers at the Minnesota Mine Resume Work.

Tower, Minn., Nov. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The striking employes of the Minnesota have gone back to work without receiving the advance asked for. The linemen and pumpmen, who were also out on a strike, have returned on the same wages.

The United States authorities are making strenuous efforts to suppress the illegal sale of liquor to the Indians in this vicinity, as the officials of the Indian bureau in Washington, alarmed by the riotous conduct of the Indians this fall, have ordered a rigorous investigation. Deputy Marshal Gus H. Beaulieu, of St. Paul, is here gathering evidence against suspected parties, and yesterday Deputy Marshal Tallman arrested Robert McCoy, a farmer, living near the Indian reservation, on the charge of furnishing his dusky neighbors with liquor. He pleaded not guilty at his hearing yesterday, but in default of $700 bonds, was committed to jail.

W. D. Ferguson, of London, England, accompanied by Professor W. Hamilton Merritt, of the Toronto school of mines, passed through here yesterday on their return from the Rainy Lake district. In his capacity of mining expert, Professor Merritt has reported favorably on several good properties on the Seine, and the capitalists represented by Mr. Ferguson will purchase several thousand acres throughout the district.

CONCILIATORY BAYARD.

Dundee, Scotland, Nov. 13.—The United States ambassador, Thomas F. Bayard, was presented with the freedom of this city today by the civic authorities. In accepting it he said that no duty was so grateful to him as that of representing an international committee between two great civilized peoples. He desired a better understanding between the citizens of such countries. In time of peace they should do everything possible for the good of each other without self injury and in time of war they should do each other no more harm than was needful for their self respect. During the afternoon Mr. Bayard opened the fine art exhibition here and in so doing referred to the catholic character and refining influence of art which was open free to all and brought mankind within a common brotherhood.

WALKING WHILE RIDING.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Consul Jernigen, at Shang Hai, has made a special report on the four new treaty ports of China which have been opened to the world's trade, namely: Chung King, Shuan Chang, Che Kiang, Foo Chow. He shows that these are all great cities located in wealthy sections and generally accessible by water. One peculiarly Chinese institution which he touches upon is a variety of boat fitted with stern wheels and driven by a treadmill. Passengers are taken free for they are obliged to walk the entire distance to their destination on the treadmill.

Cincinnatian Says Two Gamblers Killed Blanche Lamont.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Mayor Sutro received a rambling letter from Cincinnati signed by Alexander Russ Kenshaw, M. D., in which the writer states that he accidentally came into possession of facts that he claims will lead to the discovery of the murderers of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. He says that two professional gamblers committed the crimes, but fear of death at their hands seals his lips. He would be glad to give additional information if he could come to California in safety. The police look upon the letter as the work of a crank.

HURRY IT UP.

White Earth Indians Want Lands Sold at Once.

White Earth, Minn., Nov. 13.—Several hundred Indians at White Earth council selected as delegates to Washington for the purpose of asking congress to amend the act of 1889. Wapbahnyhquo, White Cloud, May See, Hukegisheg and Waingemah Dute, chiefs, and Rev. John Johnson, John H. Beaulieu was chosen as interpreter.

They will endeavor to secure amendments looking to the early disposal of all pine and agricultural lands of all reservations in Minnesota. They will also endeavor to have the Chippewa commission and pine land examining corps abolished. They look upon them as a burden and no benefit.

At the present rate they say it will take five years to wind up the work of the examining corps. It has been at work almost three years and examined only 130,000 acres on the Red Lake reservation leaving 2,000,000 acres to examine. They say it is no better on other reservations and it is costing the Indians $200 a day. The Indians of Red Lake and Leach Lake also send delegates.

TALL MEN APPLY.

Men of Unusual Height Want to Be Policemen.

Donald McKenzie, the elongated officer who travels a beat on Superior street, is 6 feet 10⅜ inches tall and weighs 252 pounds. His soubriquet of the "mayor's pet" was earned by the peculiar circumstances of his appointment by Mayor Lewis. McKenzie was one of the two men wearing tall hats who walked beside the mayor's carriage in a torchlight procession two years ago. After the election Mayor Lewis sent for him and his appointment to the force followed. In some way an item went the rounds of the press to the effect that the mayor wished very tall men for the force. In consequence letters are pouring in from would-be blue coats. One man who wrote in a few weeks ago says that he is 24 years old and 6 feet 8 inches tall. Another candidate from Michigan accompanies his application with a picture and naively remarks: "I am 24 years old and 6 feet 8 inches tall. Am I long enough?" The East Boston Advocate recently stated that Daniel B. Ahern, a 6 foot 7 inch Bostonian was the tallest policeman in America, but Duluth has cinched the honor.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Serious Charge Against a Grand Rapids Man.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 13.—John A. Fisk, a young man who has been in Grand Rapids for some time, was arrested last Friday by Deputy Sheriff Varley, says the Herald. He was suspected of having robbed a pocket book of P. J. O'Donnell, containing a certificate of deposit for $200 and about $40 in money. Fisk had been in the employ of Mr. Pillsbury at the Cohassett mill for a short time, and was given a check in payment for his labor. That he cashed at the First State bank. When arrested yesterday a check for $75 was found in his pocket with Pillsbury's name attached. He admitted to the officers that it was a forgery, but said he wrote it for a joke. A search was made for Fisk's valise. One end of the valise had been cut open and no doubt the certificate and money had been stolen. Fisk had been hanging around O'Donnell's store and there is strong reason to believe that he is the guilty party, but under the circumstances it will be difficult to get evidence against him. He will be held for forgery.

Next Friday the corner stone of the new Itasca county court house will be laid under the auspices of Itasca lodge, A. F. and A. M., under the direction of Deputy Grand Master W. B. Patton, of Duluth. The local lodge have made preparations for the occasion. A special train will be run from Duluth, arriving here Friday forenoon, conveying members of the fraternity from the Zenith City and Cloquet. A banquet will be given Friday evening at the Hotel Pokegama.

An Upper Mississippi river romance was consummated about two weeks ago by the installation of a wife at the home of Thomas Palmer, who lives a few miles from Cohassett. She is about 60 years old, and Palmer is nearly the same age. They could not agree, however, and last Tuesday she left him and started back to the East with all her belongings.

Mystery still hangs over the shocking deaths of Solomon Johnson, at Horseshoe lake, and Jack Bacon (at the Napoleon Russell ranch) in township 60, range 24. The coroners juries found verdicts charging the crime of murder in both cases, and in the Solomon Johnson case, the crime was evidently so glaring that no other verdict was warranted. Witnesses were examined by the county attorney Thursday morning in the case of John Berg, who was arrested Saturday, at the Snowball camp, charged with the murder of Solomon Johnson. The testimony was weak, and defendant claimed an alibi. He is held in jail, however, on another charge of maliciously shooting into a house at Blackberry about a year ago.

WENDLING

His Brilliant Lecture at the First Methodist Church Last Evening.

The Famous Galilean Considered in an Original and Attractive Manner.

It Was a Calm and Judicial Discussion of His Claims.

The lecture at the First Methodist church last evening by George R. Wendling on "The Man of Galilee" was one of the most brilliant which has ever been heard in Duluth. It may well be called a grand lecture, peculiar and original in the manner in which the subject was treated, and powerful and convincing in the highest degree. It was not a sermon —far from it. It was a calm and deliberate consideration of the claims, the work and the results attained by the Man of Galilee. It might well be termed a lawyer's discussion of the man. There was no exhortation, no appeal to religious sentiments, and yet no sermon ever preached could do more for Christ and His cause. Mr. Wendling has a fine personality. He is a young-looking man, of strong and powerful physique, and a countenance in which is reflected every emotion he feels. His delivery is smooth and easy and his speech is rapid and unhesitating. He seldom raises his voice to any great volume, but his eloquence nevertheless is thrilling almost beyond description.

Dr. Cleland introduced Mr. Wendling in an eloquent address of several moments' duration.

"We are to deal with the founder of a religion," said Mr. Wendling in opening, "but I want you to approach the subject not in a religious spirit, but in a critical and judicial frame of mind. The conditions are such that we may expect in the twentieth century to see the followers of the Galilean diminish or increase more rapidly than heretofore. There has, therefore, never been a period when the question who and what is the man of Galilee has had such significance."

Men are really governed by kings, no matter what the form of government is, said the speaker. Even democracy is a non-hereditary monarchy in which the kingliest minds rule. Politics, art, science and every field has its kings, and they spring as often from the humblest walks of life as from the highest. A description of Galilee at the time of Christ's coming was given, and also the lecturer's idea of His personal appearance. The man who preached the sermon on the mount was not a reformer; he was a revolutionist, he asserted.

WHY DID HE COME?

"What is He doing? What part is He taking in the affairs of men? What plan is He working out?" Mr. Wendling then proceeded to an analysis of His mental life; to look at Him in a rational spirit. What was wrong that He came to set right? He came here to establish a kingdom with Himself as king. What for? There was a disarrangement in human affairs; men hated each other and were at enmity. This is an abnormal condition and springs from the violation of law. The Man of Galilee came to found a kingdom; His motive was love, boundless love for the human race. He demanded complete subservience; He made laws and demanded obedience. His plan was perfect from the first, and He never abandoned or deviated from it. It was a plan of unusual breadth and reach. He spoke of all nations and all men forever, and yet He announced the stupendous plan as calmly and quietly as though He spoke of the weather. Rationally you would say: "Here is more rashness than in an archangel." Today He would be called a religious fanatic. We could call Him a fanatic now but for one fact—He succeeded.

He pictured the Galilean as meek and lowly only in spirit, but majestic and dignified in appearance. He was not an unsophisticated peasant, but an evenly-poised, self-possessed man. He mingled with all classes with perfect ease and with the demeanor of a prince of royal blood. And yet He had no teachers. All His unmeasurable knowledge came from within.

HIS MORAL TRAITS.

Mr. Wendling next passed to a consideration of His moral traits. They embraced an astonishing egotism, self-assertion unparalleled, astounding claims as to His own person and power. As a mere physchological fact they were the ravings of insanity, unless He was a messenger from another world veiled in human form. He never had a moment of mental excitement, and search all the pages of history and you will not find another hero of whom you can say the same. He is the only egotist in history who was unselfish, never jealous and never impatient. He was a man of the most exquisite refinement. In His attitude toward women there was a delicacy and tenderness which show Him to have been the only perfectly pure man in all history. Consider His personal dignity. There never was another public man who was not theatrical, who did not, consciously or unconsciously, strive to produce effects. He is the only man in all history of whom this cannot be said. His great love for the human race was dwelt upon, a love that could only be superhuman. His manliness and courage were pointed out. He never made a concession, never betrayed the slightest timidity.

NONE OTHER LIKE HIM.

"Why has there never been another like him?" he asked. "You feel at once that there never was but you know not why. You cannot imagine another like him. You can easily imagine another Buddha, another Mahommet, another Caesar, another Napoleon or another Washington; you can imagine Christ coming again, but to imagine another like him is beyond the human mind. No other creature so perfect can be found till the mind rests on God himself."

His perfect simplicity was commented on; simplicity with such absolute clearness. Shakespeare's language may be improved, but you cannot improve the Galilean's. No speech reaches his in transparency and clearness and all the intellects of the world cannot produce a chapter which will be of the same literary character as His. He was never in doubt about anything. There was no mystery for him in man or God. He knew as much in the beginning of his ministry as he did at the close. He is the only man in all history who did not gain by experience for all knowledge was His. He was never surprised, suspicious, hurried and never took counsel. You cannot find those qualities combined in any other man or in any one singly. He had the most penetrating insight into character. He chose His disciples with unerring certainty. What of Judas, you say. Judas filled a necessary part as surely as did Peter.

NOT AN INVENTION.

"Was He an invention?" He answered in the negative. Defects may be found in Bacon, in Shakespeare, and others, and they will be esteemed none the less, but find a flaw in Him and He must fall. If He is absolutely perfect He cannot be an invention, for none but a God could invent a perfect being. "There is no need to go on to His miracles or his resurrection," said the speaker. "Have we not already found a cause for all these effects? Was He not Himself a miracle? Is he not a king, morally, intellectually, every inch a king?"

No newspaper synopsis could do justice to Mr. Wendling's matchless effort. The whole purpose of his lecture was to show by argument and reasoning that the man of Galilee was more than human.

Arthur G. Drake gave an organ recital of four numbers as a prelude. All were rendered in a masterly manner and exhibited Mr. Drake's ability as a concert organist.

WHAT MELBA SAYS.

ONE REASON FOR THE GREAT SINGER'S SUCCESS.

Never Nervous on the Stage.

The Chicago Record of Oct. 21, under personal mention column, has this to say of the greatest vocalist in the world: "Madame Melba is never nervous on the stage, and she attributes her immunity from the misfortune which afflicts most opera singers to her simple diet. She holds that indigestion brought on by irregular and self-indulgent habits of eating, is the great cause of nervousness and worry among actors and singers."

This is true, not only of actors and singers, but of business men and women, as well as school children; in fact, the American nation is fast becoming a nation of nervous, high-strung dyspeptics.

The idea is, not to diet and starve one's self, but to eat plenty of wholesome food, and after each meal take a harmless, but effective digestive preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Take one or two of these Tablets after each meal and no matter how weak the stomach, they will thoroughly digest the food; it does not remain in the stomach for hours to ferment, decay, and poison the blood and nerves.

While Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are pleasant to take and simple in their action, yet they are probably the safest and most reliable cure for all stomach troubles, loss of flesh and appetite, palpitation, sour or acid stomach, gas and distress after meals. Not only a relief but a permanent cure for all stomach diseases except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package sold by druggists at 50 cents or by mail from Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

A CHANGE

Great Need for It in the Arrangement of Customs Districts.

Agent Crowley Recommends the Redistricting of the Country.

The Duluth District Is Among Those in Need of Re-Arrangement.

A recent report of J. J. Crowley, supervising special agent of the treasury, to the secretary of the treasury, contains in addition to information of a general character and interest one section which is applicable and vitally important to this section of the country. It is headed: "Consolidation of Customs Districts," and it calls attention to the inadequacy of existing divisions to the changes which have taken place since the boundaries now prevailing were formed. In relation to this subject it says:

"Since the creation of the existing districts the conditions of business have changed greatly, and places which were formerly of importance and at which custom house establishments are maintained have now no business to transact, and the retention in official position of the persons employed involves unnecessary expense.

"As is well known, importations have been concentrated at comparatively few ports, and the importation by sailing vessels is trifling. Deputy collectors or other subordinate officers may perform readily such official duties as the issuance of vessels' papers, and action in that direction should be taken in the interests of an economical administration. The boundaries of customs districts as defined by the statutes also need revision. Business enterprises have developed at places which had no existence at the time the boundaries of the districts within which they are now located were established."

A STRIKING INSTANCE.

A striking instance of this is given. Recently an application was received at the office of the collector of the port of Chicago for the establishment of a manufacturing warehouse at a town closely allied in business interests with Chicago and within an hour's travel from that port. The desired authority could not be granted because the town in question was in the district of New Orleans, and the applicant had to go clear across the continent to New Orleans to get his permission. Not only that, but all its business was under the officers at New Orleans.

This condition of affairs is particularly applicable to this district. The boundaries are wholly obsolete and inadequate. According to the statute the Duluth customs district comprises mostly the north shore of Lake Superior from Duluth to the Canadian boundary. The jurisdiction applies as far up the north shore streams as they are navigable, but as none of them are navigable at all the district is narrowed down to the north shore. All the rest of this section, from a mile or two back from the shore to Rainy Lake and the Canadian boundary, is in the St. Paul district.

If one should wish to establish a bonded manufacturing warehouse at Tower, at Ely, at Rainy Lake City, or at any other inland point, he must come to Duluth and then go to St. Paul for his permission, and thereafter all his business with the customs officials would have to be transacted in the same manner.

HAS BEEN SMUGGLING.

It is well known that smuggling has been a thriving industry on the Big Fork river and through the Rainy Lake country. If one wishes to make complaint, he must go to St. Paul by way of Duluth, making a lot of unnecessary travel that the rewards offered will not pay for. Consequently few complaints ever reach St. Paul.

The same thing is true of the Rainy Lake region in a more marked degree, as it is still nearer Duluth and farther from St. Paul. Frequently complainants reach the Duluth custom house and upon finding that they have to go to St. Paul give it up.

The matter is of great importance, and it must be greater as the years go by and the country grows. It is of sufficient importance for the public bodies of the city to take up and agitate through our representatives in congress. The Duluth customs district should extend as far north as the Canadian boundary and so far west as to include Beltrami and Cass counties.

The Marquette district, which includes the port of Superior, is too large. Isle Royale, which is directly tributary to Duluth, should be in the Duluth customs district instead of the Marquette district. There are many arguments in favor of this remodeling of ancient and obsolete boundaries, made when this region was practically a wilderness, which the limits of one article will not admit. The only way to secure the necessary reform is to have the public bodies of the city take the matter up as suggested above.

ENDORSED PAPER.

C. M. Loring of Minneapolis Forced to the Wall.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13—C. M. Loring, for years considered one of the solid men of the Northwest, has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Two years ago he was worth $800,000. Total assets are estimated at $755,000; personal liabilities, $165,000; liabilities on account of endorsements, $206,000. The assignment was due to the maturing of endorsed paper and the continued illness of Mr. Loring. Some of the creditors had become importunate and yesterday the hope of obviating an assignment was abandoned. If too much haste is not used in the conversion of the property it is believed all claims will be met and a nice balance left over.

The assignee is the Northern Trust company, of which ex-Governor A. R. McGill is president. Much of the assets is in improved real estate in Minneapolis. Mr. Loring is the president of the North American Telegraph company in which he holds stock to the amount of $26,000. He is a part owner of the Windom block; he has a third interest in the St. James hotel property and is also interested in the Soo road. He owns a number of houses and has a lot of land in Lake Harriet addition. He was also interested to a considerable extent in the Machinery Construction company, of Rochester, N. Y.

BIG HORN BASIN.

Boom Developments Planned by Col. Cody.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 13.—Col. Bill Cody, General Manager Holdredge, of the Burlington, and eleven others interested in the construction of the Shoshone canal, in the Big Horn basin, have left Billings, Mont., for the scene of the canal construction. The canal will cover 200,000 acres of exceptionally fertile land. It will cost $1,000,000, and will carry with its construction an early building of the Burlington line into the Big Horn basin, with the erection of the new town and medical springs resort of Shoshone. Four syndicates, two in Chicago and two in New York, with a capital of $20,000,000, organized for the purchase and development of Wyoming free gold and placer properties, have a number of experts now in the state looking for investments.

CHEATING JUSTICE.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—A special to the Republican from Helena, Mont., says: Sheriff Jurgens has discovered a plot among the prisoners confined in the county jail charged with murder to defeat the ends of justice by committing suicide. By some means, as yet unknown, the prisoners in the murderers' row had gained possession of enough morphine to kill a score of people. Eugene Stanley was first to kill himself. He died the day he was to have been taken to the penitentiary for life. Today, when Bill Gay was found guilty of murder in the first degree, charged with killing Deputy Sheriff Will Mack, his cell was searched and morphine discovered. The plot was then disclosed by the prisoner.

Lake Men Talking About Earnest Work Being Necessary at Washington.

The Atwater Still on Manitoulin and May Go to Pieces.

Centurion's Cargo Released by the United States Marshal Today.

There is considerable earnest talk among lake men regarding the necessity of an organization among the congressmen from the lake districts this winter for the advancement of the cause of harbor improvement. There are about thirty members of the next house who can fairly be classed as coming from lake districts, and the feeling is that if they should make a united and determined stand for large appropriations for lake harbor improvements, they will be able to carry the house with them. In the past there has not been as much unity of effort in this respect as is desirable. Each port has worked for itself without much regard to what others were getting, united action being secured only upon the great deep water channel and the Sault canal improvement. As a consequence, the rivalry between lake cities has prevented a number of really desirable improvements from being pushed as rapidly as they should have been. It will be a difficult matter to bring these thirty congressmen together and have them work in harmony, but if it can be done it will doubtless do much towards securing more liberal grants to the lake cities in the next river and harbor bill, so writes a Cleveland correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

THE STRANDED BARGE AT WATER.

The barge S. T. Atwater still lies stranded on Manitoulin island and may go to pieces there. An expedition could not reach the craft owing to unfavorable weather. The wreckers then released the Canadian steamer W. B. Hall from Magnetic shoal, and at last accounts were engaged in an effort to float the Canadian steamer City of Owen Sound and her consort Worts from the bottom, near Cove island. After getting through with this job another visit will be paid to the Atwater, although the prospect of success is not favorable. The S. T. Atwater was built at Charlotte, N. Y., in 1866, measures 306 net tons, rates B1, and has a valuation of $3500.

THE CARGO RELEASED.

The Centurion's cargo was formally released by the United States marshal today. The papers were filed in the United States court office this morning. The appraisal of the cargo fixes its valuation at $49,500. The bond given was for $40,000 and the signers are Mark Hopkins Steamship company, A. B. Wolvin, F. W. Wheeler and Mark Hopkins.

MARINE NOTES.

The freight situation locally continues much the same as it has been for a week past. The wheat rate is still 8 cents, with a light demand. The Eastern demand is decidedly quiet on account of the blockade at Buffalo. Fort William is steady at 6 cents. Ore is moving freely because of the continued warm weather, and $2 is freely offered.

Capt. McKenzie, of the tug Hebard, has been held for trial at the next United States court term in Marquette for a violation of the raft-towing regulations. He is charged with towing in Portage lake waters rafts of twice the size allowed by government regulations, the size allowed being 50 by 300 feet. Hebard & Son, of Pequaming, own the tug.

Ore shipments from Ashland for the season have reached 2,314,825 tons.

Government dredges are working in the river at Menominee.

Capt. Van Gordon, of the schooner D. P. Rhodes, has taken command of the steamer R. P. Ranney in place of Capt. John Donohue, who resigned to accept a position ashore. Capt. Lisk, who for a number of years was master of the schooner Lizzie A. Law, is now in the Rhodes.

A new wheel has been placed in the wooden steamer W. H. Gratwick at Buffalo.

The bow of the Buffalo fireboat George H. Potter is being changed to better fit it for ice-breaking. Upon being docked it was found that her keel had been broken in two, probably from butting ice in former years.

The barge Golden Age in tow of the steamer Edwards, bound up, went aground at Grosse Point Monday night.

The steamer Cadillac, bound down, Monday night, parted her wheel chains in going over Ballard's reef. She returned to Detroit and is now making repairs.

An underwriters' dispatch stated that the wreckers had succeeded in getting the steamer Britannic, sunk in Detroit river, into shoal water, so that three of her hatches are out of water. It was expected that the decks of the steamer would be out of water before night.

The steamer Majestic has had an expensive experience in the Chicago river with a cargo of grain. She grounded on Sunday, and had to lighter 10,000 bushels of her cargo in order to reach the lake.

The survey on the Canadian steamer W. B. Hall, recently ashore near Cockburn island, places the cost of repairs at $15,000.

MAY EXPEL HEALY.

Dublin, Nov. 13.—There were 100 delegates present at the meeting of the Irish National Federation this afternoon, called to consider the resolution expelling T. M. Healy from that organization as a result of charges Mr. Healy made against the Irish parliamentary party at the convention in July last, when he accused John Dillon of selling the county Tyrone to the English party. The motion of Mr. Healy today to admit representatives of the press to the meeting was rejected. Mr. Healy was recently removed, for the same cause, from membership in the executive committee of the Irish National league of Great Britain.

NO LEAGUE COMBINE IN VIEW.

New York, Nov. 13.—The National Ball league is holding its annual meeting in this city today and all the clubs are represented. Among the subjects which will be discussed are Sunday games and the double umpire system. The establishing of a race track on the St. Louis club's grounds will also receive attention. Messrs. Brush, Hart and Vonderhorts who were questioned by a reporter on the alleged existence of a combination of the Eastern clubs for the purpose of contracting the affairs of the league denied that any such understanding existed and added that so far as they were aware of the facts the plan was not contemplated.

LITTLE THINGS.

A little panther is playful as a kitten, but nobody wants him as a pet. He will grow, you see.

A little bad habit gets to be a tyrannical thing and makes texts for moralists. And the moralists are right, too.

A little fit of temper may lead to a life-time of regret. How many of us have to deplore sundered friendships and words we cannot recall.

A little cold, of the sort so common at this time of the year grows fast as the baby panther, and as a companion is even more undesirable.

A little reflection and observation will prove that the little cold will never grow to be pneumonia if we have prompt recourse to that sterling preventive, Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky.

A little common sense will show that whatever sustains the heat of the body aids the digestion, quickens the circulation, sharpens the appetite, and insures sound sleep is the best thing in the world for a cold. Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky does these things. Is not the deduction as plain as day?

A little cold air striking the skin contracts the blood vessels beneath it, and drives the blood deep into the body, causing congestion first and inflammation afterwards. Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky stimulates and equalizes the circulation, so that surface chill and internal excess of heat are corrected.

A little cough may indeed be stopped by local application to the irritated membrane of the throat, but the general disorder of which the cough is but a symptom demands a tonic and stimulant to reach every fibre of the body. Because Duffy's Malt Whisky does this its name is a household word.

EVANS

Announces His Willingness to Become Governor of Minnesota.

His Chance Assured If He Can Carry Hennepin County.

Evans Said to Have Been Released by Capt. Van Sant.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—The Minneapolis Journal will say this evening: "If the friends of R. G. Evans want him to run for the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket he will make the race. This is the first direct result of a visit to Minneapolis on the part of Capt. Van Sant. There has been a growing feeling for some months among Hennepin county Republicans that if some strong man could be found to make the race, an effort should be made to place him on the ticket to the exclusion of Governor Clough, that the nomination could come to Hennepin county without creating a lot of hard feeling was conceded, but inasmuch as Evans' arrangements were such that he could not appear as a rival candidate Sant in the anti-Clough Republicans have been up a stump to find a leader.

"The avowed candidacy of Mr. Eustis, while creating some interest has not been looked upon as likely to attract sufficient strength in the convention. Evans, however, has all along been regarded as one of the strongest possibilities, and his release by Capt. Sant will tend to simplify matters considerably.

"When seen today, Mr. Evans declined to state his plans. He said, however, that his friends will soon get together to canvass their strength and if the nose count shows up well, Mr. Evans will receive a formal invitation to enter the race. If the showing made is sufficient to encourage the hope of such success Evans will be at liberty to accept. If he can swing Hennepin county as a unit, there is little doubt of his nomination."

MADE A GOOD BARGAIN.

San Francisco Post: "It is the easiest thing in the world to sell a mine in London for almost any price, provided you have anything to show an expert," said Major Frank McLaughlin.

"There is also a right way and wrong way to go about it. Some time ago I went to London to negotiate the sale of some mining property. Of course the first thing I had to do was to let capital know what I was there for. Then when inquiries commenced, I simply said: 'Gentlemen, I have mining property to sell. If you mean business and want to buy send your expert out o examine the property and make a report on it. You know then what you are buying.'

"A company was organized. An expert examined the property and reported favorably and a meeting was held to discuss the terms.

"'Now, major,' said the spokesman, 'we have found that the property may be worth something. What is your price?'

"'Two hundred and fifty thousand,' said I.

"'That is more than we expected to pay. We expected to pay about two hundred. There is not much difference between two hundred and two hundred and fifty. If you drop the fifty we will take it.'

"I had expected to get about $100,000 for the property, so with a show of reluctance I agreed to accept their offer. When the papers were made out I was surprised to learn that they had been talking about pounds and I about dollars, but I was very careful not to let my surprise leak out, and that is the way I got $1,000,000 for the mine."

A BIG BLACK DIAMOND.

The largest black diamond that was ever seen was recently shown to the Academy of Sciences in Paris by M. Moissan, a French chemist, says the London News. It weighs 3078 carats. Our correspondent says: "This gigantic 'carbon' was found by a digger last July in a diamond field in Bahia. Its hardness is greater than that of the brilliant and for this reason it has great industrial value. M. Moissan is sorry that it cannot be bought for the Museum of Natural History. He has made an exact mould of it. This diamond presents a surface partly smooth and partly corrugated, and is exactly similar to the particles of black diamonds produced by M. Moissan in the electrical furnace. The three largest of the species previously found weighed 602, 810, and 170 carats respectively, and the latter was not homogenous or free from flaws. The present specimen, however, is as big as a large pear and apparently perfect."

UMBRELLA HANDLES.

A Growing and Very Expensive Fad.

A radical change has taken place in umbrellas since the close-roll became popular, and no wonder, for nothing is uglier and more uncomfortable to carry than a heavy, clumsy umbrella. The close-roll has a solid steel rod, and the frame interlocks when it closes, so that the most inexperienced person can wrap the silk very closely without trouble, says the New York Sun. The close-roll has done another thing, it has created a demand for higher-priced umbrellas. The woman who used to be content with an umbrella marked "special at $1.98 today only" will not even glance at such a sign nowadays, but goes straight to the umbrella department, asks for a close-roll, and willingly pays $5 for it.

With a woman the handle of an umbrella is the most important part, and this fall the favorite material in handles is burnt or plain ivory with deposited or applied silver. The handle, to be stylish, no matter whether it is in plain natural wood or the finest ivory that ever came from elephant, must be without hook or crook. It must be absolutely straight. Pearl and silver are also a fashionable combination, but are not considered so well as the burnt ivory, which takes a very rich golden brown when submitted to heat. When the silk used with such a handle is of golden brown taffeta the combination is irresistable, judging from the number carried by the swagger looking women. Umbrellas with such handles sell at $15 retail.

Dresden handles, that came so high and were such a rage two years ago, are away down in price, and all because they are no longer the correct thing. They are pretty, however, and many people who do not try to keep up with the styles in such things buy them. For those who wear mourning the shell handle is the thing, and is very handsome, both plain and carved. The average price of a shell-handled umbrella is $20, and if a melancholy lady wishes to brighten the handle a little with her monogram in small sterling silver or gold, she must give up several dollars more. The natural wood handles are always in great demand, for they are always good form. The buyer in the umbrella department of a dry goods store said:

"Our best trade wants an umbrella with a natural stick. It wears well, does not go out of style, and can be recovered again and again with a fine quality of silk for $2.50. Take these people who buy a new umbrella every time the style changes in handles—why they spend a fortune and gain only a short season of gratification from the purchase, for by spring they probably wouldn't be caught carrying an umbrella with such an old-fashioned, conspicuous handle,' as they express it themselves. A young woman was looking at a burnt ivory handle the other day and trying to make up her mind not to buy it, for she already had seven umbrellas on hand that had cost her from $15 to $35 each, but she said she would allow herself to be drowned in a November rain before she would be seen carrying any of them. She finally decided to try for the first time one with a natural stick."

Most women have an idea that twilled silk wears better than anything else, but this is not true. A fine quality of taffeta stands more hot suns and storms than any other silk, and is highest in favor. Blue is the favorite color just now, but brown bids fair to push it to the wall, and the dark green and reds are also coming to the front. Of course, black is the stand-by. Two styles in umbrellas have been specially designed for the horse show. One is made of fine taffeta in all colors, and has a straight natural stick capped with either gold or silver. It is encased in a leather cover matching the silk in color and tipped with gold or silver to match the handle. Such an umbrella gives a finishing touch to the tailor-made girl's costume. The other style has the advantage of lightness, for besides being close-roll, which makes an umbrella 50 per cent lighter, the handle is made of either Japanese bamboo or Wanghee, which is very fashionable for men's canes. Both are hollow, but durable. Crops, whips, horseshoes, jockey caps, and other things associated with horses and horsemanship are applied to these handles in solid silver.

M'GUIRE'S SWAMP ANGEL.

"The story has never been told in print of how we turned the first gun on Charleston the day that city was destroyed," said F. C. Tarr, of Lewiston, Me., who served in the Ninth Maine infantry. "At the seige of that city we were serving under Gen. Q. A. Gilmore in the department of the South. That was in '63. I and a few others were on detail and were near Gen. Gilmore when we heard him give instructions to Lieut. McGuire, of the First New York engineers to mount a gun out in the middle of a swamp, the nearest point to the city that could be reached, says the Buffalo Express. McGuire was a stubborn, peculiar sort of a fellow. He remonstrated with the general and told him that it would be impossible to mount a gun out in the middle of that bog. It was as bad a place as could be imagined, and ninety-nine men out of a hundred would have agreed with McGuire.

"But the general was not one of those ninety-nine. He insisted that the gun should be mounted.

"'I order you to mount that gun,' he said sternly to the lieutenant.

"When Gilmore said a thing he meant it. He was just as stubborn as McGuire.

"'Well,' McGuire said, 'you give me twenty men eighteen feet high and I'll wade them through that mud, which is fifteen feet deep, and mount your gun; but I'm not ready to die myself just yet.'

"Gilmore got mad and sent him to the guard house. McGuire stayed there some time, and the general came to him and asked him if he had made up his mind to mount the gun. McGuire said he would try.

"'And you won't insist on having your men eighteen feet high?' asked the general.

"The lieutenant had become submissive during imprisonment, and he said he would be content with men of ordinary size. And he finally did succeed in getting the gun into position, although it was hard and dangerous work.

"Planks and logs were laid across the swamp, and the big gun was drawn out across and poured shot after shot into the city. The guns on the firm ground, way to the rear, didn't do half the damage this one of McGuire's did. The ground all around was so soft and jelly-like that every time the gun was discharged it shook several acres. I tell you, it spread consternation in the city when McGuire's gun began to boom. Always after that the gun was known as the Swamp Angel.

"Both McGuire and Gilmore are dead. They were far separated in rank, but they were both men of marked ability, which made them conspicuous several times during the war."

KING CORRECTS HIS SON.

That Christian IX of Denmark, whose illness is at present causing much anxiety, brings up his children in the way they should go is sufficiently evinced by the following anecdote, says the Cleveland World: One day at the dinner table the young prince asked his father what was the meaning of a word he had never heard before. This word, "lusing," is the Danish equivalent for our "boo on the cars." The king asked his son where he had heard such a word. The boy, blushing to the roots of his hair, confessed after a little natural hesitation that he had been out in the streets amusing himself by ringing the bells and then running away. But at one door an angry person rushed out and shouted after him that he would give him a "lusing" if ever he did such a thing again. When the prince had finished his explanation, his father exclaimed: "Very well, tomorrow you shall go with me to that very house and beg the porter's pardon for such rudeness." Accordingly, the next day the king went with his much-abashed son and made him apologize.

BAKER SHOE SALE, 113 W. SUP. STREET.

Used His Razor.

Perry Nichols, a colored man with a cavernous mouth appeared in the municipal court this morning and pleaded not guilty to a charge of injuring private property. He was released under $15 bonds to appear for trial this afternoon. According to the police Perry loved a maiden of his own color who looked with disfavor on his suit and repulsed his advances. As a slight recompense or rather as a recompense for her slights Perry is alleged to have taken a long bone-handled razor and carved up a spotted dress belonging to the object of his affections.

Have you seen that A. B. Chase organ for $50 and C. H. Stone & Co. upright piano for $190 at Duluth Music company, Phoenix block, second floor?

The Independent Order of Foresters, Duluth court No. 724, will give a social dance at the Spalding hotel on the evening of Nov. 15. The members of the order invite all their friends to be present, as a most pleasant time is in prospect. Hoare's full orchestra in attendance.

New Connections.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad has been arranging some connections which greatly improve its passenger service and T. H. Larke is happy in consequence. In the first place connections will be made with the Michigan Central at Soo Junction. This will give a quick route to Bay City and Saginaw, the time being made in six hours less than via Chicago. An arrangement has also been made with the Northwestern road to connect at Saxon. This enables the South Shore to compete for Chicago and Milwaukee business. The change of cars is made at 8:15 p. m. long before passengers get settled for the night. The train now leaves Duluth at 4 p. m.

These arrangements have stirred the Omaha people up. They claim to be able to make the Michigan connections by changing to the Soo road at Cameron and connecting with the South Shore at Trout Lake. The South Shore claims it does not connect. The scramble for Chicago business may result in the putting on of a through train to Chicago on the Omaha road and then Duluth people will be the gainers.

The Municipal Court.

James Welch stoutly insisted to Judge Edson this morning in the municipal court that he was not drunk last night. Court Officer Ed Jenson, who made the arrest, told the court all about how he found James dead drunk and with disarranged garments lying on a doorstep. Then James came down and had nothing further to say. His fine was fixed at $10 and costs.

Gust Newman told the court about how two Finlanders had gotten him drunk on a wager. It had been a merry time for Gust last night, but this morning he paid dearly for his fun. He was assessed $10 and costs and explained that he had the money at home. August Nelson had been with Gust part of the time, but was arrested at a different time. August was released with a suspended sentence and walked out of the court room with a face full of smiles.

On every Saturday, until further notice, Dr. Schiffman, at No. 400 Woodbridge block, will inaugurate a half price day for amalgam and cement fillings. The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. This will be a great boon to children, teachers and those who have not the time on other days.

KNOWS NOTHING OF IT.

C. P. Magginnis was out of the city yestedray. When he saw the Washington dispatch saying that he was preparing to come back at his accusers he said that he dd not know where it originated. He has written no communication to Washington in reference to the matter and has not even had a copy of the charges to know what they are.

WAS ADJUDGED INSANE.

Emil Magnusson, who ran through the woods of Itasca county under the delusion that he was pursued by fancied enemies, was yesterday examined before Judge Ayer and committed to the asylum for the insane at Fergus Falls.

John Kraus, who was brought down from a lumber camp near Tower to be examined as to his sanity, was to have an examination this afternoon. He is apparently the victim of protracted alcoholism.

About ten days ago the Mississippi Valley Lumberman published figures showing the estimated cut to be 325,000,000. That the figures were decidedly off is shown by the true figures obtained from the mills. They are as follows:

WANTS TO DEBATE.

Bryan Would Like to Debate With McCleary.

A letter has been received from Hon. W. J. Bryan stating that he will be in Duluth Saturday morning or Saturday afternoon. He is anxious to meet Congressman McCleary in debate, and he submits two propositions. He will not discuss a limited branch of the question, but wishes to argue the whole matter. He offers to debate the proposition: "That the United States should immediately return to the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1 without the aid or consent of any other country." He will take the affirmative and open and close on this proposition, or he will give McCleary the affirmative and the opening and closing of the proposition: "That the United States should join England in the maintenance of a single gold standard."

CHICAGO AT SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 13.—Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, and staff, Mayor Swift, of Chicago, with a large party of prominent men of that city, escorted by the First regiment of Illinois, arrived here at daybreak. The local military met the visiting companies and escorted them to the several armories. The civilians were met by the mayor and a committee who escorted them to a steamer on which they embarked. While the vessel was moving down the river shouts of speeches of welcome and responses were made. This afternoon the visiting and local military paraded.

MR. BULL REACHES OUT AGAIN.

London, Nov. 13.—Prince Christian Victor, of Schleswig-Holstein, eldest son of Princess Helena, of Schleswig-Holstein, second daughter of Queen Victoria, is to accompany the British expeditionary force which is to start for Ccomassic, the capital of Ashanti, the purpose of which is to coerce the king of Ashanti into recognizing the British right to maintain a resident agent in his country. The prince was born in 1867 and is a lieutenant in the rifle corps.

COLLIDED WITH NEWSPAPER TRAIN.

Summit, N. J., Nov. 13.—Four cars which were being drawn up a steep grade on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railway near Shorthills early in the day, broke away from the locomotive and ran back at great speed, crashing into the locomotive of a newspaper train which was moving forward at a good rate. The engineer of the newspaper train, Reuben Tindall, of Washington, was killed, and his fireman, Hiram Rush, badly injured.

THE LABOR MARKET.

Men Are Pouring in From the Dakota Fields.

There has been a great revolution in the labor market during the past ten days. Two weeks ago there were orders and orders but no men. Today the shoe is on the other foot. Men have been pouring in from the North Dakota wheat fields by the thousands, and in a few days all standing orders were filled. Now all the lumber camps are supplied with all the men they want, with the exception of a few floating orders of inconsiderable proportions, and this situation is likely to continue for the balance of the season.

The sawmills are shutting down, and railroad work is coming to an end, so men are being released from still another source. Wages in the woods are being cut, and while they have been higher, they will be about the same this winter as last.

It is intimated that the cut in the woods this winter will be about 25 per cent smaller than it was last winter. There are 1000 idle laborers in Minneapolis and 200 here, and there will be more. The winter, therefore, will be a fair one, but not so good as was anticipated, and there will be plenty of idle men.

WANT IT CANCELLED.

The Binghams Do Not Like a Contract They Made.

John and Samuel Bingham this morning filed complaint in a case against J. C. Mishler to cancel a contract for the transfer of lot 5, block 74, Harrison's Brookdale division. The Binghams claim that some time ago Mishler came to them and represented that he owned some land in Pulaski county, Mo., which was valuable for farming purposes, and which he would like to trade for their Duluth lot. Accepting his representations as fact, they made the transfer, getting 120 acres of land said to be worth $1440 for their lot valued at $800.

In October John Bingham packed up and started for Missouri, according to the complaint, intending to go on the farm land which they had acquired. They claim that when he got there he found that the land was mountainous, useless, barren of soil or vegetation, and covered with sand and gravel. They want their lot back and $52.57 expenses for John's trip. J. H. Whitely is their attorney.

Joseph & Levine, doing a clothing business at 503 West Superior street, have made an assignment to David Van Baalen as the result of a suit brought by S. J. Levin. An affidavit places the value of the assets at less than $5000, and the assignee's bond in the sum of $10,000 has been filed with B. Silberstein and Michael Norris as sureties.

PRISONERS ARRAIGNED.

Several of Them Pleaded Not Guilty Yesterday.

The last batch of prisoners indicted by the grand jury before its discharge were arraigned yesterday afternoon, and one and all entered pleas of "not guilty." They were Elmer Halling, A. F. James, D. Ward Kennedy and Jacob Larson.

Several of the citizens summoned for jury duty on the Mendenhall case did not appear at the opening of court Monday according to their summons. A. W. Bradley was brought into court this morning on an attachment for contempt of court for failing to appear. He said that the attorneys told him that the case would not come up until the 25th, so he thought he did not have to appear last Monday. He was excused with instructions to appear Nov. 25. An attachment was also issued for W. P. Mosher on the same charge.

In the case of J. J. Wilson against P. G. Kramer & Co., Judge Moer yesterday directed the jury to return a verdict for the defendants, which was done.

The case of Thomas J. Hawkins against the Eastern Minnesota Railway company was next taken up and it was still on trail at noon. Hawkins was a brakeman in the employ of the company, and while working in that capacity he had his arm crushed. As a result of that accident he went insane and he is now in an insane asylum. The case was dismissed last term because it was held that the plaintiff, being insane, could not maintain his action. In bringing the case this time his wife is made the plaintiff in his behalf. The demand is $25,000, and the case is still on trial today. Cy Wellington, of St. Paul, appears for the road, and Allen & Baldwin for the plaintiff.

The case of John Grant against the Missabe road was still on trial this morning. Just before the close of yesterday's session the defense moved to dismiss on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a cause of action, and the motion was still being argued at noon.

AS TO ASSESSMENTS.

The Board of Public Works Denies Negligence.

To the Editor of The Herald:

We are at a loss to understand the motive which prompts the publication of an article so void of truth as the one which appeared in last evening's Herald regarding assessments. The article contains the statement that omissions were made from the report submitted by the board of public works to the council on the condition of assessments which do not read very favorably to the board. The report was upon assessments to be made by the council as successor of the village council of West Duluth, and if there were any omissions it is difficult to see how they could reflect unfavorably on the board, as they could only show more assessments to be made by the council.

Of assessments in charge of the board not a single one that could be made was unmade at the time of making said report. Of assessments in the list headed "Some of Those Missing" the last three are for village of West Duluth improvements and cannot be made by the board. The others are all made with the exception of a single case in which the report of commissioners in condemnation proceedings is not yet confirmed.

The article gives the dates upon which the contracts were let, but not the date of Mr. French's report, and the intended inference seems to be that the assessments are not yet made. In some of the cases mentioned the first assessment was made before a shovelful of earth was turned on the work.

In addition to this, the list is wrong. How could a contract be let for improving Twenty-eighth avenue west to Forty-seventh avenue west? If this refers to the improvement of West Third street and Grand avenue, the assessment was made Oct. 5. How much sooner could it have been done?

No contract was let for improving any portion of Minnesota avenue in 1894 at a cost of $3775, nor for half that amount. A contract was let late last fall for grading a short portion of Minnesota avenue at a cost of $270. The work was not completed until this spring, and we had either to make two assessments for this amount, which no sane man would recommend, or wait until the work was finished.

There is no Ralston street in the city that we know of, and if the assessment referred to is for sewer in Puleston street, the only improvement made there this summer, the assessment was placed in the comptroller's hands weeks ago.

As to the pending suit in regard to assessment for sewer in Fifty-fifth alley, we are anxious for the case to come to trial as soon as possible, and believe it will be the very best way of showing where the blame, if any, lies for the delay in making said assessment.

GIRL LIFE.

Women's Christian Associations Discuss It at Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, Nov. 13.—At the closing day of the international convention of the Women's and Young Women's Christian associations, W. S. Stewart, of Philadelphia, opened the discussion on "The Girl in Her Life Outside the Association, Boarding House and Vacation Homes," etc. Several delegates made short addresses regarding their experiences in connection with the subject.

The various state committees held a meeting at noon to compare notes on the general work of the organization.

The secretaries and superintendents had a conference also. Miss Sybil M. Gray, of Worcester, Mass, read a paper entitled "Work of the General Secretary and its Relation to the Association" at the afternoon session. The election of officers, which was to have taken place yesterday, will occur today.

NOTORIOUS PRIEST DEAD.

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Bishop Chatard has received word of the death at St. Minrod college, Spencer county, of Father Romano Wiensophfel, a French priest who came to America in 1839. In 1840 he was the most notorious priest in America. He was accused of criminally assaulting a woman and was sent to the penitentiary. Governor Whitcomb, father-in-law of the present governor, pardoned him after eighteen months service. The priest went back into the ministry, joined the Benedictine monks and has lived an exemplary life since.

AWFUL!

Thousands of Armenians Skinned Alived by the Porte's Order.

Atrocities by the Kurds Continue in More Horrible Degree.

Chief Butcher to be Made Grand Vizier as a Reward.

(Copyrighted 1895, by the Associated Press.)

Constantinople, Nov. 14.—There is very little change in the situation here this morning. The Italian fleet is understood to be on its way to Salonia bay to join the British fleet of about twenty warships already there.

The French fleet is expected there shortly, and the representatives of the powers, as a result of communications exchanged with their governments, have had another informal meeting at the French embassy. When the three squadrons have united and Sir Phillip Currie, the British ambassador, returns, some decided step upon the part of the powers may be anticipated. News received here today from the district of Van, records fresh massacres of Armenian Christians there. The Kurds of Van are said to be attacking and pillaging the Armenian villages, and the Turkish officials are reported to be powerless to preserve order.

A telegram received here from Sivias on Tuesday evening, but only made public today, says that a massacre of the Armenians has been commenced in that city, but according to the porte order has been restored there. The facts in the case may be expected shortly.

It is rumored here today that Shakir Pasha, the imperial high commissioner for Armenian reform, is about to be recalled in order that he may be appointed grand vizier, in succession to Hali Rifat Pasha, the present incumbent of that office. If the rumor is coorrect, this would seem to be another open defiance of the powers, for Shakir Pasha is regarded as the chief butcher of the porte. Since his appearance at Erzeroum as high commissioner, the massacres there have been more bloody and frequent than ever before, and he has done nothing to punish the offenders. In fact, he has been charged with calmly looking on, while the Turkish soldiers fired upon every helpless Christian they caught sight of.

Every day brings further details of the massacres at Erzeroum, and each report makes the story of the crimes there more ghastly. Men, women and children were shot, bayonetted, burned and outraged. The killing and mutilating lasting for weeks, though intervals of rest were recorded. The orders for these outrages are said to have been sent by the porte, and they were carried out in the most cruel manner. The number of killed will probably never be known, and is estimated at from 500 to 2000 according to Turkish or Armenian versions of the affair. Certainly many hundreds were killed, and it is even said that some of the victims were skinned alive, while others were covered with petroleum and set fire to. The Turkish officials claim that the Armenians were the aggressors, but independent reports do not accuse the Armenians with doing anything more than attempting to defend themselves.

At Marsch, the Armenians are admitted to have taken the initiative in attacking the Turks. The latter are not always to blame for the outbreaks, but there seems to be no excuse for the fiendish massacres which follow. When once the Turk begins killing, he never knows when to stop. Further troubles are also reported at Kharput and Arabikir, and at Marash, the bloodshed and outrages are said to have been even more terrible and prolonged than at Erzeroum. During the rioting at Marash, Hadjin and Orfa, the American missionaries, thanks to the strong representations made on the subject to the porte by the United States ambassador, Alexander W. Terrell, were protected by Turkish gendarmes. This it is known was by direct order of the porte, telegraphed to the Turkish officials at the places mentioned. Owing to additional disquieting news just received here from Sivias, Mr. Terrell has renewed his demand that the porte protect the missionaries, and is holding the Turkish government responsible for their lives.

Abdulla Pasha, formerly president of the Sassoun commission of inquiry, and Saabedin Pasha, have been sent to Erzeroum and Bitlis respectively to take command of the Turkish troops in those places. This lends color to the report that Shakir Pasha is coming back to Constantinople, and that he is to be appointed grand vizier.

AMERICANS IN GREAT DANGER

Boston, Nov. 14.—Today's dispatches from Constantinople state that the missionaries in Khartoom, Eastern Turkey, are in great danger. The missionaries referred to are those of the American board. Their names and their homes in the country follow: Rev. O. P. Allen, Mt. Morris, N. Y.; Mrs. Caroline R. Allen, Bangor, Me.; Rev. H. N. Barnum, D.D., Leicester, N. Y.; Mrs. Mary E. Barnum and Miss Emily M. Barnum, Auburndale, Mass.; Miss Carrie E. Bush, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Mary L. Daniels, Franklin, Mass.; Rev. Egbert S. Allis, Portland, Me.; Rev. C. F. Gates, Chicago; Mrs. Mary E. Gates, Rev. Crosby H. Wheeler, D.D., and Mrs. Susan Wheeler, Warren, Mass.; Miss Emily Wheeler, Bangor, Me.

MUST ACT AT ONCE.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The Associated Press today received the following from Dr. M. M. Mangasarian, leader of the Society of Ethical Culture in this city, and one of the best-known Armenians in the United States:

"The very recent massacres of Armenians reported from Trebisond, Erzeroum, Moosch and Diarbekir fully confirm the words spoken to me by the Turkish commissioner general to the World's Columbian exposition, Kakki Bey: 'If we (the Turks) cannot have the country, we shall see that you (the Armenians) do not get it.'

"There is very little doubt that the Turks believe their days are numbered, and are therefore determined to exterminate the Armenians, root and branch, before they themselves have been finally and forever driven out of the civilized world.'

"If Europe is to act at all, it must act at once, for soon it will be too late to undertake the salvation, as there will be no Armenians left to save."

NO REVOLUTION.

Yesterday's League Meeting Passes Without Sensation.

New York, Nov. 14.—For the past few days it has been rumored that when the presidents of the several National Baseball League clubs met there would be a wordy war and a good deal of wing clipping, particularly between two very prominent Eastern representatives. Everything so far has passed off very amicably, and when the delegates adjourned last evening, they all seemed to be on the best of terms with each other. Early in the day there were conflicting rumors as to the formation of the "Big Four." Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and New York were said to have combined to make things exceedingly interesting for the other eight cities represented in the National league, and their chief object was the abolition of Sunday playing. Added to this, it was said that the quartet would insist on the adoption of the double umpire system. President A. J. Reach, of the Philadelphia club, denied most emphatically that he or any other one representing the Philadelphia, had entered into a "combine," and that the first intimation he had of such a thing reached him through this morning's newspapers.

At the business session yesterday, Chris Von der Ahe, of St. Louis, made a claim for remuneration in the well known Pitcher McFarland case, but after deliberation the board decided that McFarland rightly belonged to Cincinnati, and that St. Louis president's claim should not be allowed.

The board of directors got through their business shortly after 2 o'clock, and the regular meeting of the league did not convene until 4 o'clock. After the meeting, Secretary Young said that the only business transacted was the formal awarding of the championship to Baltimore, and the reading of the treasurer's report, which was accepted. Section 2, paragraph 1, of the rules was altered so that the words in the third line "for the future" were stricken out.

During the day there was a large attendance of National league umpires, who were summoned to appear before the National league to tell what treatment they had received at the hands of the players during the past and previous seasons. This is evidently a move made by the delegates to enforce stricter regulations for the protection of umpires against obstructive and abusive players.

The Eastern league was represented very largely, and Jim Manning, of Kansas City, was on hand representing the Western league, in order to have the Eastern and Western minor interests represented on the national board, which has the deciding of all claims and differences arising in the minor clubs. President Powers, of the Eastern league, said that the matter would be more fully considered at their meeting in December next, and their claims would be laid before the national board next year.

Among the prominent managers who were looking for good exchanges and constantly talking to the many players who were gathered in the corridors of the hotel were Arthur Irwin, Dave Foulz, Ned Hanlon, Buck Ewing and Connie Mack. Arthur Irwin was very anlous to secure Nash from the Bostons, but President Fredman and he delayed a little too long in coming to terms, as the Philadelphias traded Billy Hamilton, the outfielder, for Bostons third baseman. Hamilton will take McCarthy's place in the outfield for the bean eaters, and Nash will play third and captain the Philadelphia team. The New Yorkers made several attempts, unsuccessfully, to trade Boyle off for a good player and a consideration, among those named being Latham, of Cincinnati, and Cooley, of St. Louis.

CRISIS COMING.

Combined Spanish and Cuban Forces to Meet.

Madrid, Nov. 14.—Dispatches received here from Havana say that the insurgent leader, Roloff, is at Siguinca, province of Santa Clara, awaiting Maximo Gomez, at the head of a force of insurgents, and with the intention of advancing upon the city of Santa Clara, the headquarters of Capt. Gen. Martinez De Campos, who is known to be preparing to give battle to the combined insurgent forces. Campos is now on his way to Siguinca, and a most important engagement is expected.

Gomez recently changed his tactics of attempting to tire out the Spanish troops, owing to the decision of the Cuban revolutionary assembly in New York, which is understood to consider it urgent that the insurgents bring about a decisive engagement with the troops in order that the revolutionists may obtain recognition as belligerents from the United States. Four new gunboats have arrived in Cuban waters to take part in the blockade of the coast of the island.

SOO ROAD SUED.

Forest Fire Damages of $95,000 Demanded.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 14.—Green Bay attorneys have prepared complaints in a suit against the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company for $95,000 damages. The actions are eleven in number and the claims are based on an allegation that the fires which swept over Northern Wisconsin last year, destroying hundred of thousands worth of property, were started by sparks from locomotives owned by the defendant company.

Ten of the plaintiffs are residents of Price county and one, John Driscoll, lives in Green Bay. Driscoll asks $45,000 for property destroyed by the fires and his case will be tried at the present term of court. The fires occurred at the time the city of Phillips was destroyed and twenty or thirty lives lost.

BACK FROM HIS TRAVELS.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 14.—A special to the Times from Grinnell, Ia., says: Detective Force arrived from Mexico this morning with Richard Rowe, charged with complicity in Chester Rowe's embezzlement of $38,000 of county money while treasurer. He was arrested July 19, but extradited only last week.

A TWO-TIME RECEIVER.

Cincinnati, Nov. 14.—Judge Taft today appointed Henry Fink receiver of the Norfolk & Western railway on petition of the Mercantile Trust company, holding $16,000,000 of mortgage bonds. Fink had already been appointed receiver for the Fidelity Trust company, of Philadelphia, holding other mortgage bonds.

HOT TALK

Secretary Hinrichssen, of Illinois Retorts Sharply to Postmaster Hesing.

Democratic Defeats Due to Treachery of the Gold Monometallists.

The Masses Demand Bimetallism, and on That Democracy Must Stand.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14.—An interesting and somewhat acrimonious correspondence has sprung up since the last election between Postmaster Washington Hesing, of Chicago, and the Hon. W. W. Hinrichssen, secretary of state and chairman of the Democratic central committee. It was begun by Mr. Hesing, who made an effort to harmonize the factions of the Democratic party of Illinois, and invited Mr. Hinrichssen to abandon the so-called "16 to 1 heresy" and bring his followers back into the fold of orthodox Democracy and "sound money."

"The Democratic party is not dead," wrote Mr. Hesing: "The Democratic party has some possible chance of winning, if the old principles of the party are adhered to. The defeat in the Eighteenth congressional district is not a Democratic defeat. It is a defeat of free coinage. Had the Democratic convention maintained an honest money standard and the Democrats made an honest money fight and not imported Bland, Ryan and Stone, not only honest money Democrats, but the independent vote would have gone for such candidates. As it was, little or nothing was said about the principles of Democracy, but free coinage alone was the watchword in that campaign.

"If the Democratic party desires to win, if the Democratic state central committee wishes Democratic success, it must change its policy. I want to say most emphatically that the 150,000 German-American votes in this state can never be won over to the Democratic party next year if any of its candidates, congressional, state or national, advocate free coinage or stand on a free coinage plank. This has been demonstrated by the election last Tuesday, not only in Illinois, but in Kentucky and in Nebraska. In order to succeed in this state we need harmony. The Democrats must go back to first principles. If next year we will make the fight for personal liberty, honest money and tariff reform—that is to say, 'let well enough alone,' because the business interests of this country do not desire it to be changed—we may win; if not, not.

"I write this to you with the spirit of letting the dead bury the dead. Let the past be forgotten. Let us not fight amongst ourselves, but fight the common enemy. Let us come together and reconcile our differences and harmonize our interests. There should be an early understanding among the Democrats of this state in regard to the policy to be pursued next year, and after the experience of last Tuesday sound judgment and common sense would promote the abandoning of free coinage as being unpolitic and as against the interests of the Democratic party."

In reply Mr. Hinrichssen said: "I fully agree with you that the 'Democratic party is not dead' and that the 'Democratic party has some chance of winning if the old principles of the party are adhered to,' but you and I evidently look at the situation from different points of view. It is to be expected that you, a servant, or as a part of the national administration, will be expected to uphold the policy of President Cleveland, but that you can be expected to pass on what constitutes real Democratic principles is absurd. In calling together the state committee last April and in submitting to them the proposition to call a state convention to consider the money question, I was acting in response to the popular demand from the Democratic masses in the state. The response made by the Democracy of the state to that call is proof that I was not mistaken in my judgment.

"There has been no falling off in the silver sentiment in the Democratic party in this state. Ninety per cent of the Democrats still favor the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and while I am aware that the metropolitan press and many federal office holders are energetically maintaining that the silver sentiment is disappearing, yet I have positive evidence to the contrary.

"Without this silver plank, the Democrats could not have carried a single voting precinct in the Eighteenth district. The causes which brought our defeat were the same as those in all states where elections were held except in Mississippi, where they had a free silver platform. In the Eighteenth district the Republicans received aid from Democrats in high places. Men like President Cleveland and Senator Palmer rejoiced openly over Mr. Lane's defeat, and that the gold men in the party were pleased over this Republican victory is shown by the tone of your letter.

"You make the suggestion that we 'bury the past and get together.' That would perhaps be easy for you if we would get together on your platform, but you have never indicated what that platform should be. The Democracy of this state is, of course, a unit on the cariff question—on personal liberty, etc.—but on the money question the faction of the party to which you belong has never yet defined itself. Your faction has never dared to place itself on record as favoring any definite policy on the money question. You say you are for 'honest money.' Every man is for honest money, but what do you mean by the term? President Cleveland has shown clearly that he is in favor of gold monometallism, and it is presumed that you agree with him, although some members of your faction call themselves bimetallists. We have defined our position; you should define yours.

"This question is one that will have to be settled by the people in their consciences and not by self-appointed leaders, bureaus or leagues, and the way to get together is to meet in convention, decide upon party action and submit to the will of the majority.

"Your attempt to separate the Germans into a class with interests at variance with those of other citizens is undemocratic and ridiculous. In trying to build up a class within the party you forget that 500,000 Democrats in the state of Illinois will not surrender a principle in order to placate any class. It is not true, as you say, that the Germans are opposed to free silver; but if they were, would it be good politics to surrender a principle and thereby throw away one half of our vote to satisfy a small portion?"

Japan May Have Warships Built Here.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Although Japanese officials have denied that the mikado will spend $200,000,000 in warships, it is reported in advices by the steamer Coptic today that these vessels are to be built abroad, and that possibly the orders for them will be equally distributed among the shipbuilders of England, France, Germany, Italy and the United States. Count Olluma is in favor of such a distribution of the prizes, and says in relation to orders for men-of-war from abroad that it would be advisable to give the contracts to any country that is capable of constructing good vessels of new style without limiting the orders to any one in particular. Leaving aside England and France, which are known as maritime provinces, the country should pay regard to Italy, although her shipbuilding capacity is not much known to Japan. She is the power which originated the idea of building men-of-war of 10,000 tons, and thus commenced a new era in the construction of war vessels.

Count Olluma further says: "Next we would look to the United States, the excellence of her iron works, the stability of the men-of-war built by her and the cleanness in design are not only what Americans are proud of, but even the old countries of Europe recognize these facts. Moreover, as the United States is our best customer in trade, and as her friendship is warm, she is also a power to whom contracts should be given. Besides the two countries are England, France and Germany, which each boast of their specialty, so that if ten ships are to be built abroad and the orders are equally distributed among those five powers, two to each, it would arouse competition between them and result in the empire's interest."

ALGER RETORTS.

Denies Senator Sherman's Charges in Kind.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—The attention of Gen. R. A. Alger being called to the references to him in the second volume of Senator Sherman's memoirs, the proof sheets of which had been sent to various newspapers throughout the country, Gen. Alger said: "I am very much surprised that Senator Sherman, laboring under the disappointment of not receiving a nomination, should connect my name with it. If he knows anything about the matter he knows that his charges against me were without foundation. There never was a time when his combined vote and mine would have nominated him in the convention of 1888. My request to my friends was that in case my nomination was not possible, they should cast their votes for Gen. Harrison believing as I did that a soldier should be nominated. Second to him, I asked them to support Senator Sherman. If any money was used, which I do not believe, to purchase votes from the South, it was against my positive instructions and no bill of the kind has ever been presented to or paid by me.

"I never could understand why Senator Sherman should try to blight the name of a man who has never by any act injured him or any other man."

IN BIG DEMAND.

With Larger Iron Productions Stocks Fall Off.

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—The Iron Trade Review this week will say: "The anomaly of some phases of the iron situation is emphasized in the current statistics of stocks and production. The October figures showed, as those of the preceding months had shown, that production of pig iron increased in a marked degree in that month, and yet stocks continued to decrease. Coke iron stocks fell 25,000 tons in October, leaving but 170,000 tons or less than a week's supply of that iron on hand—a smaller amount than has been reached at any time since 1888.

When it is considered that the furnaces of the country are producing at the yearly rate of nearly 11,500,000 tons of pig iron and that at the beginning of the month the consumption was in excess of this rate, the inherent strength of the situation becomes apparent, in spite of the evidence of weakness that appears in the limited business of the past few weeks. Returns from the districts producing the bulk of the country's Bessemer iron shows increasing production, no stocks on hand and continued weakness in price, though consumption is at the highest rate yet attained.

DECISION

Involves 800,000 Acres of Northern Pacific Lands In Wisconsin.

Secretary Smith Holds the Terminus Is Not at Ashland.

All Selections of Lands East of Superior Are Held Up.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Secretary Smith decided a very important case today, holding that the Eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific is at either Thomson, Minn., or Superior, Wis., instead of Ashland, Wis., as has always been claimed by the company. About 800,000 acres of land are involved, which is lost by the company. The secretary does not undertake to say whether the grant begins at Thomson or Superior city, but directs all selections for indemnity between these points held for further consideration. He does declare that the grant of the Northern Pacific does not extend east of Superior city. He says he is aware that the lands east of Superior were the basis for the selection of a large quantity of lands from the indemnity arising from the company's grant in North Dakota. These selections having been made some time ago, many, if not all, have perhaps been sold by the company. The secretary has directed that the company be allowed sixty days from the notice of this decision within which to specify a new basis for any of its indemnity selections voided by this decision, and that during that period no contracts against such selections, where the charge is that the basis was made of lands east of Superior City, or against applications to enter under the settlement laws, will be received.

STILL COMPLAIN.

Red River Farmers Allege Unjust Treatment.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 14.—The wheat situation in the Red River valley is one which occasions much complaint from the farmers. There is no section from which a larger sized nor more unanimous kick is being registered at present than from the towns along the line of the St Vincent extension north of Crookston. The fifty or sixty elevators along that line are filled to overflowing from the immense crop of wheat, which the broad acres of this valley have produced, and very meager transportation facilities are furnished. The cry was heard by the state railroad commission and a visit was made. Complaints were heard, and they were backed up by voluminous affidavits proving that cars had not been furnished in anything like the desired quantity, and alleging that farmers and track buyers have not stood an equal show with the elevators in procuring cars.

The commission returned and very gravely assert that the injustice is not so much in the lack of cars, but that the farmers are not getting a proper grade for their product, as the elevators have no bins empty but those for No. 2 northern or rejected, and that all the wheat must go at these grades. The farmers, it is alleged, are being swindled right and left. The result of the visit is not apparent in an increase of cars and the grading continues after the same plan. The elevators at Wasson were furnished fifteen cars on Thursday last. They were loaded within one hour and thirty minutes and later not a bushel of better than No. 2 northern would be received as the bins were full of all better grades.

IT'S NOT BUSINESS.

Innkeeper Gray Won't Testify Against Colonel Colt.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 14.—A local paper publishes an interview with C. W. Gray, of Gray's Inn, Jackson, N. H., whose deposition is eagerly being sought by the plaintiff's lawyers in the suit for divorce brought against Col. S. P. Colt, who charges James J. Van Alen, the New York society man, with having alienated the affections of his wife. Mr. Gray was in Boston today and in referring to the case said:

"If I had appeared before Commissioner Wood to make a deposition I should have nothing to say. I could have given no testimony of value to either side and I should have declined to go into a discussion of the matter in any way. The woman mentioned in the case could have stayed as long as she wished as far as I am concerned. She had conducted herself all right and was at liberty to do so as she wished."

Mr. Gray did not want it understood, because he refused to say anything about the colonel and the young woman whose name has been mentioned, that he knew anything derogatory to them, but he felt as a landlord, that it was not proper to discuss anything concerning his guests, or what they did.

"I have been in my business too many years," he said, "to talk about all I see and hear."

AND STILL AT LARGE.

The mad man then barricaded himself in his house and fired upon the gendarmes who surrounded the building.

BOSSES

John G. Wooley Attacks the Officers of the Christian Endeavor.

Drastic Criticism of President Clarke and His Policy.

An Alleged Combination to Suppress Criticism of Any Kind.

Boston, Nov. 14.—John G. Wooley, who has a controversy with President Francis E. Clarke, of the Christian Endeavor, has written a letter to the society at large in which he declares that the "corporation policy" adopted by the management leaves nothing to the judgment of the members. Mr. Wooley says: "The president of the corporation that controls the United Societies of Christian Endeavor is also chief owner of the Golden Rule. There are some 3,000,000 of us privates. We have no president, no trustees, no secretary, or no treasurer, no newspaper, no voice, and so I am forced to address you individually through the mails or submit to the injustice and tyranny of boss rule, which I refuse to do, for your sake, no less than my own.

"On Oct. 17 the Voice, newspaper, published an article containing portions of two speeches of mine, one delivered before the Genesee M. E. conference at Rochester, N. Y., and the other before the New York M. E. conference at Newark, N. J., on Oct. 15, in which I alluded to Francis E. Clarke in terms derogatory to his leadership of the Christian citizenship movement in our society, but not otherwise. On Oct. 22 Mr. Clarke, Mr. Baer and Mr. Shaw had letters in the Boston papers, and later in the Voice, from which it appears that Messrs. Baer, Shaw and probably Clarke are party prohibitionists. The Associated Press dispatch of Oct. 26 contained my reply. On Oct. 31 the Golden Rule published one side of the matter and suppressed the other—suppressed I say—but also since that time has been requested to publish my side and has promptly and curtly refused, which was, perhaps, fair enough to me, but not to you. This accords with the stated policy of the corporation.

"I do not even suspect that there is any conscious selfishness in the management of our organ. It would doubtless be an advantage if the 3,000,000 members had less chaperoning and more responsibility. On Oct. 28 I sent to the secretary of the United society a scheme of conciliation substance as follows:

"First—I apologize to Mr. Clarke for the sharp language of my Newark speech and suppress so much of it as related to him, it being still under my control and not having been as yet issued in pamphlet form.

"Second—Mr. Clarke to apologize to me for his conduct in the corridor of the Brunswick and print my Boston Common speech as written, with his comments upon its points seriatim.

"Third—Mr. Baer to write a brief statement of the difficulty and its settlement, this statement to be signed by himself, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Shaw and myself, and printed in the Golden Rule.

"Fourth—The whole matter to end there as to all its personal features.

"This proposition was also rejected, and so, having done all that I could, I stand and write you this for truth's sake and conscience sake. Nothing could induce me to lead a division of our society. We ought to be loyal and respectful to our leaders, but leaders are very prone to forget that they owe us loyalty also. And a president of our society whose attitude toward the saloon is indefinite in its ordinary details, is deficient in loyalty or bravery or capacity. My thought is that speech was infinitely bigger than the Prohibition party.

"Finally I confess myself baffled and beaten in this last effort. Mr. Clarke's exact whereabouts remain undiscovered, but the effort has value for what it did not accomplish.

"After such a trial one feels like a returned Polar expedition—as if one had been close to a place which has neither latitude or longitude, nor quiet. I will meet you at the equator. John G.xzfiflff meet you at the equator.

"John G. Wooley."

NO BIDDERS.

Deer River Section Goes to Buyer Simms.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Grand Rapids, Minn., says: The celebrated Deer River school section was included in the sale here today by State Auditor Dunn. He examined the situation carefully and first offered it by quarters. Receiving no bids though the county office was crowded with lumbermen, Auditor Dunn called for the parties who have been fighting over the Deer River property and said if they did not want it in quarters he would offer the whole of it, section 36, township 145, range 25, but that he wanted to get all possible out of it for the state. The only bidder was J. P. Simms, the original purchaser, who took it at the price of the former contract, $5 per acre.

There were no bids for the balance of 2400 acres offered. A limited amount of stumpage, mostly odd pieces, was sold at good figures, averaging about $2 per 1000. Among the buyers of stumpage were Maurice Quinn, Price Brothers, M. McCarthy and Powers, Simpson & Co.

PALPABLE PENSION FRAUD.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14.—The arrest of James V. Busby, who has been lodged in jail here by federal officers for presenting a fraudulent pension claim, brings to light a second Bill Newby case. Busby was arrested yesterday at the home of his son, John Busby, at Colusa, Hancock county, Ill., and waiving examination, was lodged in jail here until Judge Allen's return from Chicago, when he will be sent to Kansas City, Mo., for trial. Busby is 66 years old and very infirm. He says he resides with his daughter, Mrs. Ida Norris, 746 East Seventeenth street, Kansas City. He says he served in the Second Missouri cavalry, and acknowledged presenting a claim for a pension, representing himself to be George W. Eaton. It seems Eaton is living, and had a claim in for a pension, and in this way the fraud was discovered.

Eastern Minnesota's Surplus Reaches Nearly Half a Million.

Largest Relative Increase Has Been on the Montana Division.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—The annual reports of the Great Northern and the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba were issued yesterday, a month earlier than last year. The sixth annual report of the Great Northern Railway company for the year ending June 30, 1895, shows that the general indications along the line are better than most people supposed, and that the property is ably and economically managed. The gross and net earnings of the Willmar & Sioux Falls were respectively, $355,800.66 and $122,918.04. The Duluth, Watertown & Pacific gross earnings were $15,346.72 and the net deficit $14,947.47. Speaking of business conditions, the report says: "During the year ending June 30, 1895, this company has enjoyed a reasonable increase in the volume of its freight traffic, a good share of which has come from the western portions of its lines in Montana and on the Pacific coast. The largest relative tonnage increase has been on the Montana division. BIG OUTTURN.

But Minneapolis Flour Market Was Duller.

Minneapolis, Nov. 14.—The Northwestern Miller gives the following summary of the week's milling news: The flour output last week at Minneapolis was 256,040 barrels, against 254,900 for the same week last year. For the present week the Minneapolis mills promise to run close to 300,000 barrels. The water power is less favorable. Flour was pretty quiet again last week.

Millers usually lacking a good deal of selling as much as they made. The downward tendency of wheat had much to do with the abstemious policy of buyers. Export trade was especially light. Domestic trade last week was far from good and prices in the East were lowered 10 cents per barrel. Millers are now working hard to get as much stuff as possible into transit for lake shipment. Feed, particularly middlings, is very dull, with prices at least 25 cents lower; but Minneapolis is much stronger than the country.

Export flour shipments were 30,300 barrels, against 175,500 the week before, 84,000 in 1894, and 48,000 in 1893.

The balance of cash on hand at the savings bank is $93,325. Hawaiian bonds in London are quoted at 102@103. Minister Damon considers the credit of the country as being first class.

SWELLS' NIGHT.

Marlborough Attracted Society to the Horse Show.

New York, Nov. 14.—The duke and duchess of Marlborough were among the guests at the horse show last night, and were the observed of all observers. The scene in the garden when they arrived was more brilliant than at any time during the show. The duke and his bride took seats with Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, not in a box but in the first row back of the boxes, close to the box of George J. Gould.

William K. Vanderbilt also occupied a box. Sharing it with him were Mrs. James Waterbury and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr. The Astors and all of the other leaders of the society were present so that there was a wonderful display of dress.

The attendance of the rank and file of New Yorkers was great on account of the expectation that the duke and his bride would be visible, so that the horses, which ostensibly were the attraction were altogether secondary in point of interest. No night in the history of New York horse shows has seen such a crowd.

LAYS DOWN A PORTFOLIO.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Frank W. Hatch, of Hawaii, who arrived in San Francisco Tuesday to become Hawaiian minister to this country, lays down the importance of minister of foreign affairs of Hawaiian cabinet, which it is understood has been tendered to Lorin M. Thurston, formerly minister here. Mr. Thurston has returned to his law practice, and it is not likely that he will go into President Dole's cabinet. It is believed that Judge Cooper will be Mr. Hatch's successor. Judge Cooper was born in Indiana, but spent his early days in Boston. He was prominent at the time of the overthrow of the ex-queen, and was the first to enter the government building after the queen's fall. Mr. Castle, the present Hawaiian minister here, will remain until the arrival of Mr. Hatch, about Dec. 1.

WEDDING

Novel Ehtertainment to be Given at the Great Eastern Hall Tonight.

Real Marriage is Advertised to Take Place on the Stage.

Hazelwood Park Presbyterian Church Will Manage the Whole Affair.

Tonight a rather novel entertainment has been arranged at Great Eastern hall for the benefit of Hazelwood Park Presbyterian church. Among the novelties advertised for the occasion is a real marriage on the stage. The names of the contracting parties have been kept secret, although good guessers claim that they can point out the bride and groom.

According to the printed hand bills the affair will wind up with a social dance, which appears to be a peculiar diversion for a church entertainment. This announcement is said to have startled some of the straight laced Presbyterians off from their perches, and led them to wonder where the members of Hazelwood Park church are at.

PENNSYLVANIA DAY.

Gov. Hastings' Eloquent Address at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 14.—This is Pennsylvania day at the exposition, and one of the largest crowds of the fair season is on the grounds, where the Keystone state has the "right-of-way." The formal exercises of the day took place in the auditorium, where Governor Hastings, of Pennsylvania, who is here with his staff, made the chief speech, as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: This is Pennsylvania day in Atlanta at the cotton states and international exposition. We are here by your invitation, and we find on all sides the evidences of your hearty welcome and your well-known hospitality. The state flags of Georgia and Pennsylvania are intertwined today in hearty good will. In our journey here we crossed no sectional lines; they have been obliterated; they never should have been allowed to mar the map of the United States. In the revolutionary war Georgia and Pennsylvania fought side by side. I proclaim to you that the patriotic heart of Pennsylvania beats as warmly and as steadfastly for Georgia and her sister states today as when they fought to obtain a government upon the rock of freedom."

He said that Pennsylvania had brought an offering of friendship, and closed as follows: "The starry banner first flung to the breeze in Philadelphia, now floats in peace and glory over an undivided nation. We in Pennsylvania believe in the union of states; we believe in a common country, a common flag, a common Americanism, a community of interest and patriotism."

MISSION ENDED.

Messiah Schlatter Flees to Escape Arrest.

Denver, Nov. 14.—Francis Schlatter, the so-called healer and Messiah, disappeared last night, and a warrant for his arrest has been issued from the United States court. He had been summoned to appear before the United States commissioner today as a witness against persons arrested on a charge of using the mails to defraud by pretending to sell handkerchiefs blessed by Schlatter. The accused claim they could prove Schlatter had really blessed a bale of handkerchiefs for them, and in that case he was liable to indictment. He left a note simply saying: "My mission in Denver is ended. Good bye."

Over 3000 people assembled this morning, expecting to receive treatment from Schlatter.

THE workman often eats his lunch on the same bench where he does his work. The office man turns his desk into a dining-table. Neither gets the out of doors exercise he needs, neither takes the proper time for eating. It is small wonder that the digestion of both gets out of order. In such cases Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come to their assistance by aiding nature in taking care of the food.

The cause of nine-tenths of the sickness of the world is constipation. From this one cause come indigestion; disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys; biliousness, headaches, flatulence, heartburn, impurity of the blood and the serious complications that follow. To begin with, constipation is a little thing, and a little thing will cure it. The "Pleasant Pellets" are tiny, sugar-coated granules. They will perfectly cure the worst cases of constipation and indigestion. If the druggist tries to sell you some other pill that pays him greater profit, just think of what will best pay you.

FIRMER

There Was a More Bullish Tone to the Wheat Market Today.

Cash Stuff Was Strong and Shippers Advanced the Premium.

Mills are Reported Taking Wheat Out of Store at Minneapolis.

Wheat ruled firm and steady but rather inactive, so far as speculative trading was concerned, here today. There was a stronger feeling at the start, and the Duluth market was firmer than that at Chicago. Heavy receipts, favorable weather and a poor showing on export clearances were the principal features of the conditions influencing the markets. The receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis showed a heavy increase. There were 541 cars here against 374 on the corresponding date last year, and the receipts aggregated 419,705 bus.

The Liverpool market came ⅛d higher at the opening, which of course, was because of the advance on this side yesterday. English consols were likewise reported to have dropped 10-16, and that was interpreted as owing to a more threatening aspect of the European Eastern question. The latter view was in some measure corroborated by a private cablegram to a Chicago house in the export trade which said apprehensions regarding the European political situation were creating serious uneasiness. In addition to the above St. Louis appeared to have private reasons for feeling bullish regarding wheat for December delivery in that market, seeing that it made an advance of ¼c per bus in the first three quarters of an hour of the session, at a time when Chicago had thought ⅜c sufficient recognition of the bullish features of the early dispatches. Those matters, taken altogether, gave a firm tone to the dealings in the wheat pit during the forenoon. Later the official bulletin of English consols showed they were firmer instead of weaker than they closed yesterday. At Berlin wheat was ¼ mark higher. At Paris wheat was 5 centimes lower and flour 5 to 10 centimes lower. New York reported five loads worked for export. A Chicago dispatch stated that Pardridge, in an interview, said he believed wheat will sell lower, not very much but he expects to see 55c for December and 60c for May, and at these figures he would be willing to get out and wait for an advance.

Cash wheat was much stronger here than it has been for some time past, and it is apparent the strength at Minneapolis is spreading here. So great is the demand at Minneapolis for cash stuff that the mills are taking wheat out of store. The shippers and elevators here advanced the premium today to ⅜c over December and took about 200,000 bus, while the mills paid ¼@⅜c over December for 70,000 bus. December opened unchanged at 54¼c and advanced ⅜c early, after which it ruled dull. May opened ⅛c up at 59¼c, declined ⅛c, reacted to 59⅜c and then eased off again to 59c. The close was unchanged from yesterday. Barley sold by sample at 24½@27½c. Flax was selling at 88@88¾c. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade. Chicago, Nov. 14.—A reported marked decline in consols (which was afterwards denied) was the main cause of higher prices for wheat soon after the opening. A quick advance at St. Louis in December wheat had also some effect here, although it was believed to be due partly to manipulation. There is a difference of opinion as to farmers' deliveries, and country advices come both ways. The receipts today showed some signs of falling off, but many claim that the let-up is but temporary. The buyers of the last two days were the best sellers today, and the market closes a trifle easier than last night. Cable news is not encouraging to any advance here, and the decline in flour is not calculated to help matters.

Corn was without important features but a trifle easier in local selling. Well posted traders predict lighter receipts of hogs in the near future, and pork products at present prices are looked upon as good property.

Stocks—The market was strong until within an hour of the close, when it was reported that gold shipments Saturday would reach $2,000,000. The market was very weak at the close with prices about the same as yesterday.

Puts, December wheat, 57⅛c.
Calls, December wheat, 57⅝@¾c.
Curb, December wheat, 57½@⅝c.
Puts and calls, May corn, 29⅝c.

NEW CENTURY RECORD.

Louisville, Nov. 14.—Last night at Fountain Ferry R. P. Searle, the Chicago-New York rider, lowered the record for 100 miles from 4 hours 27 minutes to 4 hours 22½ minutes. He had started for the 24-hour record, but stopped at the end of the century.

OTTAWA STATION BURNED.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 14.—The Canadian Pacific railway station here, with all its contents, was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is not known, but will be heavy.

A MINNESOTA APPOINTEE.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The president has appointed Charles R. Simpkins, of Massachusetts, secretary of the United States legation to Chili. He has also made a number of consular appointments, but as these are in each case reappointments of persons at present now in the consular service, the appointees are not required to pass the examinations necessary. Frank D. Hill, of Minnesota, is appointed to be consul at La Guayara, Venezuela.

OLD OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

New York, Nov. 14.—The board of directors of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad elected the old officers and staff.

ATCHISON REORGANZIATION.

Boston, Nov. 14.—The meeting of the reorganization committee of the Atchison railway has again been postponed to allow of the arrival of Mr. Luden, of Amsterdam, Holland, who represents large interests in Amsterdam and elsewhere in Europe. Mr. Luden is expected on tomorrow's steamer. The meeting will probably be held next Monday.

CHANGES IN DIRECTORATE.

New York, Nov. 14.—Mrs. J. M. Moore and H. M. Cannon have resigned as directors of the Northern Improvement company. Mr. Moore has been elected a director.

PROBABLE GOLD SHIPPERS.

New York, Nov. 14.—A canvess of the leading exchange houses narrows the probable gold shippers to two banking firms, although several others admit they have not fully determined their position. A bank official who is close to a representative of a large foreign firm, says they will probably postpone operations until next week. On the other hand, a leading German bank expects to send out this week from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. The firm was a large seller of cables today. The demand for exchange is not notably large, but actual rates have risen to the highest figure recently quoted.

KILLED BY TRAMPS.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—The body of Luther H. Beecher, a meber of a very prominent family of this city, was found on a railway track near La Pere this morning, having been run over and mangled by a train late last night. Beecher's boots were missing, but were subsequently seen on the feet of a tramp. His pocket book was empty. Two tramps have been arrested near Saginaw on suspicion.

MR. ROCKEFELLER SQUIRMING.

A remarkable article with a Minneapolis date line appeared in the Chicago Times-Herald of Monday last and has since been repeated by nearly every paper in St. Paul and Minneapolis. It purports to give a review of the case tried in Duluth last June when a verdict for $940,000 was returned in favor of Alfred Merritt against John D. Rockefeller for damages on account of misrepresentation of the value of the mining properties on the Gogebic and in Cuba, which were put into the Consolidated company along with the Mesaba mines owned by the Merritt brothers. The article is remarkable because all the evidence in the case was published fully at the time of the trial, and the review now given is an utterly unfair presentation of the facts proven at the trial, and upon the strength of which the jury gave a verdict in favor of Mr. Merritt. The whole article is so palpably biased, that it is evident to any person acquainted with the facts that it was written with a purpose, and as Mr. Rockefeller's appeal to the United States court of appeals is to be heard next month, it is not very difficult to understand the purpose of the writer of this review or to reach the conclusion that he was well paid for his trouble.

It is noticeable that all the Twin City papers, in reproducing the article from the Times-Herald, carefully omitted to republish the opening paragraph, because they well know that its statements would condemn at the outset the whole article in the eyes of the Minnesota people, and particularly their readers who reside in Duluth and vicinity. Here is the opening paragraph as it originally appeared in the Chicago paper:

"Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—The recent munificent gift of $3,000,000 to the university of Chicago by John D. Rockefeller calls to mind the extraordinary verdict of a Populist jury by which, in June last, at Duluth, a judgment of $940,000 was awarded against the philanthropist in a suit brought by Alfred Merritt, a mining speculator, for damages on account of an alleged misrepresentation of the value of mining property purchased by plaintiff from the defendant in the case. Thoughtful citizens will reflect, in contemplating this curious finding of a Populist jury, that men who thus contribute with princely liberality and rare intelligence to the cause of education are not composed of the metal out of which swindlers are made, and the inference is inevitable that the verdict which, if it should stand as the judgment of the court, would carry for all time an aspersion against the integrity of the plaintiff in the suit, that the punishment was not against the offense charged in the pleadings; but a penalty for that industry, ability and thrift which made Mr. Rockefeller a rich man. For this reason an appeal has been taken which will be heard next month."

The attempt made to cast a slur upon the jury which returned the verdict shows that John D. Rockefeller and his minions are squirming very much at the prospect of being compelled, by the court of appeals sustaining the verdict, to pay nearly $1,000,000 to Alfred Merritt. Nor is this the sole cause of their squirming and of the brazen attempt to mislead the public and create a sentiment that Mr. Rockefeller is not receiving justice. There are other members of the Merritt family who have a similar cause of action against Mr. Rockefeller, and the aggregate amount of their claims reaches into the millions. The case of Alfred Merritt was in one sense a test case. And this is another reason why John D. Rockefeller is now squirming and endeavoring to manufacture public sentiment that might work to his pecuniary advantage when the other cases are brought to trial.

Instead of being "a Populist jury," by which term Mr. Rockefeller's special pleader evidently intended to impugn its intelligence, it was a jury of more than average ability. Among the members of the jury were the following residents of Duluth: J. M. Geist, a prominent jeweler; Simon Clark, a leading grocer; E. A. Mattix, a well known druggist, and P. V. Flynn, a vessel agent's clerk, who is favorably known. The other eight jurors were from different parts of the state and were entirely unprejudiced, as were the four from Duluth. That the jury had no prejudice against Mr. Rockefeller is shown by the fact that it gave Mr. Merritt a verdict for $200,000 less than he was entitled to under the rule of damages laid down by Judge Riner.

The article gives a very biased history of the case, but space will not permit The Herald to point the numerous misstatements which it contains. Every person who read the reports of the trial will perceive the utter falsity of the story as now given from Mr. Rockefeller's standpoint. The charges made by Mr. Merritt against Mr. Rockefeller were damaging in the extreme, but Mr. Rockefeller did not have the courage to come to Duluth and deny them in open court. Instead he made a deposition in New York, in which he solemnly swore that the only conversation he ever had with Lon Merritt, when the negotiations for the consolidation began, was solely about the weather. This is what he asked sensible men to believe. The jury decided that Mr. Merritt told the truth, and that he had been grievously wronged by Mr. Rockefeller. It was an honest jury and its verdict is respected by the people of Duluth who are acquainted with the facts. Mr. Rockefeller was ably defended by eminent counsel, who would not have failed to win had his cause been just.

It was conclusively shown at the trial that the iron companies whose stock Mr. Rockefeller put into the Consolidated company with the valuable Merritt properties were bankrupt and soon went into a receiver's hands, although M. Rockefeller, through his agent, represented that they were solvent and possessed very valuable properties. It was shown by Mr. Rockefeller's business associates that he misrepresented the condition of these companies.

The article misrepresents the earnings of the Mesaba properties this year. It says none of them, except those leased on royalties, have made a dollar. This is because large sums have been expended this year in the work of development, etc. But the article in the Times-Herald neglects to say anything about the railroad's profits. It is stated on good authority that from the mines and the railroad Mr. Rockefeller cleared this year, even at the low price of ore, $1,000,000. But it is unnecessary to correct all the errors and misstatements contained in the article. It was written with no regard for the facts. Its sole purpose was to whitewash Mr. Rockefeller, whose reputation has been somewhat damaged by this verdict given by an honest and unpurchasable jury, and who is squirming fearfully at the prospect of paying $1,000,000 to Alfred Merritt. His attitude at this time recalls a selection from a little book, entitled "Ne-Con-Dis," which has had a limited circulation in this section of the country:

"Do not let," the Mogul pleaded,
"Do not let the brave Ne-con-dis
Wrest from me my stolen millions,
Do not let them break my strong box,
I would keep it for your glory.
Save the discount for my coffers,
Give it to some institution,
Tell the people all about it,
Tell the people you are lucky
Having such a friend to help you,
To uphold you and protect you,
I would spend it for your glory—
Yours the glory, mine the credit."

TEACH THE HOG A LESSON.

And now St. Paul wants to take away from Duluth the Northwestern curling bonspiel which is to be held here this winter. The hoggish Saintly City is making efforts to attach the bonspiel to its winter carnival program and impudently proposes that Duluth curlers shall waive their rights to it. This is a cool proposition indeed—so cool that there can be no question there will be plenty of ice at St. Paul this winter to erect an ice palace, if it is so desired, unless the warmth of feeling created in Duluth by this exhibition of gall should become so intense that it may be felt down the Mississippi. The Duluth curlers will meet tonight to take fitting action in regard to the audacious action of the St. Paul people.

Why should not Duluth now take up the idea of a winter carnival here. With the Northwestern curling bonspiel as a starter, we can easily arrange a program of sports that would far surpass the carnival that is projected at St. Paul. The curlers and their friends from all parts of the Northwest would come to Duluth in force, and thousands of other visitors would come if we added other attractions such as snowshoe races, ski races, skating contests and tobogganing. There is a ski club in existence here now that would no doubt look after that feature. We have many excellent skaters who are enthusiasts in that line of sport and could make up a good program of events. The lake and bay and the rinks would furnish excellent points for skating contests. As for tobogganing, where is the city in the Northwest that can compare with Duluth for natural slides? With a small expenditure some of the greatest toboggan slides ever seen could be fitted up here. The field for snowshoeing is wide and there is always plenty of snow for sport of that kind. There is no limit to the beautiful illuminated effects that could be produced from the bay and lake to the hilltops, and which would be visible from all parts of the city.

Let us teach the Saintly hog a lesson. Let us show the St. Paul crowd that we have some spirit and enterprise and can hold a better winter carnival than they have ever dreamed of producing. There is plenty of time to prepare for it. St. Paul has not made a move beyond appointing a few committees and trying to steal the bonspiel from Duluth. We have the bonspiel assured. Let us keep it, and with such an interesting attraction as a nucleus go forward with the preparation of a carnival program that will bring the people here. If the building an ice palace would be too expensive, it can be dropped; we can have a first-class carnival without it and make the St. Paul affair appear insignificant.

"A GREAT CITY."

Under the above heading the Fargo Argus of a recent date said: "In speaking of the coming cities of the Northwest it would not do to forget Duluth, the great inland seaport of a great country. Every day adds to the importance of Duluth. Every inhabitant who locates in the Northwest is an aid to the building up of the splendid city by the lake. North Dakota is especially interested in her prosperity. Every interest in North Dakota demands closer connection with the Zenith City. The salvation through cheap freights is to come by way of Duluth. Through Duluth, and over the waterways to the Eastern world, must pour the product of these fertile plains. And returning the articles of necessity and luxury which cannot be raised or made here, must come to us through the great port of Duluth.

"Duluth no longer needs a Proctor Knott, nor a boomer of any sort. Her destiny is written, and all the efforts of jealous detractors can not erase the writing. Nature has designated Duluth as the point wherein shall be built the commercial capital of a country now in the infancy of development. There needs nothing for the development of the great destiny of this favored city but time. And the time to elapse before the gaining of the crown of Duluth grows shorter."

In a later issue the Argus found fault to some extent with Duluth people because, it stated, they ridicule the idea of making Fargo a terminal market, and it points to the fact that Chicago once talked the same way about Duluth. Certainly The Herald will not quarrel with the Argus on this point. If Fargo can be made a terminal market, no one here will object. All will be pleased to see Fargo grow in population and business. Duluth and Fargo should have intimate business relations, and both should work to secure closer rail communication. The Argus recognizes this fact when it says: "Duluth is a coming city and is the natural ally of this section of the Northwest. Some time a cheap freight rate from this state to the great waterway at Duluth will add to the prosperity of all parties concerned. It seems a little strange that with its board of trade, its chamber of commerce and its bright array of business men who ought to be interested in this part of the world, Duluth makes no attempt to have reduced the very high freight rates that hinder natural interchange. If the business men of Duluth would unite upon this proposition they might accomplish something. Minneapolis succeeded in securing lower rates from territory tributary to that city, and why should not Duluth profit by her example?"

The suggestion made by the Argus should receive the attention of the commercial organizations of Duluth. There have been spasmodic efforts in the past to secure lower freight rates, but they failed because the people here became discouraged too easily. The only way to obtain reduced rates from Duluth to its tributary territory is to keep up an unceasing agitation. Keeping everlastingly at it will win. When reasonable rates are secured and closer business relations are established between Duluth and the Western country, it will become the great city that the Argus prophecies, but we cannot expect real greatness so long as we are handicapped by the existing conditions.

EVANS VERSUS CLOUGH.

The Minneapolis dispatch published by The Herald last evening, announcing that Capt. Van Sant had released Hon. R. G. Evans from his pledge of last winter, and that Mr. Evans may now be regarded as a candidate for governor, was read with much pleasure by his numerous friends in Duluth. Mr. Evans has always been on intimate terms of friendship with the Duluth Republicans. In every state and national campaign he has appeared on the platform in Duluth and other places in St. Louis county and his speeches have always been received with favor. For the work which he thus unselfishly performed in behalf of the party, the leading Republicans of Duluth have always felt thankful, and they have been waiting for an opportunity to repay Mr. Evans for the obligations under which he has placed them. They will therefore look with a kindly eye upon his entry into the gubernatorial race. He would fill the office of governor with ability and with dignity.

Of course, Mr. Evans will not be in the race unless he secures the support of Hennepin county, and the same contingency attaches to the candidacy of Governor Clough. They are both residents of Hennepin county, and the contest between them for the control of the delegation from that county to the state convention will be a battle royal. Governor Clough has also numerous friends in Duluth, who will wish him success. But in Mr. Evans he will find an opponent of great strength. It has been asserted that Mr. Evans is the only Republican who can defeat the governor in Hennepin county. Whether this assertion is true or not will now be demonstrated, since it is virtually settled that Mr. Evans is in the field. There seems to be a general feeling among Republicans, in the northern part of the state at least, to let the result of the Hennepin county contest settle the whole question. If Governor Clough carries Hennepin county, he will probably be renominated. Should Mr. Evans be successful there, he will likely be successful in the state convention.

For real fun give a right-minded man Kansas, says the St. Louis Star-Sayings. In a church in a suburb of Wichita last Sunday a dog chased what everybody thought a black and white cat down the aisle while service was in progress. An attempt was made to put the dog out, but the little black and white creature put the whole congregation on the sidewalk in a hurry and a flurry. It was not a domestic cat, but what is scientifically known as a polecat. Not even religion could restrain the language of the men when they made the discovery, and evening service was only sparsely attended because many of the prettiest girls had but one real good Sunday gown.

The Boston Transcript very truthfully says that if the Kaffir circus were going round in New York instead of in London how the British editor would point the finger of scorn at America's "mad race for wealth" and "worship of the dollar." The stock exchanges on this side of the Atlantic may not be made up of saints, but neither are those on the other. The truth is that the facilities for "shearing lambs" and "squeezing shorts" in London are fully equal to those found in any other city.

The annual statements of the various railroads and the steamship line composing the Great Northern system are published in this issue and they make a splendid showing. The net earnings of the system were nearly $6,000,000, and the net earnings of the Eastern Minnesota road, with which Duluth has the most intimate relations, reached nearly $500,000. These figures tell the story of a great improvement in business throughout the Northwest.

Judge tells of an old lady Methodist who always stood up for her church. She had just heard of the appointment of an Episcopal chaplain at the penitentiary, when she exclaimed, indignantly: "They ought to have a Methodist chaplain. There are more Methodist convicts in the penitentiary than any other denomination, I know."

There are some people who do not realize that the secrets of the jury room are secret. A United States juror out in San Francisco, who may have thought he was a member of a quilting bee, has been given six months in jail for gossiping about testimony presented to the body of which he was a member.

"Nellie Bly" has come to the surface again, and has been seeking the protection of the courts from a detective hired by her husband to watch her movements. She says her aged husband is jealous; if so, he must be jealous without cause. Nellie is not so beautiful that any bad man will desire to steal her.

There is a rumor that Joseph B. McCullagh, of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is a candidate for United States senator for Missouri. If the rumor is correct, the people of Missouri will do well to elect him. Mr. McCullagh would be an able senator and do honor to the state.

Will Mr. McCleary agree to meet Mr. Bryan in debate on the silver question? "Not on your life." He has not forgotten his recent disastrous attempt to debate with Mr. Harvey? And he has heard the eloquent and able Mr. Bryan in the halls of congress.

Every election brings to light a number of foolish wagers. One of the latest is a man who will swim the Ohio river on Christmas day in payment of a wager because Kentucky went Republican—unless the river becomes frozen before that date.

Every delegate appointed from Duluth to the immigration convention at St. Paul next week should be certain to attend. The peopling of the fertile lands tributary to Duluth will add to the growth and prosperity of the city.

Ex-President Harrison is still in the field as a receptive candidate, but it is hardly likely that he will make much of a showing in the convention. Senator Davis is likely to have more votes than Harrison on the first ballot.

How Mr. Rockefeller does squirm at the prospect of paying $1,000,000 to Alfred Merritt. The trouble is that when he pays the judgment of the court he cannot claim credit for being a philanthropist.

Many of the minor state and county officials are appointed by the governor in Maryland, and there are numerous Gorman men now expecting decapitation by Governor Lowndes.

What intense devotion to civil service reform is displayed by the administration at Washington, as the prospect of a Republican victory next year becomes a certainty!

Shall Duluth give up the Northwestern bonspiel to St. Paul? Or shall we make it the central feature of a winter carnival that will eclipse the St. Paul affair?

Mr. Rockefeller may try his case in the newspapers, but the courts will see that justice is meted out to him and to those who are trying to get their own.

Those who marvel that the New York Sun is always so warlike in tone should remember that Editor Dana was once assistant secretary of war.

The great serpent seen in Lake Erie is described as having one of its flippers disabled. Perhaps it collided with a whaleback.

Senator David B. Hill will deliver a lecture at Minneapolis during Thanksgiving week.

SPOILED THE JOKE.

Winnipeg Free Press: At a Buffalo banquet the genial Mr. Depew got off a very good joke, which the intelligent compositor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press spoiled. Mr. Depew said that it was much sweeter to enjoy taffy while living than to be landed with epitaffy when dead. But the intelligent compositor corrected the word and made it read "epitaphs."

SALT RIVER'S CHARMS.

Cincinnati Post: If the president had a discreet object in view when he sprang his Thanksgiving proclamation on the very eve of election, what is the nation to think of those employes of the department of agriculture who very recently issued a pamphlet defending and apologizing for the crow? Next thing the country knows some sentimental tourist will be singing the transcendent charms of Salt River.

ENGLISH OPPRESSION.

It May Now be Directed Against Colombia.

Washington, Nov. 14.—There has been much friction of late between Great Britain and Colombia, which it is thought may lead to radical steps by the British. The Colombian government gave a concession to an English syndicate to build a railway through the state of Antioqua, tapping the richest sections of Colombia. The company did not proceed with the work and the government declared the concession forfeited. The company then presented a claim for $640,000 damages. Colombia refused to pay, but consented to arbitrate the claim. Out of this arbitration has grown the present friction. Dr. Luhrsen, the German minister to Colombia, acted as one of the arbitrators, but as the Colombian press and public believed him to be favorable to the English claim, riotous scenes attended the meeting of the arbitrators.

Colombian soldiers were stationed at the German minister's house, and it is claimed they assisted the excited populace in indignities on the minister's household, which, however, were not serious, being confined to noise, threats and alleged drunken disorder. As a result of concerted action on the part of London and Berlin, the British minister at Bogata, Dr. Jener, and the German minister received joint instructions to protest to President Caracas, of Colombia. This was done, and the Colombian government consented that a public explanation should be made in the Diario Official.

But this explanation, signed by the minister of foreign affairs, is said to have been as offensive as the preceding acts, and no settlements were made in the arbitration, and now urgent efforts are being brought to bear on the British foreign office to administer a rebuke to Colombia which will serve as a reminder that British investments in that country must receive full protection. These efforts come from interested capitalists, and it is not known that Lord Salisbury has as yet considered the advisability of putting in motion the machinery of the foreign office in order to protect an English investment of a private character.

NEW TRANS-CONTINENTAL.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The Times-Herald says: Arrangements have been made by the Panama Railroad company to establish a permanent line of steamers from New Orleans to Colon in connection with its California traffic. This will make it an active competitor for trans-continental traffic from all the Mississippi valley. It is now making traffic arrangements with the Mississippi valley railroads for the transportation of their trans-continental freight. The most important of these roads is the Illinois Central, which must, after the new route is opened, be considered an active competitor for trans-continental traffic. Its route will be from Chicago to New Orleans via the Illinois Central, thence to Panama by the Panama railroad and vessels, and thence to Los Angeles, San Francisco and other California points by steamer. The new route is to be opened for traffic Dec. 1.

Wilkes and his wife both denied the reports. At the first opportunity Wilkes challenged McVeigh to fight a duel.

CAUGHT

Harry Smith, Panton & Watson's Fugitive Clerk, Was Caught in Chicago.

Is Under Indictment for Grand Larceny in the Second Degree.

His Confederates Devised a Plan and Shipped Him Out of Town.

Detective Bob Benson will return from Chicago tomorrow morning with Henry Smith, the ex-shoe clerk of Panton & Watson, who is under indictment for grand larceny in the second degree. There is a very interesting story behind the deal. The matter has been kept quiet in order that better evidence might be procured.

A few weeks ago Smith, it is alleged, organized a scheme to defraud Panton & Watson by a highly original scheme of his own devising. He had an understanding with a number of people outside the store to let them have goods without paying and afterwards to collect half price for the articles which he appropriated. About ten days ago it struck Smith that the shoe stock was not sufficiently varied to give his peculiar talents full swing. Accordingly three clerks in other departments were let into the scheme on shares and for a time all went well.

At last it was noticed by the firm that something was wrong when the goods were checked up and one of the confederates squealed and told the whole story last Thursday. Smith was called into the private office of the firm and broke down. The whole ramifications of the conspiracy which had become extensive enough to include a policeman and a railway employe came out. Smith acknowledged that his peculations would probably reach $30, but the firm estimated the amount at $100. Smith was allowed to go and John Panton, of the firm, called in Chief Armstrong and Detective Benson to aid in a further investigation.

SHIPPED SMITH OUT.

The news of the visit of the officials quickly spread and the outside confederates became alarmed for their safety. On Friday morning according to the confession of one of the parties implicated Smith was intoxicated and put on board the 9 o'clock St. Paul & Duluth train at the Twentieth avenue west station. Here he was smuggled into the baggage car and the conductor who was telegraphed by the firm while en route to St. Paul replied that the man was not on the train. An Omaha employe named Hurley is alleged to have devised the plan for shipping the ex-clerk out of town.

Detective Benson was in pursuit, but lost the trail in Minneapolis and was compelled to return without his man.

In the meanwhile the matter was taken to the grand jury and Tuesday upon the testimony of Manager Brown and two of the clerks Smith was indicted on a charge of larceny in the second degree. The amount charged in the indictment was merely sufficient to bring the case under that head. From revelations made by some of the conspirators it was learned that Smith was in Chicago and Detective Benson was again sent in pursuit.

A telegram received by Chief Armstrong this morning announced that this time the sleuth has been successful.

On Saturday it was brought to the attention of the chief that Officer Curran was alleged to have obtained a $2 pair of shoes from Smith for which $1.75 was paid. The suspension of the officer followed immediately. His case will be investigated by the mayor.

There are a number of other alleged accomplices and several more arrests will follow. The clerks implicated will not be prosecuted, but used as witnesses against Smith, of whom the firm proposes to make an example. Smith came here from Fort William, Ont., and once tended bar in Montreal. His father is a leading hotelkeeper at Fort William.

ST. PAUL WANTS IT.

Saintly City Would Like to Get the Curling Bonspiel.

St. Paul is making a strenuous effort to entice the annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling assaciation from Duluth to that city. The reason thereof is that St. Paul is getting up a little winter carnival to take place some time during the season of ice and snow, and its citizens would like very much to add the bonspiel in order to swell the list of attractions and the attendance. Recently William F. Myron, secretary and treasurer of the Northwestern Curling association, received a communication from J. J. Parker and C. B. Bowlby, of St. Paul.

This communication introduced the above proposition, and pointed in an alluring manner the advantages to be gained by having the bonspiel at St. Paul instead of at Duluth. Secretary Myron enclosed the letter in another one to President Macfarlane, in which he very courteously lays the matter before the president of the Duluth club. A part of his letter follows:

"I may say that this has caused me no little uneasiness for some time back, and I could have wished that there should be no carnival here this year, but from what I now find it is being boomed by St. Paul's best citizens and the winter carnival is bound to go.

"The Duluth club has been doing everything to make the next Northwestern bonspiel an assured success, and I look for a turn-out in Duluth such as we have never had before, and we must, as an association, be loyal to the Duluth club, for we all know how much labor and expense it is to undertake anything of this kind. The only question in my mind is this: Inasmuch as the Carnival association is going to make curling an important event, it has struck me that it would materially interfere with the Duluth bonspiel when everything is considered. First, they are making arrangements for the Winnipeg Hockey clubs to take part, and as the city will at that time have in its best clothes, I am only afraid that the Manitobans will crowd to the carnival here to the detriment of the Duluth spiel.

"The Carnival association is extremely anxious to undertake the Northwestern Curling association's bonspiel, provide prizes, etc., and it may be that the Duluth boys would be just as anxious to come to St. Paul.

"I am sure that there is not a member of our Curling association but who will decide to leave the matter as we have arranged, unless the Duluth club, in thinking the question over should decide that all things considered it would be better to give it up to them."

Mr. Myron also wrote to Secretary Macrae in much the same strain. The members of the Duluth Curling club are inclined to think that Duluth can have a carnival that will be just as attractive to the Canadians as the St. Paul event. At any rate, the matter will come up at a meeting of the club tonight, and it will then be decided whether or not Duluth is magnanimous enough to give up her bonspiel.

This morning Secretary Macrae received another letter from Secretary Myron of the curling association. He is not at all anxious to see St. Paul get the bonspiel away from Duluth and thinks this year's event will be one of the largest. In his letter he says:

"I have just had a letter from J. P. Robertson, secretary of the Manitoba branch of the Royal Caledonian club, which closes as follows: 'Quite a number of our boys talk of going to Duluth. It will in all likelihood be a great gathering. I am hoping to be able to go. I have also received a letter from John Johnston, of Milwaukee, in which he says that curling in Milwaukee is booming—took in twenty new members the other night—and that he will meet me in Duluth.

"I expected that the Duluth 'spiel' would be the best we ever had and, carnival or no carnival, I am not sure but that it can be made so yet."

FORTY YEARS

OF SUFFERING FROM PILES.

Remarkable Cure of Popular Major Dean, of Columbus, Ohio.

People who suffer from that annoying and obstinate disease will be gratified to learn that science has discovered a safe, convenient, and simple cure for every form of piles, as the experience of the popular Maj. Dean, of Columbus, Ohio, amply attests. The major says: I would like to add my name to the thousands who have been cured by the Pyramid Pile Cure. I know from experience that it is the only remedy on earth that will effectually cure piles; plenty of remedies give relief for a time, but as for a lasting cure I had tried all the salves, lotions, etc., without success. Six boxes of the Pyramid Pile Cure entirely removed all traces of a case of piles of forty years' standing.

You may rest asured that the Pyramid Pile Cure has no stauncher advocate than myself.

I feel that it is my duty to allow you to use my name in any way you may see fit, in order that other sufferers may thus be directed to what I feel certain will be a speedy relief and cure.

The Pyramid Pile Cure gives instant relief and a permanent cure in all kinds of blind, bleeding, itching piles.

It is absolutely free from opiates, cocaine and similar poisons, so common in pile cures.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00.

A book on cause and cure of Piles will be sent free by addressing the Pyramid company, Albion, Mich.

WILL BE LAID TOMORROW.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new court house at Grand Rapids, Minn., will be performed. W. B. Patton has been deputized by Grand Master C. L. Brown to conduct the ceremony, and he will be assisted by members of the fraternity in Duluth. A large number are expected to go up, possibly 100. The Duluth & Winnipeg road will run a special train, leaving here at 9 a. m. and returning after the ceremonies.

A BUNDLE OF NERVES.

Weak, Nervous, Sleepless, Tired and Run-Down.

Effect of Weak Nerves---Loss of Nerve Power.

Regain Health, Make Yourself Strong by

The Great Restorer of Nerve Force, Vigor, Power,

Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Nothing is so common today as the complaint of weak nerves. You hear it on every hand. Its results confront us in every walk of life. The housewife is worn out in her daily round of duties and is "just as nervous as she can be" over every little detail; the merchant is overcome with the burdens and cares of business; is "so tired out he doesn't know what to do;" the professional man "has no interest in anything" he is so exhausted with his perplexing duties; almost everyone feels as if he or she "would fall to pieces," their nerves are so unstrung with the excitement of our modern life. Every walk and occupation is strewn with innumerable wrecks of naturally strong and robust constitutions, which are the inevitable result of weak nerves. How shall it be remedied? Nothing will so surely and safely do this as Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is the great nerve restorer, the remedy which strengthens and invigorates brain and nerves, builds up the blood and gives strength, energy and power to the body.

It will make you well and strong as it did Mrs. Emma Blodgett, of 48 Sixth street, Dover, N. H. She writes as follows:

"I had a severe trouble with my nerves, and also considerable difficulty with my stomach, such as the belching of gas and the usual pain and distress of a dyspeptic. I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and it proved a blessing to me. I think everything of it, and feel that I could not live without it.

"I had a friend in Brockton who had neuralgia about the nerves, and was confined to her bed, being unable to help herself. I recommended her to take Dr. Greene's Nervura and she sent for a bottle and commenced taking it. She was so bad she could not turn in bed, but after using four doses of the medicine the pain left her and in two weeks she was out of bed. It was in my opinion a great victory for Dr. Greene's medicine. I always recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to sufferers wherever I meet them."

Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case, freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some reading that will prove interesting to young mothers. How to guard against the disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by all druggists.

AFTER THE GOODS.

Creditors of Moses Cook Think There is Fraud.

There was all sorts of trouble yesterday afternoon in local clothing circles and the mix-up started with the failure of Moses Cook, of the Oak Hall, a few days ago. To offset $17,000 liabilities Assignee Warfield could find only $2200 in assets. This occasioned sufficient surprise to the creditors to warrant, in their judgment, the introduction on the scene of two argus-eyed detectives, who moseyed around the closed-up emporium. Their only discovery was that Moses Cook, he of the long liabilities and short assets, had shaken the dust of Duluth from his feet.

Following the exit of the sleuths from the stage, Albert Young, representing Finch, Van Slyke & Co., of St. Paul, one of the heaviest creditors, made his appearance and yesterday obtained search warrants for the premises of several Duluth business men. Then Court Officer Forgy, mounted on an express wagon, visited the store of W. M. Abrahamson at 16 West Superior street and prowled not only over the store, but also in the cellar and the residence portion upstairs. The result of all this search was the capture of goods to the amount of $20 which, by the way, Abrahamson claims had been purchased of the assignee. R. Cohn, of 510 West Superior street, was also called on with similarly unproductive results.

W. M. Abrahamson naturally feels indignant at what he terms an outrage. He says that his home was entered, his belongings meddled with and his wife and mother frightened into the need of medical assistance. He intends today to replevin the goods which were purchased of the assignee, and commence suit for damages against Young and Court Officer Forgy.

"I was not and have not been interested with Cook in any way," declared the indignant merchant. "On Sunday there were policemen around my house, and I think the police have been too officious. I have spent a lifetime building up a reputation and I will not have it destroyed or taken from me."

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

D. C. Prescott Secures One for the Marinette Works.

Some time ago certain legal proceedings in district court brought out the fact that the Marinette Iron works had gone into insolvency, having dissolved under the laws of Wisconsin. The proceedings in question were to secure the pay of an employe and it was argued with effect that that dissolution did not constitute insolvency under the Minnesota laws, and that creditors could sue as though the company was a solvent corporation. This was the first intimation that the company was insolvent, and it was only made public through this suit, though the dissolution had been in effect several years.

Now D. Clint Prescott, one of the trustees under the dissolution, yesterday afternoon filed a complaint asking that he be released because he is a stockholder and that a receiver be appointed for the company and an order to show cause why the receivership should not be continued be issued.

The complaint estimates the assets at $550,000 and the liabilities at $255,000. An affidavit of emergency, showing that there is danger of attachments and waste, accompanies the complaint.

Upon the showing Judge Moer appointed N. C. Kingsbury temporary receiver, and ordered all interested to show cause Saturday, Dec. 7, why the receivership should not be continued. This action is taken because of the decision that the dissolution was not an insolvency under the laws of this state.

Court House War.

The court house war has been revived in Superior. The proposition of the county board to build an addition to the present structure has stirred up the row this time. The West Superior people have never quite given up the idea that they can some day get the court house removed to their end of the city. If the county makes repairs costing $3000 then, under the peculiar Wisconsin law, the building cannot be removed for five years.

A meeting of the Commercial club was called and a committee appointed to draft and circulate a petition against the enlargement or improvement of the present structure. The West Superior people do not demand that the court house be located at their end of the city, but want it between the two sections. Inasmuch as nearly all the business comes from the West End they consider that reasonable.

NOVEMBER APPORTIONMENT.

The county auditor completed the November apportionment yesterday. The funds are to be divided as follows: State tax, $6761.62; county tax, $7339.04; roads, towns and villages, $30,814.60; schools, $15,474.83; total, $60,390.09. The city of Duluth gets $24,504.72, divided as follows:

General fund	$6,037 34
Street improvements	8,238 47
Bond interest	3,213 83
Bond sinking	719 80
Fire department	4,282 12
Park	1,427 36
Library	585 80
Total	$24,504 72

The schools of this city receive $14,196.58.

IT MAY DO AS MUCH FOR YOU.

FIVE DROWNED.

Oyster Dredge Tipped Over by Heavy Seas.

New York, Nov. 14.—The steamer James W. Boyle, an oyster dredge foundered off Rockaway Inlet today in a high sea and all on board were drowned. She was on her way from Bridgeport, Conn., to Rockaway, with a cargo of seed oysters which were to be planted there. She was chartered by Walter B. Wood, of Inwood, L. I., from her owner, James W. Boyle, the well known Tammany leader, after whom she is named. The drowned were: Walter B. Wood, oyster planter, Inwood, L. I. Peter J. McDonald, captain, Princess Bay, S. I. John Flinn, engineer, Rondout, N. Y. John Carroll, cook, Hoboken, N. J. John Newbury, deck hand, Tottenville, N. Y. None of the bodies have been recovered. The probabilities are that the Boyle was so rapidly turned bottom side up by the enormous waves that the men were buried under her and had no chance for their lives.

PHYSICIANS HAVE FOUND OUT

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive subcutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit, which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact, which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

She Did Not Founder on Superior But Drifted Around.

The Cabin and Pilot House on the Beach at Michipicoten.

Lake Superior Business in Iron Ore Practically at an End.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the steamer Missoula did not founder on Lake Superior, but drifted around after being abandoned by her crew until she went on the beach at Michipicoten island, is considered probable from the following dispatch received today:

"Grand Marais, Mich., Nov. 14.—Wreckage of the Missoula on Michipicoten island. The cabin, pilot house, with name, and two masts are on the beach. One mast is still fast to something near the beach, but under water. Think the hull is there. L. B. Coates, steamer City of Green Bay."

GRAIN BLOCKADE AT BUFFALO.

All of the railroad elevators at Buffalo are choked with grain, for the transfer of which there are no cars, hence great delay is imposed upon vessels. On Tuesday half a dozen cargoes awaited their turn for discharge, and the prospect was that the vessels carrying them would have to wait until Friday or Saturday. During the past ten days the grain receipts at Buffalo have averaged 1,000,000 bushels per day—an amount that would tax the most liberal supply of cars possible. The rail rates are so low that the canal men cannot meet them, hence the big ditch affords no relief.

This condition of affairs has already caused a decline of 10 cents per ton in the Escanaba iron ore rate and may send it still lower, as vessel owners will give ore the preference over grain as long as the situation at Buffalo is such as to threaten prolonged delays.

WHY THE WATER IS LOW

Up to Oct 1 the deficiency of rainfall for the present year was 9.23 inches. From Jan. 1, 1886, to Jan. 1, 1895, the deficiency of rainfall was 23.1 inches, calculated from the data of seven different stations on Lake Michigan. This makes the total deficiency from Jan. 1, 1886, to Oct. 1, 1895, 32.24 inches. This is calculated to be equivalent to a rise or fall of four and one-half feet in Lake Michigan. The only year in this period when the rainfall reached normal was 1890.

MARINE NOTES.

The steamer Cherokee is at Port Huron with disabled machinery.

The barge Golden Age was released from Grosse Point by lightering.

During heavy weather Monday night the barge H. A. Hawgood broke away from the steamer George F. Williams, off Rock island, Lake Michigan, and rolled out her mizzen and jiggermasts.

The steamer Rappahannock parted her wheelchains and ran aground in St. Clair river.

Duluth clearances: Harlem, 20,000 barrels flour, Vanderbilt, 8000 barrels flour, Brazil, 80,000 bushels wheat, Morley, 1700 tons ore, Buffalo.

The steamer Saginaw Valley has been withdrawn from the Lake Superior route. The steamers Ford and Buell are now on their last trip for this season to Lake Superior. Light way package freight traffic is the cause of the boats being pulled off so soon.

A large number of railroad ties, supposed to belong to come craft that has lost her deckload, have come ashore near Point aux Barques light.

Shipments or iron ore from the Marquette, Gogebic, Menominee and Mesaba ranges are rapidly drawing to a close for the season.

Some time ago the steamer John Duncan was run into on St. Clair river by the tow-barge Twin Sisters and badly damaged. At Chicago on Tuesday the Twin Sisters was libeled for the sum of $5000, which it is claimed will be the cost of permanent repairs to the steamer. A bond was promptly filed and the barge released.

At Buffalo Lake Superior coal is very scarce, some boats being unable to get enough for ballast.

M. A. Bradley says that unless they are stopped by ice, all the vessels in his fleet will make two more trips and that he will not lose any time putting coal in them.

A GOOD TRAVELER.

One of the Freaks Attached to a Mail Car.

Even Uncle Sam's "mail freaks" are subject to combat in the hustling strife of competition and according to the latest development in this curious line of objects that find their origin in the extensive mail service of our land, it looks very much as though the veteran "Owney" would have to take a back seat for an energetic and extremely popular competitor, says the Boston Journal. The new hero (or rather heroine) in the field arrived at Superintendent O'Keefe's office at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Sept. 19, and has since been the object of considerable comment and admiration with the employes of the office.

The object in question is a small black rubber doll, some six inches in height, that bears the title of the "New Woman." This remarkable little woman is attired in the up-to-date bloomer costume and has a most pleasant countenance. Like the brave Lochinvar, she has come out of the West, stopping at every postoffice en route, and intends to see considerable more of the world before returning to her original starting point. Her costume is a bright red and consists of a cutaway coat without sleeves and long, graceful, flowing bloomers that reach just the curve of her graceful (rubber) ankle. Her coat, which is open, shows a white linen vest, and her pretty head, surmounted by a curly mass of black (rubber) hair, is given a most jaunty appearance by the large white polka dot bow at her throat. Around her neck is fastened a straight piece of cord, and attached to this is a thick bunch of tags, some fifty or more in number. But in spite of the uncomfortable weight of her passport that encircles her pretty ebony throat, and the hardships and bumps of her long, tedious travels, she appears as fresh as a daisy. Only once did her soft, pliable body meet with accident, and on that occasion she received a long, triangular cut in her rubber cranium.

On the first tag is the inscription: "A good thing. Push it along and return to assistant postmaster, Miles City, Montana." This is where the pert little "new woman" started her strange journey and a stamp on the lower corner of the tag fixed the date as Sept. 4, 1895. She has traveled over the entire West and will probably be started South by Superintendent O'Keefe in a few days. As she arrived at each postoffice the postmaster of the same would attach a new tag, stamp on the name of his station and send her off to the next point East. In this manner the bunch of tags grew larger rapidly and the epitaphs on many show that poets can be found even among the army of Uncle Sam's mail clerks. On the face of one tag was written in bold handwriting the following:

This darky has started out for a trip
Which is likely to be lonely and long;
So let everyone deliver a friendly flip,
Or help her along with a song.

On another was written:

Bloomers are her costume,
Trilby is her name;
She's a child of fortune,
Out to win her fame.

This tag bore the signatures of two young ladies in the money order bureau at Bozeman, Mont. So on all through the thick bunch of tags were written funny and poetical inscriptions, each office vying with the other to invent the brightest verse or idea.

IN CEYLON.

Half an hour before the first gray light of dawn had begun to steal round the distant crests of the Kandyan mountains we had started, in order to reach the edge of the forest before sunrise. Our guide had timed us well, says Owen Hall in November Lippincott's. The cold gray light of morning was still round us when we reached the river, rushing and gurgling with a liquid music over the sandy shallows and between the scattered masses of rock that strewed its bed. The eastern sky was flushing from a silvery pink to violet as we neared the first outlying satin-wood trees, that rose, vast pinnacles of shining green, strangely tinted by the colored light. And just as we reached the forest itself we halted involuntarily to see the sun rise slowly from the eastern ocean, the flood of gold above and around him flashing back in a thousand coruscations from the glittering plain below.

As we plunged into the jungle path, the last belated bats were flapping their way homeward, and giving place to the first birds of day, the crows, whose joyous cries already made the dim recesses of the forest start into life. The flood of morning sunshine which lighted up the path, though it could hardly be said to do as much for the depths of the surrounding jungle, was the signal for the awakening of the teeming life of the forest. From every branch on either side our path was poured a sudden gush of music. The rich song of the dial-bird was mingled with the more distant flute-like notes of the oriole; and from the far recesses of the forest the deep mellow call of the jungle-cock filled the air with a luxury of sound.

Then the insect life awoke. Huge dragon flies, startling in their bright metallic coloring, flashed past us; bright moths and gaudy butterflies floated and danced in the streams of sunlight that here and there penetrated the overarching canopy of leaves, like huge painted motes dancing in the golden tide. Our little party moved silently along the forest path, even the horses treading softly, as if unwilling to disturb the universal jubilee.

HOW HE REGARDED THEM.

Chicago Post: "These big sleeves," he began.

"Well?" she said inquiringly.

She knew that he had primed himself with some sharp remark, but she had learned that it eased his mind to make them and did not hurt her. So she led him on.

"What about them?" she asked, as he hesitated.

"These big sleeves," he said, when he had finally arranged the witticism to his satisfaction, "always make me think of the way people do up packages that won't bear inspection."

SILVER

Russia is Proposing to Largely Increase Her Mintage Next Year.

Will Result in Largely Increased Commerce in the Orient.

Russia Will Have to Come to Other Countries for Bullion.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The Associated Press cablegram of yesterday, announcing the intention of the Rusian government to coin next year 100,000,000 roubles in gold and 25,000,000 in silver in addition to the subsidiary coinage, has created considerable interest among financiers because of the evident purpose exhibited on the part of Russia of increasing her specie currency. While Russia holds in coin and bullion between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 of gold, she has recently coined very little of this total for the past four years. For the same period her silver coinage amounted to $10,626,442. In 1894 the gold coinage amounted to $2,225,231 and the silver coinage to $2,515,182. Reducing the figures for 1896 to American money it is now proposed to coin $77,000,000 in gold and $19,250,000 in silver in addition to small coins.

It is thought in some quarters that the general purpose of this increase is to begin preparation for the redemption of the Russian paper, which is the principal currency in circulation in the empire. Last August the imperial bank held $829,900,000 in paper. It is also considered probable that in increasing her silver coinage as she is doing, Russia is preparing to extend her trade into the silver-using countries of the Orient and especially China, Japan and Corea. To put this purpose into execution, it will be necessary for Russia to go outside of her own country to secure silver. Russia mines annually less than $500,000 worth of white metal and as her laws prohibit the importation of foreign silver coins and the minting of silver for private parties, it is probable that the stock in the country has not increased since 1893, when it was only a little over $4,000,000.

DRINKING RED INK.

The Nez Perce Indian is not averse to a little fun in his stolid way. The prevailing idea as to just what fun means, held by a great many of these Indians is getting filled up with white man's whisky, says the Spokane Outburst. Of course the government does not allow the sale of liquor to the Indians, but, all the same, the Indians find ways of getting liquor, and when they can't get it they resort to lemon extract and red ink. The Indian who discovered the lemon extract was good to drink and intoxicating is now looked upon by his fellows as a hero whose only rival is the Siwash who found out that red ink contained 90 per cent alcohol and 10 per cent medicine to "make Injun dam sick." The Indian agent has seen fit to warn storekeepers against selling more than one bottle of lemon extract or four bottles of red ink to any one Indian, and the Indian who tried an admixture of alkali water and squirrel poison is now hunting buffalo with his forefathers.

WANTED TO BE SURE.

Chicago Tribune: Uncle Silas from Upcreek put his head inside the door of an elevator pertaining to a down-town office building and cautiously asked the boy in charge:

"Cost anything to ride up?"

"No," said the boy.

"Charge a feller fur ridin' down after he's gone up?"

"No."

"Don't have no trick of puttin' a man off at the nineteenth floor an' makin' him walk down?"

"No."

"Ain't no gouge about it no way?"

"None."

"Sure?"

"Sure."

"Don't make no difference how high a feller goes?"

"Not a bit."

"Then take me clear up," said Uncle Silas, stepping inside.

WHISKY IN THE TANK.

The managers of the Young Men's Christian association rooms down on the Bowery have not yet got over their horror at the scandal created in front of their establishment not long ago by some practical joker, who, as yet, is perfectly willing to remain incognito. It seems that there is directly in front of the rooms a large water tank kept there for the benefit of the thirsty passerby. Being filled with ice water, it is always well patronized; but on this particular occasion it reached a degree of popularity hitherto unknown in its history, and created a sensation such as no religious body can hope to rival for some time. It began to be noticed, says my informant, that a tremendous run was taking place on the water tank. Citizens of all degrees of respectability, from the well-to-do merchant down to the Weary Raggleses of the road were walking up and loudly quarreling with each other about the possession of the two cups. They would drink and drink and smack their lips, go away alittle distance and come back and drink again. Finally a grand procession of tramps was seen gathering from all sides. They fought, they swore, they howled over the water. Such wonderful attraction in their cold beverage had never appeared to the Y. M. C. A. men before. They wondered if the whole town had gone prohibition-mad. Finally someone thought to go down and investigate the cause of all this uproar. He took a tumbler out, got a sample of the enticing water and brought it upstairs into the room with him. Experts there declared that it was a very strong article of whisky toddy. The horrified Y. M. C. A. men rushed down and let the contents of the tank flow on to the ground, first having to call a policeman to quell the incipient riot created by their act. It was finally discovered that some nearby saloonkeeper had emptied two bottles of Bowery tanglefoot into the tank for a joke. In a certain sense it succeeded, but the Y. M. C. A. men declare that if they catch the offender he will be made to feel the righteous wrath which is not always condemned by the Bible.

PERFUMED BUTTER.

Chicago Record: Perfumed butter is becoming very fashionable at American breakfast and tea tables. The butter is made into pats and stamped with a floral design and is then wrapped in thin cheese cloth and placed on a bed of roses, voilets or carnations arranged in a flat-bottomed dish. Over these is placed a layer of flowers, so that the butter patties are imbedded in flowers. They are then placed on ice, where they are allowed to remain for several hours. This butter is eaten with crisp Vienna rolls, accompanied only by a cup of chocolate or delicious Mocha.

A SHORT CURE.

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE WITH A BAD CASE OF KIDNEY DISEASE.

Sparagus Kidney Pills Perform a Complete Cure in a Short Time.

Symptoms of Kydney Diseases, and Why They Are Dangerous.

Dr. T. F. Boyce, of Lynn, Mass., a graduate of the New York university, '83, uses Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills in his practice.

It is unusual for regular physicians to use proprietary medicines, but many use Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

They do because they know that the principal ingredient is a special extract made from the root of asparagus, containing all its virtues in a concentrated form. They do because they know that Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

They do it most of all because they have found Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure, in cases where the drugs of the pharmacopoeia have been unable even to afford relief.

Dr. Joyce writes:

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 9, 1895.

Hobb's Medicine company,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

When my attention was first called to Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, and their component parts made known to me, I was firmly impressed with the combination as being one of great value for kidney diseases and all other ailments arising therefrom.

I found in one particular case, which had baffled all my previous efforts, that they performed a remarkable and complete cure in a very short time, and ever since I have used them in my practice with the most pleasing results in all cases. Very truly yours,

T. F. Joyce, M. D.

Bright's disease is a dangerous disease of the kidneys. It is caused by overwork, worry, over-eating, etc., and other excesses. It is dangerous because it has few or no well-known symptoms.

You do not think you are sick until it is often too late to cure.

The symptoms of kidney disease in general are pain in the sides and back, headache, nervousness, frequent thirst, evil forebodings, shortness of breath on slight exertion, chilly sensations, sleeplessness, puffiness of the eyelids, swelling of the feet and ankles, loss of flesh, etc.

Any or all of these symptoms may be the proof of kidney disease, but they are seldom laid to their true cause.

To prevent mistakes, they should be treated, as soon as they appear, with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

This will cure the kidneys and relieve the symptoms in a very short time.

The cure made will be permanent and the symptoms will never come back, unless you overwork your kidneys.

Your health depends on your kidneys.

They filter your blood.

When they don't, you fall sick as a natural consequence.

Falling sick is simply the poison in your blood making itself felt.

If you can take out the poison you will be well.

This is for the kidneys to do.

They will do it if they are well.

If they are sick, you can cure them with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The diseases and symptoms that Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Pills will cure by curing the kidneys are: Rheumatism, gout, anaemia, chlorosis, depression of spirits, lack of ambition, neuralgia, pale and sallow complexion, general muscular weakness, and all skin diseases.

All these are caused by poorness of, or poison in, the blood.

They can only be permanently cured with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, prepaid, to any address, for 50 cents per box.

Write for valuable medical pamphlet, "A Filter For Your Blood," mailed free on request. Hobb's Medicine company, Chicago or San Francisco.

SLEEP WALKING.

How a Detective Fathomed a Big Mystery.

"The strangest experience I ever had," said a well known detective to a reporter, "was in locating a sneak thief who systematically robbed a business man's residence. There had been a number of robberies, extending over a considerable space of time. The servants of the house had been changed several times, and yet the thefts continued. About once a week some one entered the man's sleeping apartments and took what money he had, if any, and, if not, succeeded in obtaining some of his wife's jewels or valuable silverware. I was employed in the case and made a thorough examination of the premises," saps the Cincinnati Tribune.

"At first I thought the work was done by some one inside the house, but my client told me that he had surprised the man one night, and that he went out of the window and down the porch, which was undoubtedly the way he had come in. He described the man as being small, thin and pale, and wearing a peculiar mask. The description did not suit any one in the house or any one whom the business man knew.

"My client slept in the front room, and his wife in one adjoining, there being double doors between them. I searched the pawn shops thoroughly and could find no trace of the missing jewels or silverware, and after watching the house from the outside for several nights, during which time there was another robbery, I prepared to sleep in my client's room, to which he readily assented. The first night I slept there my client's belongings were undisturbed, but several dollars in loose change had been abstracted from my own pockets, although usually I am a very light sleeper and awaken at once by any unusual sound. I said nothing about my loss, but concluded to remain awake thereafter.

"For several nights nothing occurred, when one morning about 2 o'clock a form came through the folding doors that connected the room where I was with that occupied by the wife of my client. I pretended to be asleep, and awaited the thief's approach. It looked like a pale-faced boy. Over its head was thrown a dark shawl that gave the appearance of a mask and a coat, but the form was barefooted and had on nothing besides the shawl but a nightgown. Noiselessly it glided to the window, unlocked it and passed out on the porch. I knew in a moment that the person was the wife of my client, and I followed at once. As she climbed down the porch the moon shone directly in her face, and I saw that she was asleep. The woman went directly to an arbor that had once been a spring house, and, lifting a loose board, dropped something and returned the way she came to her own apartments.

"I immediately investigated, and found that in the place formerly used for the storage of milk and butter the missing jewels, silver and money were piled. The next morning I told my client and showed him where the missing articles were. He stated that his wife was possessed of an almost insane fear that at some time he would fail and would be reduced to want, although entirely rational upon all other subjects. This probably took possession of her mind while she slept, and, being of a somnambulistic tendency, her hoarding of the valuables was explained. When awake she had no recollection whatever of her nightly depredations."

Bertie—Yes, nurse; but this is a religious war.

THE TAJ MAHAL.

India's Wonderful Tomb of Shah Jehan.

The central point of attraction to the stranger at Agra must always be the wonderful building known as the Taj Mahal, at once the tomb and the monument of the empress of Shah Jehan, says Harper's Weekly. It is said that on the spot where the tomb now stands there was once a sort of summer palace, where the great Mogul and his family spent part at least of the year, as it was the favorite residence of his wife, to whom he was devotedly attached. Here, the story goes, she asked him to build her the most beautiful palace ever yet constructed as a memorial of his affection for her and of their happiness together.

Before anything was done to carry out this design, however, the beloved empress died, leaving the emperor inconsolable for his loss. What he could not do for the living wife he determined still to do for her memory, and the result was the erection of the famous tomb, which remains the most beautiful example of its class in the world. The building stands on the opposite bank of the Jumma from the palace and city of Agra, and its domes of white marble rising from among the luxuriant vegetation of the surrounding garden form the most dazzling object that can well be conceived as seen from almost any part of the city, but especially from the palace itself.

No estimate has ever been formed of the wealth lavished on the building, but that it must have been enormous no one who examines the almost incredible beauty and elaborateness of the workmanship, and the rare and, in some cases, almost priceless character of the material used in its construction, can possibly doubt. The actual execution of the work employed a host of the most skilled laborers obtainable in the Eastern world for twenty-two years, and when it is remembered that the building is small compared with most of those on which emperors have lavished their treasures, some idea of the intricacy of its design and the beauty of its execution may be formed.

The gateway by which we entered the enclosure itself prepared us somewhat for the splendor of the building within. Like every part of the building and its surroundings, this gateway is constructed of the purest white marble polished to the highest perfection of which the stone is capable, while the carving and designs embossed on the surface are remarkable for the elegance and grace of their conception as well as for the perfection of their execution. It is no easy matter to accustom the mind to the idea that this work, hardly less perfect today than it was 250 years ago, can have stood exposed to the weather all those years. Something, no doubt, is due to the climate, and more, perhaps, to the exquisite polish of the surface, which has fitted it to resist the weather to the best advantage.

It is, however, on the interior of the mausoleum that Eastern art, with all its wealth of patient industry, has lavished the best of all it had to offer. The whole interior blazes today exactly as it did when first erected, with the perfect reproduction in polished stone of every leaf and flower with which nature has adorned the Indian peninsula. And not one shade of all the exquisite color is produced by any pigment. If a single flower demanded a score of tints to reproduce its perfect beauty, the effect was obtained by the use of a score of different stones without regard to their rarity or value. Nor is the effect injured by marks of joining. Hardly anything short of a microscope would in most instances disclose the fact that art and not nature had produced the dazzling effect. But it is hopeless to attempt to give any adequate idea of this consummate work of art, which stands, and no doubt will stand, unrivalled as the highest example of unwearied art supported by unbounded resources.

A CAUTIOUS TRAMP.

Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph: The tramp entered the yard and knocked on the door.

A sharp-visaged woman appeared at the door.

"Well, what do you want?" she asked.

"Have you got any wood to saw?"

"No; I have not."

"No lawns to mow?"

"No."

"Nothin' you want done around the house?"

"No."

"Well, then, madam, I makes bold ter ax you fer a piece of pie an' a cup of coffee."

BUSINESS AND ARCHITECTURE.

To the concentration of mercantile interests down town we owe the massive eyries of lower Broadway, the tall bank buildings of Wall street, the great piles of stone and brick and iron which are everywhere below Madison Square making the city one of commercial fortresses, says Royal Cortissoz in the November Scribner. Future ages will read our character as a race of business men in these immense structures.

They will read a strange passage of history into that fantastic overshadowing of our municipal dignity (if the city hall is left at the time by the enormous office buildings which crowd around it. They will find the gregarious habit of the merchants and bankers and their kin natural enough, too, just as we accept the foregathering of London booksellors, for which we provide a parallel in Fifth avenue, from Fourteenth street to Madison Square. It has always been this way in the life of cities.

It always will be, and in New York, as elsewhere, we have to reckon with the steady action of social and business development upon topography and architecture. What makes it peculiarly suggestive here is the rapidity with which great changes have been accomplished. St. Paul's never surprises the foreigner who finds it down in the heart of busy London, the roots of the past go so deep all over that neighborhood; yet it is doubtful if many Americans can ever quite apprehend the survival of old Trinity at the head of Wall street, in the midst of immense buildings that have sprung up like mushrooms, without thinking, if they think at all, of the utter and amazing incongruity of the church.

PERRY'S SHARP RAZOR.

It Brought Him a Fifteen-Days' Sentence.

When the case of Perry Nichols, the colored pugilist, charged with cutting a damsel's clothes with a "razzah" came up in the the municipal court yesterday afternoon, before Judge Boyle, there was an interested audience of colored people. All the dusky fighters, including "old man" Briscoe, were there, and Ed Shepard was one of the witnesses.

The dusky complainant had transferred her affections to another suitor and Perry, after bearing it for a time, as he told the court, could stand the suspense no longer, "en just whipped ou mah razzah and ripped up 'er close, yo honah."

The attorney engaged by Perry at the last minute refused to proceed unless he was paid in advance. As the money was not forthcoming, the attorney withdrew. After the spectators had enjoyed the laughable testimony for a while, Judge Boyle imposed a sentence of $10 and costs or fifteen days in the county jail. The costs footed up $8.08, and Perry was taken up the hill in the city's blue conveyance.

RECEIVER

Ralph N. Wood Wants One Appointed for the Elroy Produce Company.

Judge Morris Decrees Who Are Owners of Pittsburg Iron Stock.

Claims Made Upon the Compromise Money Received by the McKinleys.

Ralph N. Wood has applied to the district court to appoint a receiver for the Elroy Produce company, and Judge Moer has issued an order to show cause why this should not be granted. Wood complains that some time ago the corporation was formed, Thomas McKone taking fifteen shares and agreeing to pay $1000 therefor, and Fred Wightman and himself taking forty-two shares and putting in the stock and fixtures, valued at $4200. Some time later McKone absented himself from their place of business and has concealed himself somewhere else. He refuses to pay the amount of his stock, and Wood alleges that he is hiding with a view to harrassing plaintiff and the creditors of the company.

It is asserted that the company is now insolvent, and Wood asks that a receiver be appointed and the amounts due from the stockholders of the company be adjudged. An order to show cause was issued, returnable next Saturday.

Judge Morris has filed his finding in the matter of the receivership of the Pittsburg Iron company, in which A. W. Comstock sued William McKinley et al. to discover who owned the stock of the company. A. E. Humphreys, George E. Millican, John and William McKinley, George A. Elder and A. J. Trimble were the promoters of the company, and the stock was distributed primarily among them. Afterwards it was transferred about until things became so complicated that judicial inquiry was necessary to determine who was to receive certain money about to be distributed by Receiver C. W. Buck. Judge Morris finds that Comstock owns 499 shares of stock and is entitled to receive $10 per share therefor. The American Loan and Trust company is entitled to $2474.10, the First National bank to $179.29 and William McKinley to $5850.61.

THE M'KINLEY MONEY.

A number of complaints have been filed in the suit of W. W. Billson against Nels Linderburg et al. to judicially determine how to distribute the money received from the compromise of the suit against the Consolidated. The amount belonging to John McKinley is $8437.57, and the claims are as follows:

H. A. Ware claims $1176.51 and the First National bank $5329.70, which they claim is a first lien upon the money. The following claim secondary and contemporaneous liens: Albert B. Ceilfuss, assignee, $2854.02; A. C. Ceilfuss, $2126.60; International bank, of West Superior, $2263.50; Bank of Baldwin, $5499. McCordic & Crosby filed all these complaints.

Louis Rouchleau has brought suit against D. H. Bacon et al. to correct a clerical error in a deed from Rouchleau to Bacon on land in 62-14.

In the matter of the assignment of R. E. White & Co. the assignee has filed a list of allowed claims, amounting to $21,008.72.

N. C. Kingsbury has filed his bond in the sum of $5000 as receiver pendente lite for the Marinette iron works. Searle and J. P. Johnson are his sureties.

VISITING DULUTH.

President Dougherty, of the Educational Association, Here.

President C. M. Dougherty, of the National Educational association, who hails from Peoria, Ill., where he is superintendent of schools, was in Duluth today looking over this city to determine whether or not it would be well to hold the next convention of the association here. This morning he looked over Duluth in company with Superintendent Denfeld, and this afternoon they went to Superior. He leaves on the Omaha train tonight.

The executive committee will meet on Saturday of next week at Jacksonville, Fla., to select the place at which the convention will be held. The annual meeting of superintendents will be held there then. Duluth, is is thought, has an excellent prospect of getting the convention. Boston is the most formidable competitor but, it is understood, has failed to get the required concessions from the railroads.

ROAD TO BE SOLD.

Milwaukee, Nov. 14.—The efforts of the bond holders of the Green Bay, Winona & St. Paul railroad have failed and the property is once more about to be foreclosed. Monday morning Herbert Turner, attorney for the Farmers' Loan & Trust company, of New York, will ask Judge Seaman for an order decreeing the sale of the road and it may be that a receiver will be appointed in the meantime.

CHANGE OF TITLES.

The announcement is made by the Duluth, Mississippi River & Northern railway that the title of J. F. Kilorin has been changed from general superintendent to general manager, that of G. M. Stark from general attorney to general counsel, that of H. O. Halstead from general passenger and freight agent to superintendent.

AGAINST RUMERY.

Land Commissioner Decides a Suit Adversely to Him.

E. F. Best, assistant commissioner of the general land office, has rendered a decision in the case of Fred H. Carnon vs. Lyman O. Rumery, Jr., involving lot 8 and sw¼ of sw¼ of section 11-61-23. Rumery entered the land as a homestead and on Jan. 18, 1895, Carnon filed an affidavit of contest alleging that Rumery had failed to establish a residence on and had abandoned the land for more than six months since making the entry and prior to the affidavit of contest.

A notice returnable March 20, 1895, was issued. On March 11, the plaintiff asked a new notice stating under oath that the defendant had concealed himself to evade service. Another notice returnable May 8 was issued and personal service was obtained on March 21. On March 20, the defendant filed, without service on the opposite party a motion to dismiss on the ground that the plaintiff had not used due diligence in attempting to serve the notice of contest. This matter was overruled on May 7, 1895.

On May 8 the plaintiff appeared and submitted evidence in support of his allegations. The defendant was in default. On the next day the defendant appeared and asked to have the case reopened stating under oath that he was informed at the local office that the papers had been lost or mislaid; that on May 8, at 10 a. m., he was at the land office and Carnon, the contestant, was not there, and that he was not then informed that the papers had been found or any further action proceeded with. His motion was overruled.

The register and receiver held the entry for cancellation. The commissioner sustains them holding that Rumery was properly adjudged in default, and that he failed to show any good reason for not appearing then. The commissioner says that, regardless of whether the papers were lost or not, he should have appeared to defend his entry.

A swamp land decision was also received and John A. Bergin, who contested the state's claim to the sw¼ of se¼ of section 11-58-12, wins the land.

The McCarthy Family.

The McCarthy family troubles were thoroughly aired in the municipal court this morning when Daniel McCarthy appeared to answer to a charge of assault in the third degree preferred by his wife, Kate McCarthy. In strikingly quaint language the complainant tells the whole story. The defendant is charged with on Nov. 6, committing an assault, "by pulling said complainant about her bedroom in a violent and angry manner and violently throwing said complainant on the bed in said room and pulling the ears of said complainant with the hands of him, the said McCarthy."

After Mrs. McCarthy had told her story Daniel took the stand and denied the charges in toto. He averred that he was an honest hardworking, sober man and gave his wages to his wife. As no one contradicted him Judge Edson dismissed the case and discharged the defendant.

On every Saturday, until further notice, Dr. Schiffman, at No. 400 Woodbridge block, will inaugurate a half price day for amalgam and cement fillings. The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. This will be a great boon to children, teachers and those who have not the time on other days.

Called McEwen "Papa."

In responding to a call for the patrol wagon this morning Officer William McEwen, of the central station, discovered a long lost relative clinging to a lamp post in front of the Bethel. He was a little shrivelled up Findlander answering to the name of Peter Johnson and when the wagon arrived he was amusing himself singing some blithesome Finnish ditties. As soon as Officer McEwen put in an appearance Peter hiccoughed for joy and taking a firm hold of the officer's hand hailed him as "papa." Then he fell asleep with his fists entwined in the official whiskers. At the station it was necessary to use force to separate the officer from his unwished for relative.

St. Paul Says He Just Wanted the Bonspiel.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—Reports from Duluth state that the St. Paul carnival committee had demanded that the bonspiel be brought from that city were shown today to Chairman J. J. Parker, of the carnival committee. "There must be some misunderstanding," said he, "because our intentions in the matter were the most kindly toward Duluth. We thought that if it was possible to get the bonspiel here in connection with the carnival it would help us amazingly, and talked it over with Mr. Myron and asked him to communicate with the Duluth curlers and see what could be done.

"What Mr. Myron wrote to them I am, of course, unable to say, but it seems hardly likely that he would write in the strain indicated. We asked him to make a suggestion to the Duluth people for the holding of the carnival here. No one ever dreamed of demanding it, or even saying anything that could be construed in any but the most cordial and kindly way. I think the Duluth people have misunderstood the tenor of Mr. Myron's communication. Certainly the bonspiel would help us immensely, and we thought that in view of that fact the Duluth curlers might be induced to resign the bonspiel for this year."

JUDGE IVES' REMARKS

Cause a Case to be Returned Him.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—Judge Canty, of the supreme court, this morning handed dow a number of decisions, in one of which Judge Ives, of the Fourteenth judicial district, gets a reversal on account of some of his peppery remarks to an attorney for the defense. It was in the case of the state vs. Robert E. English, charged with the larceny of a replevin bond. In the opinion it is stated that during the trial the defendant offered openly and fairly some papers in evidence, which the court received. After the evidence was all in, and while the attorney for the defense, who happened to be Judge Montague, of Crookston, was arguing the case, he referred to the papers.

Judge Ives promptly told him that he had no right to refer to the papers, as they were not in evidence, or if they had been introduced, it had been done surreptitiously. This and other like remarks on the part of the presiding judge are held to be prejudicial error, so the decision of the court denying a new trial to English, who was convicted, is reversed, and a new trial granted.

There is also a reversal of the decision of the lower court in the case of Osbourne & Co., respondent, versus the Cargill Elevator company, appellant. A man named Glysson, a farmer, who could not speak English, and had a very imperfect idea of the laws of this country, mortgaged ten acres of wheat to Osbourne & Co. After threshing it, he mixed it in with wheat from another field and sold 148 bushels, which was all but about 17 bushels of what he had, to the Cargill company and the Osbourne company sued to recover the whole amount for which the wheat was sold. The court holds that as there was no evidence of fraudulent intent on the part of Glysson, the Osbourne company is entitled to receive only that portion of the wheat covered by its mortgage.

Other decisions are as follows:

John B. Voyer, appellant, vs. Dispatch Printing company, respondent. Order reversed.

Fred L. Kugath, respondent, vs. John Myers and Henry Reynolds, appellants. Order affirmed.

John M. Greenman, appellant, vs. the board of county commissioners of Mower county, Minnesota, respondents. Judgment affirmed.

The Commercial Mutual Life Insurance company, respondent, vs. John H. Knapp, Edgar J. Knapp et al, appellants. Order affirmed.

BIG BOSTON FIRE.

Loss of $200,000 by Empire Distillery Company.

Boston, Nov. 14.—Fire which started in the 5-story brik building, Nos. 200-202 Congress street, occupied by the Empire Distilling company, today caused a loss of $125,000, $50,000 on the building and $75,000 on the contents. There is an insurance of about $60,000 on the latter. There were about thirty employes in the building when the fire broke out, but all of them escaped.

The Lowney Chocolate company's store is next to the burned building. Over 400 girls were in the dining rooms there when the flames burst from the windows of the burning structure. A panic ensued and the girls joined in a wild rush for the doors. In the scramble several girls fainted and were trodden upon. Miss Alice Fay sustained a broken arm by falling down stairs.

The fire department by most arduous efforts kept the flames confined to the building in which they originated.

FOUR MEN PERISHED.

Rockway Beach, No. Y., Nov. 14.—At 8:20 this morning a large sloop was seen to capsize off this port about a mile from the shore. Four men were seen clinging to her but were washed away later. The sloop drifted away to the southward.

BURROWS FOR CHAIRMAN.

Detroit, Nov. 14.—The News will say that United States Senator Burrows is being urged by his friends for the temporary or permanent chairmanship of the Republican national convention and that Gen. Alger is likely to head the Michigan delegation. The article further states that Gen. Alger will be a prominent candidate for secretary of war, a post which he had anticipated under the Harrison administration.

GOULD MILLIONS GOING.

London, Nov. 14.—Vanity Fair has a dispatch from Paris, referring to recent losses on the bourse there, in which the statement is made that Comte De Castellane, who recently married Miss Anna, daughter of the late Jay Gould, was one of the heavy losers.

HIS WIFE'S MONEY.

Kuntz Wanted it and Another Woman.

Laredo, Texas, Nov. 14.—The double murder and suicide which occurred here yesterday is still surrounded by mystery. The so-called Shuler was found dead in the bed, with a bullet in his heart. Under his pillow was found an insurance policy for $3000 in his own favor and a deed of trust executed for property in East St. Louis. Several letters were found in trunks from various persons, some addressed to William Kuntz, St. Louis and Fort Worth, and others to Mrs. Caroline Mann, East St. Louis and Dallas. Over $1500 was found upon the man's body. From papers found it seems that his name is Kuntz and that he is from St. Louis. A photograph of the man who committed the murder, one of the beautiful little girl, and one of another woman, perhaps 28 or 30 years of age, was found in his room. One letter addressed "Will," written in German, evidently comes from Hoboken, N. J., or Kingston, N. Y. It was not signed. She calls him husband and asks for money. Underclothing was found marked Kuntz. The Fort Worth police were wired and the dead woman's son, named Mark Harrold will arrive today. It is supposed the murderer wanted to rid himself of his two companions. The woman said the money they had was left by her father.

IDENTITY OF THE VICTIMS.

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 14.—The woman killed at Laredo, Texas, was Mrs. Christina Hemm, of St. Louis, whose husband died in St. Louis about a month ago. She came to Dallas in September last under the assumed name of Mrs. Schultz and remained until called to St. Louis by her husband's death. She returned two weeks ago and made known her identity, saying she took the assumed name of Schultz because she was afraid a man named Kuntz would kill her for refusing to marry him before her husband Hemm was dead. She left Dallas last Thursday night to meet Kuntz at Houston to marry him. The girl found murdered with her was Ethel Fischer, of St. Louis, her niece.

MORE FILIBUSTERERS.

Havana, Nov. 14.—A filibustering expedition has landed from Venezuela. An unknown steamer transported the men and war material to a spot near the coast and they were afterwards landed in open boats. The name of the leader of the expedition is not yet known. The reformist presidents of the local committees are resigning and joining the conservative party on account of the article in the Diario de la Marina of yesterday (cabled exclusively to the Associated Press), attacking Gen. De Campos and Premier Canovas Del Castillo and intimating that the leader's policy, prompted by Campos, is responsible for the spread of the insurrection and that only the premier's resignation can save Cuba.

COMMANDER HEYERMAN'S BODY.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—The body of Commander O. F. Heyerman, U. S. N., arrived from Bremen today. Funeral services will be held here on Saturday under charge of the Loyal legion.

APPRAISING SUSPENDED.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Commissioner Lamoreaux today telegraphed the chief examiner of Chippewa Indians in Minnesota, suspending all further work in examinations and appraisements owing to the appropriation being exhausted. The commissioner will recommend that the law be changed so that the appraised lands may be sold.

LIEBEKNECHT SENTENCED.

Breslau, Nov. 14.—Herr Liebeknecht, the socialist leader and editor, was today sentenced to four months imprisonment for lese majeste. The offense consisted in words he used in his speech at the opening of the socialist congress here on Oct. 7, as follows: "The German empire will first collapse, but socialism will triumph. A violation of universal suffrage will be equivalent to the death warrant of the imperial government. The party cannot deny defeat, no matter how many bayonets are at the disposal of those who wish for a trial of strength."

ANOTHER RISE IN VIEW.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The executive committee of the Wire Nail Manufacturers association is in session here today. At the noon adjournment, Secretary Mitchell, of Boston, said it was impossible to forecast the result of the meeting. There will be nothing for the public unless the manufacturers reduce or increase the price of nails. It has been increased three times within the past four months.

DR. HERRING RECOVERS.

London, Nov. 14.—A verdict in favor of the plaintiff was rendered today in the suit brought by Dr. Conyers Herring for the recovery of the insurance on his yacht Mohican. The jury awarded him $15,000. It is the doctor's intention to bring suits against other companies in which his yacht was insured for the recovery of an additional $10,000. Montague Elder, who accompanied Dr. Herring on board the Mohican when that vessel left New York, says the party will resume their plan of making a fishing trip.

WRONG

The White Murder to Be Made a Test of Detectives' Rights.

Great Excitement in Chicago Over the Presumption of Private Detectives.

Slayer Dix Thought He Was Shooting Clarence White, a Thief.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Edward Dix, the private detective agency employe who shot and killed Frank White in a carriage on the west side last night, was interviewed at the Central police station this morning, but said that under orders from his superintendent, Charles McDonald, and the attorney for the agency, he must decline to say more than that he thought the man shot was Clarence White, a man who has been sought for months under a charge of burglarizing the residence of Norman B. Ream, the well known board of trade man. Dix admitted that he may have been mistaken. The officials of the detective agency decline positively to talk. The police department has detailed several detectives to thoroughly investigate the case.

The agency has for several months past had charge of what are known here as the "porch climbing" cases, the residences of several wealthy residents of South Side having been burglarized by a gang, which it is alleged was headed by Clarence White, a brother of the murdered man, and well known to the police. He was arrested several months ago by another agency, but managed to secure release on a writ of habeas corpus. The city police arrested him, securing his indictment, and he was discharged for lack of evidence. A private detective agency captured his partner, "Butch" Smith and convicted him, sending him to Joliet for eighteen months. Other members of the gang were also arrested and sent to the penitentiary. Since that time the agency whose employe Dix is has had charge of the case and has constantly been looking for him.

The agency has had a man watching the residence of Mrs. White, mother of Frank and Clarence, and yesterday received word that Clarence had come to the house, apparently to pay a visit. Five operatives were at once sent over, but by the time they arrived the spy announced that two men had driven away from the house in a buggy. The detectives followed the route named and met the buggy at the corner of Polk and Laflin streets. Dix, who claims to be intimately acquainted with Clarence White, says he recognized him as one of the men in the buggy, jumped to the bridle of the horse and called on White to surrender. The agency people assert that one of the men in the buggy immediately drew a revolver and fired a shot. Dix returned it, and his companion also began shooting. Dix dropped the bridle and the buggy was driven rapidly away.

Some time later a man residing in Hoyne avenue drove to the West One Hundred and Thirteenth street station in a buggy containing the corpse of the man identified as Frank White. There were several bullet holes in the body of the buggy. The man who brought the horse to the station said he saw the horse running, and thinking it was a runaway, he stopped it. He found the corpse of Frank White in the carriage.

The body was taken to a morgue, where it was soon identified by the mother as that of her son Frank, who is said to be a good citizen and an employe of a large commercial house in this city. Mrs. White declines for the present to talk on the subject of the alleged visit of Clarence to the house, or as to whether he had departed with Frank in the buggy. No trace of Clarence has yet been found. The shooting has caused a great deal of discussion among attorneys and citizens as to the assumption by private agencies of authority to arrest men without warrants, and by several prominent attorneys much indignation is expressed. The case promises to become a celebrated one in this line, as it is asserted that in no state but Illinois are private detectives allowed such latitude.

MUST HAVE BIMETALLISM.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Senator Harris has written his colleagues on the committee of six to organize for the campaign of 1896, the free silver Democrats of the country as follows:

"In the light of recent election results there is in my opinion no hope of Democratic success in 1896, unless we can succeed in so organizing the bimetallic Democrats as to secure in the national convention a plain, distinct and unmistakable declaration in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold without regard to the financial policies of any country, and therefore it appears to me that we should double our efforts to secure such organization."

DETROIT EXPLOSION INQUEST.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 15.—The inquest on the thirty-seven victims of last week's explosion in the Journal building ended abruptly this afternoon before any important testimony had been taken. Prosecuting Attorney Fraser asked that the jury merely return a verdict to the effect that the deaths were caused by a boiler explosion, which was accordingly done. His object was to avoid producing testimony which would divulge the case of the state against Engineer Thompson and to make a more searching investigation of the whole matter before the county grand jury.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIMSELF.

Hayward, Wis., Nov. 15.—While deer hunting, ten miles out in the woods, Winfield Sabean, son of Jeremiah Sabean, of this place, accidentally discharged his rifle. The ball took effect in his right hip, passing downward into his leg and lodging there. Sabean had been lying in the woods eleven houre when found yesterday. He will probably die.

FORTY-EIGHT DROWNED.

Shanghai, Nov. 15.—A steam launch belonging to the British cruiser Edgar is reported to have been lost in Japanese waters and forty-eight men who were on board of her are said to have been drowned.

ENGLAND SNUBBED.

Sultan Reappointing Officials Offensive to Britain.

Constantinople, Nov. 15.—The sultan apparently has not tired of snubbing Great Britain. Quite recently he decorated Bahri Pasha, who had been removed from a governorship at the instance of the British ambassador, Sir Phillip Currie, for ill-treating Armenians, and it was said that he was to be appointed to the command of the Turkish troops operating against Zertoun, where the Armenians have seized the barracks and strategic positions, after capturing a battalion of Turkish troops. It is now announced that three prison officials of Moosh, who were dismissed some time ago, upon the demand of the British ambassador owing to their maltreatment of prisoners, have been reinstated. The British charge 'd affaires, Hon. Michael Hobort, has demanded of the porte that the three prison officials be again dismissed.

The report of a serious outbreak at Sivlas is confirmed. The rioting was attended by great bloodshed, but order has been partially restored and the Turkish officials are protecting the foreigners there. No change in the situation is anticipated for some days to come. The reports of a conflict between the Albanian regiment and the Tripoli regiment at Yildiz Kosok, have not been confirmed, although it is well known that there has been bad blood between the guards at the palace, ever since the Tripoli regiment came to the palace.

MAY BE UNTRUE.

London, Nov. 15.—A dispatch to the Times from Constantinople says that a report is current of a conflict Wednesday evening between the Albanian members of the palace guard and the negroes, subjects of the sublime porte in Africa, also members of the personal guard of the sultan. The correspondent of the Times adds that the details seem unworthy of belief, however.

YALE NOT GOING.

Her Eleven Will Not Play at Atlanta.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 15.—The report that a game will be played on Christmas day between the Yale football eleven and the University of Georgia eleven lacks information. One point is very clear, that the regular eleven, the varsity team, will not go. They have no knowledge of any negotiations for any game. Max Adler, the World's fair commissioner, who transmitted the proposition sent by Attorney George E. Hall, to the management of the University of Georgia team, says he knows nothing about the affair beyond that he turned over the correspondence to Mr. Hall.

Since the denials that a team from Yale would go South appeared Mr. Adler has endeavored to obtain some explanation from Attorney Hall, but has received none that was satisfactory. Mr. Hall, when requested by an Associated Press representative to make a statement regarding the matter, flatly declined to do so. He said he did not intend to say anything more about it and wanted no further agitation.

Hall is a young attorney in his first year out of college. It is generally believed, as he is popular among Yale men, that the scrub eleven of ex-players, or perhaps some of the senior class eleven have engaged him to negotiate a trip on speculation. Mr. Hall told Mr. Adler recently that he would publish a card in the Yale News explaining the matter, but has not yet done so.

FOUR GOVERNORS.

Attend the Bay State Day at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 15.—The exposition was turned over "lock, stock and barrel" to the men of Massachusetts, today and since early this morning Governor Greenhalge may be said to have been in command of the grounds, with Governors Hastings, of Pennsylvania, Lippet, of Rhode Island, and Atkinson, of Georgia, as interested onlookers. Governor Greenhalge and his staff were tendered a special reception at the Capital City club last night and this morning they were escorted to the Massachusetts building on the exposition grounds where the exercises of the day occurred. Governor Atkinson welcomed the visiting statesmen to Georgia and Governor Greenhalge responded in a brief, but pointed and able address. Mr. Curtiss Guild, of Boston, representing the Massachusetts commission, also spoke and the state building was formally tendered to the exposition company. This afternoon from 3:30 to 6 o'clock a reception will be held in honor of Governor and Mrs. Greenhalge at the Massachusetts building.

SLAUGHTER OF SEALS.

Port Townsend, Wash., Nov. 15.—Official compiliations of the collector of customs which has been transmitted to the treasury department amply demonstrate the rapid rate at which seal herds of Bering sea are being slaughtered. In the last three months 4914 sealskins have been brought into port, of which number 4650 are females. Sealing authorities aver that one-half of the females are pregnant or nursing pups which would greatly enhance the likelihood of the herds being extinguished. This number of seals represents scarcely one-eighth of the North Pacific catch for a fleet of thirty schooners sailing from Victoria.

TANNER OUT FOR GOVERNOR.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—At a meeting of the Republican state central committee here today John R. Tanner, the well known chairman, resigned that position and announced that he did so in order to place himself at liberty to work openly for the gubernatorial nomination next spring. The attendance at the meeting was large and Tanner's candidacy seemed to be received with favor by a majority of those present. Dr. T. M. Jamieson will probably be his successor.

AN ASPHALT PAVEMENT CASE.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 15.—After a ten days' hotly contested trial the jury this morning returned a verdict against the city of Peoria in favor of the Pruin-Bambrick company for $55,000 in payment for the Perry avenue asphalt pavement laid a year ago. The city had contested payment charging that land asphalt was used and that the material was "not equal" to the best Trinidad pitch lake asphalt, as stipulated in the contract.

CHICAGOANS AT AUGUSTA.

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 15.—Chicagoans arrived here this morning and are being royally entertained. Speeches of welcome were made by Congressman J. C. Black and Mayor W. B. Young. Responses were made by Governor Altgeld, Mayor Swift, Peck and others. Chicago and Augusta have already fallen in love with each other. Congressman Black's patriotic address of welcome was cheered to the echo by the Chicago party.

O'GRADY ALLEGEDLY INSANE.

Cincinnati, Nov. 15.—This was the day set for the trial of Father O'Grady for the murder of Mary Gilmartin. His attorney stated that tomorrow he would file a certificate from a reputable physician that O'Grady is now insane. The court will then call a jury to try the question of his insanity. Further action in the case will depend on the verdict of the jury.

CORBETT

He Declines Dan Stuart's Proposition for a Fight.

Corbett Declares He Is Out of the Ring Forever.

Surprised That Stuart Would Take Any More Stock in Fitz.

New York, Nov. 15.—The World says today: Jim Corbett does not take interest in Dan Stuart's latest proposition, in which he names El Paso or a point near there as a battle ground for Corbett and Fitzsimmons. "When I announced my retirement from the ring, I meant it," said the Californian last night. "I would not train again for a great deal of money, and particularly not for this bluffing foreigner. If he wanted a fight he could certainly have had one at Hot Springs. If Fitzsimmons expected me to be led into another wild goose chase and bankrupt myself, paying expenses, he is mistaken. I am surprised at Dan Stuart for taking any further stock in Fitzsimmons."

STUART'S PROPOSITION.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 15.—Dan A. Stuart says that he has found a battle ground for Corbett and Fitzsimmons and that he has invited their managers hanging up a $20,000 purse for a finish fight, they to take the purse if he fail to carry out his contract. He would like the fight fixed for Jan. 19 next. The place, he says, will be within easy access of El Paso. Stuart thinks both Corbett and Fitzsimmons will fight as they will regard that they cannot avoid the meeting after going so much talking. It is understood that Stuart has made arrangements to pull off the fight just across the Rio Grande in Juarez, five miles ride from El Paso.

MONARCHY IN BRAZIL.

A Movement to Enthrone a German Prince.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 15.—A special from Rio Janeiro dated Nov 1 says: Persons who arrived here today from Nichteroy, announce the shooting there of twenty-seven political prisoners on Sunday morning amongst whom were two colonels. This has caused the greatest excitement in all circles and nothing else is talked of. The executed are known to have been in sympathy with the monarchial cause which is daily gaining ground. It is stated that many of the officers of the army and navy have sworn to join the movement and many officers now operating in the South against the rebellion also favor it. It is also stated that both England and Germany will favor the movement and the plan is to place a German prince on the throne of Brazil, probably Prince Henry of Prussia.

STATE ARBITRATORS.

Cyrus H. Kellogg Appointed the Second Member.

St. Paul, Nov. 15.—Cyrus H. Kellogg, of Kellogg, Johnson & Co., was appointed on the board of arbitration yesterday by Governor Clough to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal of Senator W. B. Dean to act on the board. Mr. Kellogg is appointed to represent the employers of labor. He will confer with J. E. Johnson, of Minneapolis, the representative of labor on the board, and together they will decide on the third member who is to represent neither the employer nor employe. In case Messrs. Kellogg and Johnson do not select the third man within ten days, the governor may appoint him at his discretion.

SCHOOLS FOR COREA.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The first impulse of the move of civilization in Corea resulting from the China-Japan war, is noted in a dispatch to the state department from United States Minister Sill, transmitting a royal decree establishing a system of schools in the country. The purpose as quaintly expressed in the decree is "children shall be taught in order that the people may be educated; that a general knowledge may be diffused and men of ability may be raised up to fill the various professions." There are three kinds of schools—government, public (under the care of the magistracy or prefectures) and private schools.

MR. MORGAN NOT MISTAKEN.

Livingston, Ala., Nov. 15.—Senator John T. Morgan in an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press in regard to Lord Salisbury's claim that Senator Morgan's objection to the payment of the Bering sea claims is based on a misapprehension of facts, declared that it was impossible that he (Mr. Morgan) could be mistaken in facts which stand opposed to the demands of Great Britain for $425,000 damages for seizure of fishing vessels arrested in Mr. Cleveland's first admininistration.

GERMANY FAVORED BY CHINA.

London, Nov. 15.—A special dispatch received here from Shanghai says that it is positively stated that China has agreed that Germany shall occupy one of the islands near the entrance to the seaport of Amoy for the purpose of establishing a naval yard and a coal depot. It is added that it is feared this step will be followed by international complications as France and Russia are certain to seek similar privileges.

NOVEMBER DERBY.

London, Nov. 15.—Today's feature of the November derby meeting was the derby cup of 2000 sovereigns, a handicap event for 3-year-olds and upwards. The course was one mile straight and twenty-two horses started. W. W. Fulton's Landomia won and Lord Cadogan's Court Ball was second. Col. North's Red Heart finished third.

PACIFIC ROAD DEBTS.

Secretary Smith May Make Radical Suggestions.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The report of Secretary Smith will be one of the most interesting ever made by a secretary of the interior in several years. There are several features which will be an innovation in this department. More interest centers around the recommendations the secretary will make, settlement of the Pacific railroad debts than anything else. It is known that Mr. Smith believes in a continuous line of Pacific roads from Omaha to the Pacific ocean and that he thinks such a line can be operated to an advantage. Some time ago the secretary had up all patents of lands issued to the roads which were bond added amounting to 7,000,000 acres. Whether this is an indication that he intends to make some rather radical recommendations to congress is not known, but it is a fact that the secretary has been securing statistics relative to the earnings of the roads and their capacity to earn enough to pay a moderate interest upon the indebtedness. It is expected that congress will undertake to legislate upon the subject of the Pacific railroad indebtedness during the coming congress and the secretary will recommend a plan of settlement.

WEST INDIES INJURED.

Deputation Protests Against Foreign Sugar Bounties.

London, Nov. 15.—A deputation of West Indian merchants and planters called at the colonial office and had an interview with the secretary of state for the colonies, the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain. The spokesman of the deputation urged that injury was being done to the West Indies by the bounties given for sugar production in Europe.

Mr. Chamberlain promised to submit to his colleagues the views of the deputation, but pointed out that in respect of some of the dependencies, it might be possible to make their prosperity less bound up in sugar planting. He referred hopefully to the prospect for gold mining in British Guiana, and expressed the opinion that there was no chance of getting the house of commons to sanction countervailing duties to force foreign governments to stop giving sugar bounties.

Continuing Mr. Chamberlain said: "Our only influence rests in persuasion, and it is best to leave the foreign governments to be influenced by their own financial embarrassments."

METHODIST MISSIONS.

General Committee in Session at Denver.

Denver, Col., Nov. 15.—The general missionary committee of the M. E. church is in annual session at Trinity church. Fourteen bishops of the M. E. church are present, four only being absent. Three of these are in Africa, China and India respectively. Bishop J. W. Joyce presided. The first business was the hearing of the report of Treasurer Dr. Sanford Hunt. The cash receipts for the year ending Oct. 31, 1895, amounted to $1,174,554. The total receipts last year were $1,137,807; increase, $36,746. Expended for all purposes, $1,237,845; expenditures over receipts, $63,291; indebtedness Nov. 1, 1894, $175,764. Total indebtedness Nov. 1, 1895, $239,055.

Bishop Foss moved that $1,000,000 be appropriated for the total work of the society for the coming year. Bishop Foster offered a motion making the amount $1,100,000, 10 per cent to be applied on the debt. After a long debate, Bishop Foss' motion was adopted.

MORTON'S REPORT.

He Wishes Meat Inspected for Home Consumption.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Secretary Morton will complete his annual report next week. The secretary will take the system of government inspection of meats and will point out some of the defects in it as it now exists. The fact that the system fails to protect American consumers while it guards the health of foreign purchasers of our beef has often been pointed out. The law permits the federal authorities to condemn but not to destroy and thus stands in the way of an effectual interference on the part of government officials to prevent the consumption of diseased meat in this country. Mr. Morton acknowledges this imperfection in the law and says it is due to our system of government which leaves such matters largely to the state. He says, however, that there is a remedy for the defect which is to be found in appealing to the owners of diseased stock or in co-operation with the state governments and urges that steps be taken looking to the extension of the national governments perogative in this direction.

TO REMOVE PROBERT.

Washburn's Mayor Will Be Brought Into Court.

Washburn, Wis., Nov. 15.—It is alleged that a petition will be presented tomorrow to Circuit Court Judge Parish, asking him to grant an order requiring Mayor A. C. Probert to show cause why he should not be removed from office. Probert is president of the defunct Bank of Washburn, and it is alleged, used his official position to secure the deposit of the city's funds in his bank, knowing himself to be insolvent. His indebtedness to the city is over $21,000. It is also alleged that other charges than this will also be preferred against him.

END OF LIAISON.

St. Louis, Nov. 15.—The double murder and suicide at Laredo, Tex., proves to have been the sequel of a liaison between the murdered woman, Mrs. Caroline Menn, and Kuntz, the murderer, or O'Harrold, as he is known in East St. Louis, where the affair had its inception. Mrs. Menn was the second wife of Fred Menn, a saloon keeper, and O'Harrold was his bartender. The wife fell in love with the latter and thirteen months ago abandoned her husband, who died shortly afterward. The couple went to St. Louis and lived together, where Mrs. Menn supported her lover. Oct. 13 last year Mrs. Menn disappeared, after selling property here for $3000. A dispatch from Laredo says that Mrs. Menn's son had arrived there and identified the murdered woman as his mother and the body of the girl as the daughter of Mrs. Fisher, of East St. Louis, step-daughter of Mrs. Menn.

CHICAGO

It Has First Chance at the Republican National Convention.

Chairman Carter Makes a Proposition to the Windy City.

Must Pay $54,000 and Working Expenses or Pittsburg Gets It.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—A meeting of business men was held at the Sherman house yesterday to take effective steps to secure the national convention for Chicago. Several committees were appointed, and it was decided to make a strong fight for the convention. It was announced that Chairman Carter, of the Republican national committee, has sent word to Chicago that the city may have the Republican convention for $54,000 cash and a guarantee to pay the working expenses of the meeting. J. Irving Pearce, a leading hotel man, says he will raise the money. Chairman Carter declared that San Francisco is entirely out of consideration, and that Pittsburg's petitions will only be heard after Chicago's refusal to buy. This position he explains on the grounds of the committee's poverty, he seeing in the auction an easy way to cancel an old indebtedness. President Dewitt, of the Marquette club, secured this definite flat proposition. He sent an envoy extraordinary to the headquarters at New York, promising the committee a most liberal contribution to the legitimate expenses of such a gathering. It was reported to the club that the convention had practically been made contingent on a purse to pay obligations contracted in other campaigns. Mr. Carter had said the amount was $54,000, and assured the Chicago men that Pittsburg stood ready to contribute that much in addition to the regular sum for halls, committee expenses and other items of the convention. This proposition was placed before the club, and President Dewitt brought it to the mass meeting, held in the club house in the Sherman house yesterday afternoon, and it was voted to begin at once the work of raising the necessary funds.

League Umpires May Suspend Talky Players.

New York, Nov. 15.—Last night the delegates of the National Baseball league concluded their business and adjourned until Feb. 24, 1896, when they will meet again at the Fifth Avenue hotel. The rules committee was requested to submit an amendment to rule 59 substantially abolishing the infliction of money fines and empowering umpires to remove from the ground any player who after being cautioned, continues to be guilty of violating any of the rules, and in case of serious violation to remove him without any caution. The election of officers to constitute the national board was then taken up and their number increased by one. The following were elected: N. E. Young, C. H. Byrne, John T. Brush and A. H. Soden. The double umpire question was not taken up, but will be fully considered at the meeting next February. The application of ex-Capt. John M. Ward to have his name erased from the reserve list of the New York Baseball club was also laid over until the February session. Secretary Young said that this was practically all the business transacted at the meeting and added that there was a great deal of time consumed by the delegates in talking.

GERMAN PAPERS A BOON.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 15.—In a paper read before a literary society last night Editor Coleman, of the Herold, held that the German newspapers in this country are Americanizing Germans, and in that way are proving a positive benefit. He said that most Germans, like other immigrants, set foot in America without a full comprehension of American government and without a knowledge of English with which to obtain the understanding. The German papers, he claimed, furnished them the knowledge they could get in no other way.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER

To Kirk That Will Prove of Great Interest to the Public.

Superior, Wis., Sept. 5, 1895.

Messrs. James S. Kirk & Co., Chicago, Ill.:

Gentlemen—We have been in the laundry business for several years and have tried nearly all the washing compounds and soaps which have been in the market during that time, but we are free to say that none seem to give as desirable results as Eos. For family washing particularly we would recommend it, and think no housekeeper can afford to be without it. It is up to the times as a labor saver and leaves the finest fabrics in the best of condition. In fact we look upon it as a revelation as a cleanser. As soon as the people become acquainted with it we believe the sale will be something enormous, and we hope our recommendation may be the means of lessening the labor of some housekeepers. Very truly yours,

(Signed)

LODGE IN LONDON.

The Senator Talks Plainly as to Venezuela.

London, Nov. 15.—In an interview with Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the Chronicle quotes that statesman as saying that the Monroe doctrine is a declaration of policy, rather than a proposition of international law, that Americans have always sustained and will continue to sustain. He said its bearing on the Venezuelan question was simple. The question was what was the true boundary between the Dutch and Spanish possessions, which could be settled by arbitration. If England refused to arbitrate, the national consequences as to other European powers would fatally infringe on the Monroe doctrine and the United States could not regard it as otherwise than hostility to it.

William T. Stead, replying to Senator Lodge, said England would never consent to any veto being placed on the freest expansion of Pacific trade, and that it would be absurd to arbitrate the Venezuelan question.

Bismarck Girl Makes a Record for Marrying.

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 15.—Martin P. Scotland, of Minneapolis, while in this city as a carpenter on the capitol addition last fall, met and married Caroline A. Swenson. Yesterday he came here to look for her and found that she was a second time married to Charles Hanson, formerly clerk of court and a prosperous farmer here. Warrants were sworn out for Hanson and the woman and they were arrested and will have a hearing today.

WEAKER VALUES.

Tendency of Manufactured Iron to Decline.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 15.—The American Manufacturer and Iron World says today: The only notable feature of the iron and steel market during the past week was the tendency toward lower figures and a smaller volume of business. All branches of the market are practically at a standstill, but in some the only movement apparently is shown in lower figures. In Bessemer pig and the more finished forms of Bessemer steel, the weakness has been most pronounced, and has resulted in quite a decrease in prices. The entire market seems to be in a waiting condition, as nobody seems disposed to push things. Forge and foundry irons are quoted about as they were last week. The finished iron and steel trade continues to grow slower. The sheet market is also rather weak, although there has been no quotable change in prices.

The entire tone of the market is rather weaker than it has been for some time past, the following prices ruling: Iron from best muck bar, $1.40@1.50; common iron, $1.35@1.40; steel bars, $1.35@1.40. There are no important developments in the steel rail trade, and the regular figures still remains at $28.

CLEANING OUT THE A. R. U.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 15.—It is said that west-bound trains last night were loaded with men who are intended to take the places of the A. R. U. members on the Great Northern system. Eleven switchmen went to Wilmar and fifteen brakemen got off here. New men are also arriving at Melrose. The belief is that the road is preparing for a wholesale discharge of A. R. U. members. The officials deny, however, that this is the case, explaining that the growing traffic makes more employes necessary.

IMPOTENT

Senator Squire Says This Country is Badly Situated to Bluff.

Lack of Coast Defenses Prevents Backing Up the Claims.

It Must Be Politic Rather Than Aggressive in Its Diplomacy.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 15.—Senator Watson C. Squire, chairman of the senate committee on coast defenses, who will within a few days leave for the national capital, has very decided views concerning the Alaskan boundary dispute. He is by no means pleased with the present outlook. "Several years ago," he says, "the senate committee on coast defenses recommended to the senate the establishment of a cannon factory on the Pacific coast. I reported the bill from the committee and supported it in an earnest speech on the subject. Very few of the people are aware that the old fortifications and the cannon mounted on our seacoast are absolutely useless against modern ships of war. They are about as effective as a pistol would be against Gatling guns. So far as I am aware, there is only one completed modern fortification in the United States supplied with modern guns of heavy calider, and that is at Sandy Hook. This constitutes the entire modern land defense of the great city of New York. It is true, however, that works of this kind have been commenced at Boston and San Francisco. The appropriations of congress have been absolutely inadequate for protecting sea coast cities from destruction by a foreign enemy. There are twenty-eight of the principal sea coast cities in the United States requiring guns and fortifications for defense against possible outside ships. It is therefore very difficult for our government to make a strong stand in international diplomacy when it is conscious of such utter weakness to withstand an attack."

When asked in what light he regarded the action of the British government in stationing police along the Alaskan boundary, he said: "I do not know what friendly action England can have in sending anybody there at this time. As I understand the matter, England is engaged in a friendly effort to definitely locate the international boundary line. If unfavorable developments continue, I shall certainly call the attention of congress to this matter at an early date, and in no uncertain way."

Just after the Franco-Prussian war, she was Paris correspondent for New Orleans and other papers, and has written a number of successful books, among them "Baby Rue," "How She Came Into Her Kingdom, and "The Modern Hagar." KIMBALL KILLED.

The Absence of Insane Deadwood Banker Explained.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—It is now believed that G. R. Kimball, the banker who disappeared from Deadwood Sept. 7, while temporarily insane, carrying $100,000 in cash and securities, is the man who was murdered at Alliance, Neb., Oct. 13. The body was found by the roadside with the skull crushed. There was nothing on the corpse to identify it. In some manner his friends heard of the case and sent a photograph to the authorities, who think they identified it. He is supposed to have been killed for his money. Kimball was arrested on a train at Tecumseh, Sept. 11, his strange actions and appearance attracting attention. He was thought to have gone on toward Kansas City since which time all trace of him has been lost. Kimball left his wife and sick baby at Deadwood representing that he would go to some neighboring towns and would be home within two days. He was 31 years of age.

Lucas, mortgagee, dated January 1st, 1892, and recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February 27th, 1892, at 8:45 o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred one (101) of mortgages, on pages 269, 270, 271 and 272; which mortgage was assigned by said William E. Lucas to Leroy J. Emery by an instrument dated February 25th, 1892, and recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February 27th, 1892, at 8:45 o'clock a. m., in Book ninety-seven (97) of mortgages, on page ninety-nine (99); such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said mortgage debt, which became due July 1st, 1895, amounting to the sum of twenty-eight ($28.00) dollars, which default has continued for more than ten days, and still continues, and in the non-payment of the sum of twenty-five and 30-100 ($25.30) dollars, for taxes for the year 1892, which had become and were a lien upon said premises hereinafter described, and were delinquent, and were paid by said mortgagee, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, on October 16th, 1895; by reason of which defaults the said assignee of said mortgage has elected to exercise the option to him given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and he does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and said sum heretofore paid for taxes by him, and three and 50-100 dollars heretofore paid by said assignee for insurance premiums upon said premises, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, to be now due and payable;

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred seventy-four and 60-100 ($774.60) dollars, principal, interest, exchange, taxes and insurance premiums paid;

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, except an action for the recovery of the sum due upon said interest coupon note which became due on July 1st, 1895, in which judgment was duly entered, and execution issued thereon, and the same heretofore returned wholly unsatisfied by the sheriff of said St. Louis County;

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, viz.: All that tract of land situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered fifty-three (53), in block numbered one hundred twenty-six (126), in Duluth Proper, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the office of said register of deeds; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the thirtieth (30th) day of November, 1895, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, to pay said debt, interest, taxes and insurance, and fifty ($50.00) dollars attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

UNJUST

Rev. S. A. Jamieson Answers the Morning Paper's Harsh Criticism.

He Never Spoke Disparagingly of the Morality of Hinckley's People.

Promised Wedding at the Hazelwood Church Social, a Huge Fake.

Rev. S. A. Jamieson, who is a well known resident of West Duluth, denies the imputation published editorially in the morning paper, that he is a fit subject for a lunatic asylum or that he has in any way cast any aspersions upon the town or the good people of Hinckley. He says that he was present at the meeting last Sunday when R. S. Sulzer made the remarks quoted or words somewhat similar, but in the few words spoken by himself no reference was made to the morality of the Hinckley people. His remarks were confined solely to the taking up of a collection to assist in paying off the indebtedness of the church which at that time was being dedicated. As far as Mr. Sulzer is concerned he thinks his sentiments were inappropriate and unfounded, and that he should apologize for his false accusation.

Rev. Mr. Jamieson says the only way his name could possibly be connected with the affair is through an address he delivered at the memorial service held last September at Hinckley. During his remarks he made historical reference to certain cities destroyed by fire and says he might have mentioned Sodom and Gomorrah, but if he did so it was with no intention to compare them with Hinckley from a moral standpoint, nor does he think the people who heard him construed his language in any such manner.

The paper at Hinckley in speaking of the address has this to say: "Rev. S. A. Jamieson held the deepest attention of the audience during his address. His delivery was excellent and the effect produced by his remarks will be lasting." No criticism of Mr. Jamieson's language has ever appeared in the columns of the paper while on the other hand the words of Mr. Sulzer have been severely condemned.

ADVERTISED A FAKE.

People expect to be humbugged when they go to a circus, but a large number were surprised that church people should advertise a fake attraction simply to draw a crowd as was done at Great Eastern hall last evening. The chief feature billed for the entertainment was a wedding and the only excuse given for the failure of this part of the program, was that the young couple did not put in an appearance. The whole entertainment was marred by this occurrence so that a fairly excellent program of recitation and song was little appreciated and the audience went away disappointed.

CRUEL MADAGASCANS.

More interesting than the actual progress of the French war of conquest are the savage characteristics of the native Madagascans, says the New York World. In April a Sakalave merchant, M. Philippe, who has his residence at the town of Mahebo, was set upon by the Hovas and made prisoner. He was brought before the queen and accused of having insulted her and was condemned to death, though plainly not guilty of even a word outspoken against her majesty. The exulting savages took him to the place of punishment, which was a wide clearing in the forest, and there fastened a cord about his neck, holding him tightly, strong men grasping his arms and legs meanwhile.

At a given signal five men seized each end of the rope and hauled on it, slowly strangling the unfortunate man. While he was still in his first agony hoarse barks and deep bayings came from a pack of ferocious dogs who were held in leash nearby, and were anxiously straining for freedom. That came an instant later. Simultaneously, then, they were on the body of the dying man, tearing off his flesh in huge pieces, torturing him as not even the ancient Inquisition would have dared. Even before death came to him the dogs were fighting among themselves for the pieces of meat that strewed the ground.

EASIER

The Wheat Market Was Weaker Today but Ruled Quite Steady.

Receipts at the Primary Markets in the West Still Large.

Seventeen Loads of Wheat Worked at New York for Export.

Wheat was slightly easier but quite steady today. The market opened lower. The Liverpool market was quoted steady, San Francisco advised the taking of two cargoes of wheat for Australia and one for Capetown, South Africa, and that Portland, Ore., was also doing some business of the same kind. The offset to all that was the reported arrangement at New York to ship $2,500,000 in gold by tomorrow's steamer and the fact of the primary market receipts in the West being still conspicuously larger than last year's, as they have been for so long.

Chicago receipts were 381 cars compared with 394 a week ago and 134 last year. Minneapolis and Duluth got 1006 cars against 1235 last week and 755 last year. The total at all the Western primary markets today was 1,308,000 bus, compared with only 694,000 bus on the corresponding day of the year before. The Atlantic ports shipped the equivalent of 232,000 bus in wheat and flour. New York reported seventeen loads taken for export, and a cash operator at Chicago sold 100 cars of winter wheat for interior millers, 20,000 bus going to Indianapolis. Late cables reported Liverpool unchanged and ¼d higher; wheat at Paris 5 centimes lower and flour 15 to 20 centimes lower; Berlin ½ mark lower.

December opened ⅛c lower here at 54⅛c, advanced to 54¼c but lost the gain. May started at 58⅞c, declined ⅛c, sold up to 59c and eased off again. The shippers and elevators took 200,000 bus of wheat to arrive at ¼c and ⅜c over December, and the mills paid ½c premium for 60,000 bus. The close was ⅛c lower than yesterday for cash and December and ⅛c lower for May. Barley sold by sample at 17 to 25c, with indications of a bear movement. Flax bulged 1c, and 6000 bus were sold at the top, total sales being about 20,000 bus. Following were the closing prices:

No. 1 hard cash, 55⅝c; November, 55⅝c; December, 55⅛c; May, 59⅝c. No. 1 northern cash, 54⅝c; November, 54⅝c; December, 54⅛c; May, 58⅝c. No. 2 northern cash, 50¼@51⅝c. No. 3, 44⅞@49⅝c. Rejected, 37⅝@46⅛c. Rye, 33c. No. 2 oats, 18½c. No. 3 oats, 18c. Flax, 88½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 401; oats, 2; rye, 6; barley, 25; flax, 41. Receipts—Wheat, 495,378 bus; oats, 10,366 bus; rye, 4253 bus; barley, 30,235 bus; flax, 46,677 bus. Shipments—Wheat, none; flax, 656 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Dullness was the most pronounced feature of today's wheat market. The little syndicate of bears that covered their lines and went long two days ago were the most conspicuous sellers of yesterday and today. Cable news was unimportant but quote slightly lower markets at nearly all points, and the fear of gold shipments in the stock market also cast a shadow on wheat. On the other hand there was a good demand for cash wheat, and about 135 cars were sold to go to milling points in the winter wheat section. Seaboard clearances are fairly good and a considerable amount was taken for export today. The market would be easily influenced either way, but in the absence of any important factor will probably continue to drag downward.

Fine weather was the cause of an easier corn market, cash corn declining ½c under a poor demand. The near futures were sold by the elevator people.

Provisions dull, stagnant and featureless.

AN UNPOPULAR PEOPLE.

Such the English Race Appears to Be.

Twelve men once agreed that each should ask the most unpopular man of his acquaintance to dinner, says London Spectator. They sat down thirteen, for the twelve votes had fallen on one man. It is very much to be feared that if the peoples of the earth were to be asked to name the most unpopular nation, they would, with one assent, name England. Some of them might say that personally, they liked her, but all would agree in the fact that she is the most unpopular member of the family of nations. With the French our unpopularity as a nation almost passes into actual hatred; while Germany, though she agress with us in many finds us all over the world a source of dislike and irritation.

By Russia we are still things, and has many points of sympathy, more openly regarded as the disagreeable power, whose function is to be stolidly and stubbornly tiresome and unamiable. Even Austria, though she has little real cause to hate, and some cause to like, admits with a sigh that we are intolerable, "like all selfish people"—for that we are always selfishly looking out for our own interests she regards as an undeniable fact. To Italy alone of the powers we present a pleasanter face; but she, while she disavows the feeling for herself, has to admit that her experience is contrary to the rest of mankind, and that, therefore, in the true sense of the word, we are unpopular. She may deny that the unpopularity is deserved, but she cannot but note the phenomenon.

Our own flesh and blood in America join the chorus, and declare that though we are sound at heart, and in essentials virtuous and full of moral worth, we are, in the daily intercourse of international life, very unpleasant, a blundering, bullying, grabbing power with no regard for the feelings of others, and therefore naturally and inevitably disliked. Even the colonies are often inclined to represent something of the same feeling, and to express the opinion that they do not wonder the governor is so much disliked when she pays so little attention to other people's views, and is so dashed patronizing. "Of course, one doesn't mind it a bit from one's own father, but it must be decidedly annoying from a stranger." As for the little powers, they are white with rage when they think of England. It is no good to tell them that they always get justice from England, when what they want is a touch of "high consideration."

They would far rather be robbed and injured than, as they think, humiliated. The poor Southerner would always rather be plundered by a nobleman who gives him a bow and a salute, than have a loaf of bread chucked him by a rich bourgeois who makes a joke about his lantern jaws and empty belly. With Spain, Holland, Denmark, Belgium, Portugal, Sweden and the Spanish republics of South America, we are, therefore, quite as actively unpopular as we are with the great states. They may not hate us for any cause, or have, indeed, any sort of real grievance against us, but our unpopularity with them is a matter of instinct. We are Dr. Fell to each and all of them.

THE PARIS OF AMERICA.

After taking into full account the claims of the sensitive city of Chicago, it may be truthfully stated that the city of New York is the Paris of America, says Robert Grant in November Scribner. There are other municipalities which are doing their best in several ways to rival her, but it is toward New York that all the eyes in the country are turned, and from which they take suggestion as a cat laps milk. The rest of us are in a measure provincial. Many of us profess not to approve of New York, but though we cross ourselves piously, we take or read a New York daily paper.

New York gives the cue alike to the secretary of the treasury and (by way of London) to the social swell. The ablest men in the country seek New York as a market for their brains, and the wealthiest people of the country move to New York to spend the patrimony which their rail-splitting fathers or grandfathers accumulated. Therefore it is perfectly just to refer to the social life of New York as representative of that element of the American people which has been most blessed with brains or fortune, and as representative of our most highly evolved civilization. It ought to be our best.

The men and women who contribute to its movement and influence ought to be the pick of the country. But what do we find? We find as the ostensible leaders of New York society a set of shallow worldlings whose whole existence is given up to emulating one another in elaborate and splendid inane social fripperies. They dine and wine and dance and entertain from January to December. Their houses, whether in town or at the fashionable watering places to which they move in summer, are as sumptuous if not more so, than those of the French nobility in its palmiest days, and their energies are devoted to the discovery of new expensive luxuries and fresh titillating creature comforts.

New York Recorder: He was rescuing her from the waves, but it looked as though they would never see Boston again. "Hold on tight, Penelope," he gasped; "hold on tight." "Don't say 'hold on tight,'" gurgled the girl with her mouth full of Atlantic ocean. "Say 'hold on tightly.'"

Washington Star: "What do you think of the presidential nominations?" said the governor of Ohio to the governor of New York.

"I haven't dared to form an opinion," was the reply. "It's a long time between thinks this year."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Freeman Keen and Annie Keen, his wife, of Oneota, St. Louis County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Justin Zuger, mortgagee, dated the thirtieth (30th) day of September, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the thirtieth (30th) day of September, A. D. 1891, at four (4) o'clock in the afternoon of said day, in Book fifty-three (53) of mortgages, on page seventy-six (76), which said mortgage was thereafter duly assigned by the said Justin Zuger, mortgagee, to Albert L. Ordean by deed of assignment, dated the eighth (8th) day of October, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the fifteenth day of November, A. D. 1895, at eleven o'clock and ten minutes in the forenoon of said day, in Book one hundred and forty-seven (147) of mortgages, on page twenty-three (23);

And whereas such default consists in the non-payment of the principal and interest secured by and covenanted to be paid, in and by the said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and there is now due thereon at the date of this notice the sum of thirty-eight hundred and fourteen dollars and ninety-nine cents ($3814.99), principal and interest;

And whereas no proceeding or action has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described at public vendue by the sheriff of the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, at the front door of the district court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on Monday, the thirtieth (30th) day of December, A. D. 1895, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon of said day to satisfy the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage, with interest thereon, and the costs and disbursements of the sale, and seventy-five ($75.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are the tracts and parcels of land lying and being in the city of Duluth, St. Louis County and state of Minnesota, known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1), two (2), nine (9) and ten (10), in block numbered twenty-eight (28), in the townsite of Oneota, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said St. Louis County.

Dated Duluth, Minn., Nov. 15th, 1895.

IMPORTANT GATHERINGS.

Two conventions are to be held at St. Paul and Minneapolis next week that are of great interest to Duluth. The first is the immigration convention, to meet at St. Paul on Nov. 19 and last three days. There will be a large gathering, containing prominent men from all parts of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington and Oregon, who will discuss plans for attracting home-seekers to the great tracts of unoccupied land in their various states. In the vast territory tributary to Duluth there is room for many thousands of settlers, and the peopling of the rich lands which now await settlement and cultivation would be the means of adding greatly to the growth of this city in business and population. For this reason Duluth should take an active interest in the convention of next week, and every delegate named by the mayor and the commercial organizations of the city should go to St. Paul and lend their aid towards devising methods for laying before the prospective home-seekers the wonderful resources and unsurpassed advantages of the Northwest.

There is an erroneous impression abroad in many quarters as to the fertility of the soil in Northern Minnesota, and if it is possible to do anything to remove this impression and to demonstrate the fact that nowhere in the entire country is there finer agricultural land than can be found in St. Louis, Carlton, Itasca, Lake, Cook and adjoining counties to the west and south, it should be done. Men and money are required for the development of Northern Minnesota, and every effort should be put forth to attract both. If the people of the East, who are looking westward for new homes, could be persuaded of the resources and possibilities of the great empire west and north of Duluth, there would soon be a rush in this direction that would eclipse all previous records of rapid settlement and development. The delegates from this section of the state can do effective work towards this end at the St. Paul convention.

Another enterprise with largely the same object in view is the holding of a great Northwestern exposition in 1897 or 1898. Governor Clough has issued a call for a convention to be held at Minneapolis on Nov. 20, when it is probable that definite plans for carrying out the idea will be adopted. The Herald has devoted considerable space to this enterprise and has earnestly urged that the suggestion should be put into practical shape and a grand exposition, illustrative of the progress and resources of the Northwestern states, be held at a date to be selected, but sufficiently far in the future to enable the project to be carried out in a proper manner. The success of the Cotton States exposition at Atlanta should encourage the Northwest to go ahead with this splendid enterprise. The visitors to this exposition will see the marvelous Northwest in concrete, and the result must be beneficial to the development and upbuilding of the great empire that stretches from Lake Superior to Puget sound. Let Duluth be well represented at this gathering and make her influence felt in the shaping of the plans for the exposition.

The annual meeting of the trans-Mississippi congress at Omaha on Nov. 25 is another event at which Duluth will be represented and which is of the very greatest importance. From 600 to 1000 delegates from all the states west of the Mississippi, and including Minnesota, are expected to be present, and the attendance may reach much greater figures, because it has been steadily growing each year. The congress has for its object the welfare of the West, and naturally this gives the delegates a great diversity of subjects to discuss. Irrigation, reduced freight rates, improvement of waterways, the annexation of Hawaii and the Nicaragua canal project will be discussed, and there will also be some able speeches on the silver coinage, because, while political subjects are tabooed, this is regarded as a non-political question in which the whole country is interested. The Duluth delegates will no doubt be able to obtain the endorsement of the congress for the project of a deep waterway from this city to the Atlantic ocean, and in return they will lend their aid to the delegates who want congress to further improve the navigation of the Mississippi and other Western waterways. By this union of interests great influence can be exerted at Washington. With the combined strength of the West, all the necessary appropriations can be obtained from congress.

THE WINTER CARNIVAL.

St. Paul will not have the annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling association. It will be held in Duluth and it will be the greatest bonspiel in the history of the association. This was definitely settled at the meeting of the Duluth curlers last evening. It was decided to notify the boomers of the St. Paul carnival, now only projected, that they cannot attach the bonspiel to their carnival. Of course they can have a little bonspiel of their own, but curlers from all over the Northwest always look forward with particular pride to the annual bonspiel of the Northwestern association and they will come to Duluth in great numbers this winter, on account of the elaborate preparations that the local club is making for their reception and on account of the handsome trophies which will be hung up for competition.

If the business men generally and all others who take an interest in winter sports would unite in getting up a good program of other attractions, Duluth would have the making of a winter carnival that would surpass anything that St. Paul can produce, except by the expenditure of a much larger amount of money than the committees in the Saintly city can raise. The Northwestern bonspiel will be well advertised, and consequently Duluth would not find it necessary to do one-quarter of the advertising for a winter carnival that St. Paul will have to do. The curlers would attach to their own advertising matter a program of the carnival, and the railroads would no doubt make low rates for the event and do considerable advertising on their own account to bring the crowds here from other points. Consequently the expense of holding a carnival of winter sports would not be so great as some people imagine. Let us take hold of the project and make it a go. With a little united effort we can throw the St. Paul carnival into the shade.

AN ELOQUENT SPEAKER.

Hon. W. J. Bryan, who will deliver an address at the Lyceum tomorrow night under the auspices of the Duluth Gold and Silver club, is a speaker with a national reputation and should be greeted by a large audience. Mr. Bryan was a member of congress from a Nebraska district, and by his eloquence and ability took a prominent position in that body during his first term. He was regarded as next to Bourke Cockran, of New York, the leading orator of the house, and he obtained the high honor of a place on the ways and means committee during his second term in congress. He is a comparatively young man, and is said to greatly resemble the late Samuel J. Randall, of Pennsylvania, as he appeared in his earlier days. He has a splendid presence and pjossesses an excellent voice of pleasing tone and clear and distinct expression.

On the silver question Mr. Bryan is regarded as one of the best informed men in the country, and he is a sturdy advocate of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 by the United States, independent of any other nation. He discusses this point with great fluency and ability, and presents strong reasons in support of his position. All who are studying the money question or who desire to hear the arguments in favor of free silver coinage presented in a forcible and eloquent manner will do well to listen to Mr. Bryan. Even those who disagree with him will be interested by the able presentation of the money question from his standpoint.

DAVID B. HILL COMING.

The announcement that Senator David B. Hill, of New York, will lecture in Duluth on Saturday, Nov. 30, will be received with pleasure by hundreds who are anxious to see and hear one of the most noted personalities in political life of the present day. No matter whether we agree or disagree politically with Mr. Hill, we cannot but admire the wonderful ability that he possesses and the indomitable courage that he has exhibited in his political contests against tremendous odds.

To many people Mr. Hill is known only as a political leader of great resources and peculiar skill in the manipulation of the wires that lead to success at the polls. But Mr. Hill is more than this—he is a great lawyer, a speaker of much power and eloquence and a profound thinker on all the leading questions of the day. Hence a lecture by him must be worth listening to, and no doubt he will find a large and appreciative audience in Duluth. This is the first year that Mr. Hill has been upon the lecture platform, but he has been well received and has no doubt found it more profitable than political work.

The amusing statement is made in the St. Paul Globe that Congressman McCleary was in that city the other day "wearing in a very modest manner the laurels he won at Duluth" in the debate with Mr. Harvey, but still more amusing is the remark that "when spoken to on the matter Mr. McCleary diffidently changed the subject." Duluth people will not be astonished that he did not like to talk about the debate, but they will be surprised at his suddenly acquired diffidence.

In news and literary features The Saturday Herald stands pre-eminent in this section of the country. It is the acknowledged leader in the local newspaper world, and it will bear favorable comparison, in the completeness of its news columns and the attractiveness of its special features, with any Saturday or Sunday newspaper published in cities of much greater population than Duluth. Read it tomorrow.

Gaul to the front! No ladies will hereafter be admitted to the Theater Francais unless they agree to go hatless and bonnetless, "sans chapeaux, ni coiffures." Verily, the new woman is in the ascendant. Let Paris, says the Boston Transcript, lead the van in one other reform, and proscribe the clove-seeking biped who rushes for the doors between the acts.

Senator Brice was beaten worse for United States senator than Campbell was for governor. The majority against Brice, taking the votes cast for members of the legislature, is supposed to be something like 200,000. Ohio political "workers" may not object to being liberally paid for whatever service they render candidates, but they draw the line against electing Ohio United States senators from New York.

And now another priest, a brother of Damien of Molokai, has gone to the leper island to carry on the work the dying man laid down. Robert Louis Stevenson's Damien letter in defence of the priest is now a much sought piece of literature. Concerning that famous letter, Edward Clifford (the London portrait painter and church army enthusiast, who went to Molokai to see Damien, and wrote about him), wrote, "I exult as I read it, but 'tis vitriolic—written to kill."

A report comes from Ohio politicians at Washington that Senator Sherman is about to resign from the senate. It is said he has made up his mind to retire to private life and to devote his remaining days to writing personal reminiscences and editing the letters and papers of his brother, Gen. Sherman.

Irving's attempt to cockneyize Macbeth is bringing down on him the wrath and the laughter of New York. It is stated that the universal record is that Sir Henry's stage settings are beauteous marvels, but that his dialect and his mannerisms have so grown since his last visit as to be almost unbearable.

The Princeton Union devotes several columns to a report of Mr. Towne's speech on bimetallism at that place last Saturday night. It says that he had a large audience and that all present were well pleased and manifested their approval by frequent applause.

The St. Louis Star-Sayings remarks that if England does not name a poet laureate in time to allow work to commence on an ode to the duchess of Marlborough before she arrives at Liverpool, the delay can be explained as another evidence of Britain's animosity to this republic.

A Republican exchange expresses the hope that Governor Lowndes, of Maryland, will wield the official ax with vigor and let no officeholder guilty of Bourbonism escape. If Governor Lowndes is desirous that Maryland go Republican next year, he will not follow such foolish advice.

The readers of The Saturday Herald, who are numbered by the thousands and steadily increasing, have learned to expect a good newspaper, and they are never disappointed. There is always something that is of peculiar interest to each reader.

Gen. Alger is angry because Senator Sherman makes the charge in his memoirs that the general's friends bought the votes of Southern delegates at the convention of 1888. What Senator Sherman now charges was very generally believed in 1888.

Ex-Speaker Crisp has opened the senatorial campaign in Georgia by a speech in favor of free silver colage. He does not allow Grover to do his thinking for him, and this is where he differs from Hoke Smith.

Lord Sholto Douglass evidently was not aware of the privileges of the American mother-in-law, when he married Miss Mooney of the variety stage.

The Herald goes into more homes than are reached by any other paper published in this section of the country. It is the popular home paper.

President Cleveland's forthcoming message is said to be longer than usual. Perhaps he is explaining "how it happened."

NOT VERY DEAD.

Princeton Union (Rep): Professor McCleary, who debated with Harvey at Duluth last week, opened his speech by declaring that the silver question was a dead issue. Yet he addressed an audience of 2000 who came out to listen and paid "50 cents per head" for the privilege. But then that statement is on a par with the average remarks of the gold monometalist.

HE'S ALL RIGHT.

Fargo Argus: There is a statesman in Minnesota, Cushman K. Davis by name, who is likely to have many delegates in the next national Republican convention. If Mr. Lincoln and Mr. McKinley cannot agree as to which of them shall be the candidate, what is the matter with Davis?

Indianapolis Journal: Napoleonic—I wonder, mused the ambitious maiden, I wonder now if I were to go over to Europe and marry three or four of those counts, and princes, and dukes, and things, could I retain all the titles after the divorces?

Boston Transcript: In this busy land a man is always liable to be aroused from his slumbers; but in Ireland they never wake a person until he is dead.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: "Aw, Miss Feighr," asked Chawles Algernawn Chapp, "D'ye know why it is I think you are like a mirror?"

"Give it up."

"Well, y'see, you're such a—aw—a good looking lass."

Baltimore News: "This is your little sister, Tommy," said the father, showing him the baby; "you will love her dearly, will you not?"

"Y-yes, of course," replied Tommy, inspecting the latest arrival; "but it'll cost a great deal to keep her, won't it?"

"I presume so."

"Yes," said Tommy, with a long-drawn breath; "and when I asked you the other day to buy me a white rabbit you said you couldn't afford it."

New York Recorder: There's one thing, though. If the young man holds her hands all the evening she has to let the piano alone.

New York Weekly: Mrs. Minks—Isn't it queer that such a little bit of country as England can rule such a vast amount of territory?

Mr. Minks—Well, I don't know. You're not very big yourself, my dear.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Tit for Tat.—Mrs.—It is so easy to tell an old maid by her dissatisfied look, you know.

Johnnie—I was in swimmin'.

Life: "So your papa is willing to trust me with you, is he?"

"Yes. He seemed sure you'd fetch me back to him."

Fashion Review: She—Yes, I am very fond of pets.

She (frankly)—Man.

Philadelphia Record: Boy—I want to buy some paper.

Dealer—What kind of paper?

"I guess you better give me fly-paper. I want to make a kite."

Chicago Times-Herald: "Some people," remarked the cannibal chief, as he passed his plate for a second supply, "have a mission in life, while others only have a missionary."

Washington Star: "Oh, Harold," she said, "you do not love me as you did before we were married."

"Yes I do," he protested.

"But you don't yearn for my society as you did."

"Ethel," he said gently but firmly, "I used to yearn on a salary of $18 a week. When a man has the expenses of a family to look after he's got to quit yearning and go to hustling."

GUIDO RENI'S CONFESSION.

I've many sins should I confess them all,
But Father, now I've little breath—
My manikin's a shape of death!
Pray give its folds a lighter fall;

For now my sight is at a loss,
I'd look my last on forms of grace,
And pray the coming dark efface
All lines I drew for love of dross,

Which is no petty wrong, I count;
The other heavy sin you know,
Or heard it rumored long ago;
Now hear it giv'n its full amount.

But turn that Crucifix away,
Lest it accuse at life's release—
For San Lorenzo's altar piece,
Would God 'twere turned to shapeless clay!

No, no! for on my soul its trace
Would linger ever. Oh worldly sin!
I wrought not love, but fame to win.
The agony within that face,

It tells to men the anguish hour
When Christ one moment met despair.
I see him stretched before me there—
My model, helpless in my power!

I saw the death within his eyes—
His fee I kept for each complaint—
And yet I knew him hungry, faint,
I knew the look ere spirit flies.

Oh, but a moment might he live!
My brain was mad, my brushes flew,
As life fast fled, my death face grew.
I knew not what I did. Forgive,

Oh, Christ! My last stroke done,
The look of pain gave place to rest,
His head fell forward on his breast;
My hideous race with death was won.

My craftsman fingers did but trace—
While his the soul that gave the life.
'Twere worth the agony, the strife,
To leave the world its Savior's face.

So bring the Crucifix a-nigh,
And shrive me now. My model, see!
His face in glory looks at me,
While I, like him, in anguish, die!
—Helen Chaffee, in the New Bohemian.

COME NOT AT NIGHT.

O Death, come not for me at dead of night!
Call not my soul to take its lonely flight
Through dark and storm unto the world unknown.

But when the golden sun from out the sea
Shall lift his face to light a path for me,
O Death, come then, and claim me for thine own.
—Carrie Blake Morgan, in November Lippincott's.

TO BE AND NOT TO BE.

Just for an hour to lose the thought
Of all the evil life has brought,
And held within my weary soul
The strength one sad hour to control;
To take unto my tired heart
Peace oblivion can impart.

To be, and yet, oh! not to be,
As far as vexing thought may see,
And yet the fair earth to behold,
The blue sky, the clouds' bright fold,
When waning day, gathering light,
Yields to the mild glory of night.

To see the flush of rosy dawn
And joyously greet one fair morn,
Without a fear the day may bring,
Unto my soul some vexing thing;
To be quite free from all the world,
Yet with spirit pinions furled.

So, still seeing, I may not see
The misery coming to me
Just in the worry of an hour,
When evil thought has the power,
To torture me with misgiving
And despoil the grace of living.

Yet, would I lose the glad surprise
When some dreaded evil flies
Swiftly before the dearest good
I scarce could fancy if I would?
When my soul with deep thanksgiving
Hath sweet rest in gracious living.
—Elsie Carroll Sargent.

THE LAST BUGLE.

I have one fervent prayer
That every day I pray—
God grant that when my battle 's o'er
And I my helmet lay
Aside, that I may fold my hands and slip
From life's worn fields away.

God grant the cares of age,
Its weakness and its fears,
May not be mine; that I may know
No fading, lingering years;
No letting go of my strong grasp,
No dull eyes blind with tears.

Today my heart beats brave,
And I life's march beguile
With onward, hopeful pace. The bugles play.
I glory in the march. Meanwhile
I pray, let "boots and saddles" be the call
When I drop out of file.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE DOCTOR GOT EVEN.

Rockland Tribune: "That horrid little Bimley boy!" exclaimed Dora, pouring tea; "he was just as insulting to Dr. Craver as he could be."

"What did he do?"

"Why the doctor was walking quietly along, and, meeting Willie, put his hand on his head and said: 'How do you do, Willie?' just as nice, and that boy up and made the horridest face, stuck his tongue out at the doctor and said, 'Yah! Yah!' in the hatefullest way possible. I declare if he was my boy I'd whip him. I wonder what Dr. Craver thought?"

"You needn't worry about Craver," David said complacently. "I met Bimley just now and he had his bill."

"The doctor's bill?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"Five dollars, for looking at Willie's tongue."

THE SUPERIOR ROW.

Warm Talk Yesterday Over the Court House Matter.

The Superior court house war is on in earnest. The county board met yesterday and the citizens' committee was there to protest against building an addition to the court house. If $3000 is spent the court house cannot be removed for five years. S. N. Dickinson, on behalf of the Land and River Improvement company, offered the use of the Maryland block free for a term of five years. This is at the West End.

F. A. Ross argued that the greatest good to the greatest number is the theory of all government and that to have the court house where it is now is a great inconvenience to the attorneys and those who do the most business there. He argued also that the county board members should not consider their individual opinions, but only those of their constituents.

J. M. Bardon, of the board, replied in a sharp manner and Mr. Ross was angered and they went at it in a heated manner. The latter declared that if the proposition to submit it to a vote of the people was made and the board refused to act, not a man holding a county office could be re-elected again.

The board finally agreed to do nothing without advising the committee.

Has the Finest.

"Speaking of trains for Chicago," said F. B. Ross, of the St. Paul & Duluth, this morning, "we have a service which knocks them all cold. By leaving Duluth on the St. Paul & Duluth limited at 1:55, the passenger may reach Chicago Union depot at 7 o'clock the following morning by the fast mail train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, which gives its passengers free reclining chair cars through. Our train arrives at St. Paul at 6:25 p. m. and the Milwaukee train leaves at 6:55. Thus one has half an hour for supper just at supper time and makes his change of trains at the same time, instead of in the middle of the night.

"Arriving in Chicago the passenger is enabled to catch any of the early morning trains for the East, South or West, which no other Chicago train from the head of the lakes will enable him to do. Our limited also connects with the vestibule limited trains from St. Paul, giving the best service in the world."

CORNER STONE LAYING.

Large Number of Duluthians Went to Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids lays the cornerstone of her new court house today assisted by Duluth Masons, and a special train on the Duluth & Winnipeg left at 9 o'clock this morning carrying about seventy-five Duluth Masons who were to take part in the ceremonies. In addition a number of citizens took advantage of this opportunity to see Duluth's most prosperous neighbor and tributary and perchance to transact business. The exercises were scheduled for 2:30 p. m. and the following committees were appointed a week ago by Itasca lodge No. 208, of Grand Rapids: Arrangements, C. L. Pratt, W. V. Fuller, A. V. Kelly; banquet, D. M. Gunn, H. D. Powers, E. A. Kremer; reception, F. A. King, George F. Myers, G. R. King, Duluth; records, H. R. King, J. S. Berney, L. F. Knox.

The grand master has deputized W. B. Patton to act as master of ceremonies. R. E. Denfeld will act as deputy grand master, W. G. TenBrook as grand marshal, W. E. Covey as senior grand warden, and H. R. King, of Grand Rapids, as junior grand warden. Rev. Robert Forbes, grand orator, will deliver the oration of the day.

The special train will return this evening, but the Grand Rapids lodge has arranged a banquet for tonight at the Hotel Pokegama which will be something great, and a large proportion of the Duluth Masons will probably not be home before tomorrow.

AMUSEMENTS.

DONNELLY AND GIRARD.

LIQUOR DEALERS ORGANIZE.

The Duluth Liquor Dealers' association met yesterday afternoon and perfected their organization. The association will aid in the enforcement of the liquor laws, and about half of the local retail dealers are among its members. One application for membership was rejected because of trouble the applicant has been having recently in the police court. One of the objects sought is the abolishment of free lunches. The association is not a political organization.

A NEW DIOCESE.

A call for a primary meeting of a convocation for the Episcopal diocese of Duluth has been issued to meet at Brainerd on Dec. 4. This meeting is for the purpose of organization. There are only four self supporting parishes in the new jurisdiction, but the prospects are that with an energetic bishop at the head, the work will very soon develop.

Mr. J. P. Dodge leaves tonight for Fruithurst, Ala., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Olmstead, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McQuaid, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mrs. Ben Howard, Mrs. A. F. Randolph, J. T. Owens and many others.

BONSPIEL

Duluth Curling Club Does Not Intend to Give It Up.

St. Paul People Informed that Duluth Has Already Issued Invitations.

Jobbers Union Presents a Trophy---Skips Selected to Choose Rinks.

The Duluth Curling club met last evening in the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck to consider St. Paul's generous offer to relieve this city of the coming bonspiel. It took but a little while to consider it. A mass of correspondence was read, mostly from Secretary Myron, of the curling association, a great deal of which has already been published. In his later letters he disclaimed any desire to take the bonspiel away from Duluth and assured the club that the curling association and the St. Paul curlers were with Duluth heart and soul. The proposition did not come from the curlers, but from the business men who had St. Paul's carnival in charge. Finally, he said, and he told the St. Paul people as much, that any proposition to remove the bonspiel must come from Duluth.

The Duluth club was then asked by its president what it should do with the matter. C. B. Woodruff thought that it was possible to catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar, and he moved that a retort courteous be sent by the secretary to the effect that the Duluth club had issued invitations to a bonspiel here and that the bonspiel would come off as advertised, and it was hoped that everybody would be here with their families to enjoy the sport. This move met the approval of the club, and the vote in its favor was unanimous.

The jobbers' union announced that it would give a trophy valued at $100 for coming bonspiel, and the game to be played for it will be one of the most important of the bonspiel. Everyone interested in the success of the coming bonspiel reported success and progress. Five skips were selected to represent the club, and they will meet a committee to select their rinks.

It was developed during the meeting that several strong rinks had already been formed, though their membership remained a mystery, except as to one or two men nominated as skips who had to decline because they were already engaged in rinks.

WHAT MELBA SAYS.

ONE REASON FOR THE GREAT SINGER'S SUCCESS.

Never Nervous on the Stage.

The Chicago Record of Oct. 21, under personal mention column, has this to say of the greatest vocalist in the world: "Madame Melba is never nervous on the stage, and she attributes her immunity from the misfortune which afflicts most opera singers to her simple diet. She holds that indigestion brought on by irregular and self-indulgent habits of eating, is the great cause of nervousness and worry among actors and singers."

This is true, not only of actors and singers, but of business men and women, as well as school children; in fact, the American nation is fast becoming a nation of nervous, high-strung dyspeptics.

The idea is, not to diet and starve one's self, but to eat plenty of wholesome food, and after each meal take a harmless, but effective digestive preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Take one or two of these Tablets after each meal and no matter how weak the stomach, they will thoroughly digest the food; it does not remain in the stomach for hours to ferment, decay, and poison the blood and nerves.

While Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are pleasant to take and simple in their action, yet they are probably the safest and most reliable cure for all stomach troubles, loss of flesh and appetite, palpitation, sour or acid stomach, gas and distress after meals. Not only a relief but a permanent cure for all stomach diseases except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package sold by druggists at 50 cents or by mail from Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Delegates to the Immigration Convention Appointed.

The Commercial club met last night in its rooms in the Sloan block, and after waiting a considerable time for the appearance of a quorum, appointed two committees and departed. In the absence of President J. C. Helm, who is sick, Vice President Hill occupied the chair. The members present were N. N. Ole, W. W. Allen, A. M. Cox, J. H. Whitely, J. H. Peak and H. C. Helm, and no one was much in the mood for business.

The ball opened with the reading of some abbreviated minutes of the previous meeting by Secretary Whitely, who announced that he had lost the regular minutes. Then up rose W. W. Allen with his little hammer. Flourishing aloft a copy of The Herald containing a report of the proceedings at the previous meeting, he made a flowery speech full of poetical reference and sarcastic allusions. Beginning with a tribute to Greenland's icy mountains and the late Horace Greeley, Mr. Allen at length came down to his point, which was that the addenda to a resolution introduced by him at the last meeting had been interlined by the secretary.

There was a strained feeling in the air. Everyone held his breath, and the strains from the band at Ole Olssen's opening across the way floated through the open window. Alderman Cox ended the suspense by moving the substitution of The Herald report for the minutes. There were a number of points of order raised, and the tumult subsided when Chairman Hill, in a decided tone, announced he could see no sense in the discussion.

Then the secretary read a communication from the chamber of commerce asking the club to appoint delegates to the immigration convention to be held at St. Paul under the auspices of the Commercial club of that city. In response to a motion the chair appointed as delegates: N. N. Ole, N. Summerfield, W. W. Allen, J. S. Preston, A. M. Cox, John Downey, Dr. Bakke, J. H. Peak, J. W. Nelson and J. H. Whitely. W. W. Allen was delegated to act with a committee from other civic organizations in an attempt to secure free transportation from the railroads.

The remainder of the session was spent in discussing the Garfield avenue viaduct, and the club was unanimous that its immediate construction was imperative. Various plans for bringing the council to see the light were considered, but no action was taken. In the course of the discussion Alderman Krumsieg's attitude of opposition to the viaduct on the grounds of economy was severely criticized.

THE SEASON ENDING.

The Auburn Mine to Close Down This Week.

The Auburn Mining company will close down all work at their mine this week, says the Eveleth Star. It is not deemed advisable to carry on the work of stocking when the mine can so easily ship by the milling process in the spring. It is probable that everything will be closed up tight until spring and the crew now occupied will be transferred to the Fayal. It will mean an addition of from fifty to seventy-five more men at this new shipper.

The Vega will work a big force of men all winter and mine at least 75,000 tons of ore. About 50,000 tons were shipped this season. A new office will soon be built and the present quarters will be occupied for an assayist's office.

A. C. Sanders & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, who receive shipments from the Vega mine, were accompanied by F. L. Hamilton and G. A. St. Clair from Duluth, who came up in President Greatsingers' private car last Thursday.

James Sheridan, of Duluth, has a crew of men on exploratory work in section 8-57-17. This is the property of the Security lands upon which Mr. Sheridan has secured an option.

The Victoria is getting quite a little ore to the surface. Next month will see the shaft completed and the skips running full blast. The engine was set Tuesday and the new dry is already framed. The pocket structure will be raised this week.

At the Norman every preparation is being made to resume operations in the near future. The drill is now working on a new pit. From present appearances the Norman will be near the top of the list of Mesaba shippers next season.

At the Commodore the churn drill has attained a depth of forty feet from the bottom of the pit which thus discloses an ore body of about 150 feet in depth.

At the Franklin and Bessemer everything moves at a lively rate and stock piles are assuming larger dimensions. Surface work is progressing as is also the work on the new shaft.

The Oliver Mining company finished its season's work on Wednesday.

IS NOW A SOUBRETTE.

Miss Olson, a Hinckley Fire Refugee, on the Stage.

The Cleveland Press publishes the following sketch of Miss Madeline Marshall, the leading soubrette of "The Black Crook" company, and it may be of some interest to Duluthians and possibly some people will remember the young woman:

"Miss Lavina Tala Olsen, the leading soubrette with the "Black Crook," has a history quite beyond the ordinary. She is a Swede by birth, and has only been on the stage a few months. Those who have seen and wondered at her skill as a dancer will find this statement hard to believe.

"Miss Olsen, or as she is known on the stage, Madeline Marshall, is 20 years old, and a cousin of Knute Nelson, the ex-governor of Minnesota and present United States senator from that state. When she was 15 years of age she sailed from the land of her birth to join a brother who had preceded her, and settled in Minnesota.

"Her first step was to take up a claim, but unfortunately she settled near Hinckley, the scene of the horrible forest fires of two years ago. On arriving in America, Miss Olsen failed to find her brother, after a search of nearly two months. She went to Hinckley alone and settled on a claim about eight miles from that place. She built a shanty, had a little money, and in a short time had everything going nicely.

"When the fire, which aroused the whole world, broke out, two years ago, Miss Olsen was at her prairie home preparing for harvest. It was only when her cabin caught fire that she got astride of one of her horses and rode as fast as she could toward Hinckley. When about two miles from there her horse gave up and fell, throwing Miss Olsen to the ground, cutting her head badly.

"She ran on foot to the river, which was already offering refuge to several hundred persons. It was at this river that a train load of people almost met disaster by the breaking of a bridge. As the train slowed up, in order to cross the bridge, Miss Olsen boarded it, and was one of the 200 who took the ride through miles of flames and burning ties. She eventually reached Duluth, her hair burned from her head, and her clothing hanging in shreds. She subsequently took refuge at the home of Governor Nelson, at Alexandria, Minn.

"She was taken sick with brain fever, and remained in bed for nearly a month. On getting well, she started out again in search of her brother. Her misfortune had left her without funds, and she was obliged to borrow from Mr. Nelson. She gradually drifted East, and subsequently got upon the stage. She studied hard, and is now recognized as one of the leading soubrettes of the country."

THE JOBBERS UNION.

Trophy Presented for Competition at the Bonspiel.

The jobbers' union at its meeting yesterday afternoon decided to give a $100 trophy to be competed for at the bonspiel in January, and to be known as the Duluth Jobbers' union trophy.

E. Lomasney, representing the Duluth Telephone company, and Capt. Harris, representing the Lake Superior Telephone company, were present and both argued to convince the jobbers that his particular company was the proper one for the union to support. No action was taken other than to refer the matter to the legislative committee.

An invitation to send ten delegates to the immigration convention at St. Paul on Nov. 19 was received and also to the trans-Mississippi congress at Omaha were received. Secretary Buchanan will represent the union at both meetings.

The Ironton Structural Steel company has complained that it is being discriminated against in the matter of transfer charges. The committee on railways and terminals was instructed to take vigorous action to correct this.

The chamber of commerce submitted four communications. One was a request for cooperation in securing better train service on the Omaha for Duluth and Superior. Referred to the transportation committee. The other asked the appointment of a committee to cooperate in obtaining a change in the dock lines above Grassy Point. Referred to the committee on industries and improvements.

An inquiry was received from the debating society of the University of Wisconsin as to whether the railroads centering in Duluth practice discrimination; also whether the union would prefer a system of legalized pooling of railroads under the direction of the interstate commerce commission. Both questions were referred to the transportation committee. This committee will also make a report on the pooling act before congress.

William Orr informed the union that the South Shore road now has freight connections with the Northwestern road at Saxon, Wis

T. B. Hawkes was appointed to act for the union on the committee from commercial bodies which is to consider municipal affairs.

The matter of redistricting the custom districts and securing a tea inspector for this port were referred to the committee on legislation.

A MARVELOUS RECOVERY.

Isack Lewis, the Findlander who received a bullet wound all the way through his head, is reported to be rapidly mending, says the Eveleth Star. He was sitting up this week and will doubtless be around in a few days. This is certainly a most extraordinary case—to find a man living after a bullet from a 38-calibre revolver passes from the under jaw up through the various muscles, tissues and bones and lodged about two inches above the eyes in the main tissue of the brain, fracturing the skull at that point. A few hours afterwards an operation was performed, removing the bullet.

BARRETT'S MINE OF RICHES.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—Nine more pieces of stolen property have been identified at police headquarters and the total number of breaks now attributed to William Barrett is thirty-eight. Among the articles identified were several pieces of silverware stolen in 1887 and 1888. The officers are still inclined to believe that there is more property concealed somewhere and are persistently searching for it.

Amherstburg, Ont., Nov. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The David Wallace, consort of the Robert Wallace, stranded in the regular channel abreast of here this morning. Boats are striking on boulders near here which were unknown before this summer. This is the result of the low stage of water.

SHOOTING ON A SCHOONER.

Toledo, O., Nov. 15.—While the schooner Aunt Ruth, of Port Huron, was lying off the Marblehead coast last night, a Norwegian sailor, known by the name of Pete, attacked one of the crew with a revolver. A scuffle ensued, in which the entire crew took part. Pete opened fire upon the crowd, and the first man to fall was the captain, Adam Konna. The next two shots took effect in the leg of Joe Konna, the captain's son. Pete was in turn shot by another son of the captain, but was not seriously injured. He was bound to the mast and the marshal of Sandusky summoned, who took him in charge. The captain and injured members of the crew are at the Marine hospital at Sandusky.

WRECKED FOR HIS OWN BENEFIT.

According to the Marquette Mining Journal Capt. M. Daniel, of the schooner Cris Grover, has rendered himself liable to prosecution by the underwriters on the flour cargo of the steamer Centurion. Nov. 1 Capt. Daniels left Marquette with the Cris Grover on an unauthorized cruise to Isle Royale for the purpose of picking up flour jettisoned from the Centurion. On Nov. 3 he picked up forty 100-pound sacks and on Nov. 5 121 50-pound sacks and one sack of 280 pounds. On Nov. 6 the tug Mariel, Capt. Antoine Paul, steamed alongside the Grover. Capt. Paul represented himself to be an agent of the underwriters and demanded one-half of the flour on board of the schooner. Capt. Daniel refused to comply, because he did not believe the statement of the tugman. He then sailed for Marquette and sold the flour, which brought more than the expenses of the cruise, which are put at $150 for seven days' time. It it not likely that the underwriters will wink at Daniel's action in the matter, and he may look for a call from an authorized representative, with a request to disgorge or stand suit.

LIBELS DISMISSED.

At Detroit, on Tuesday, an interesting matter was decided by Judge Swan. It came up on the report of Commissioner Davison on the libels filed by Robert Maxwell, of Bay City, forwarder for Ira F. Holt's lake shore line of steamers, and the Second National bank of Bay City, against the steamers R. G. Stewart and Metropolis, which, together with the steamer Dove, formed Holt's lake shore line. Maxwell had paid the railroad companies' charges on freight, delivered by them for lake transportation by Holt's line to Alpena and way ports, which was to be collected by Holt's line, as well as Maxwell's wharfage. When the company became insolvent about $800 was due to Maxwell, and he filed a lien on them. The bank also filed an intervening libel for about $4100 for moneys advanced for supplies, fitting out, etc.

Commissioner Davison's report denied the claims, and the report was sustained by Judge Swan on the ground that the claims were not against the vessels, but the company owning them.

THE GOLDEN AGE AND EDWARDS.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 15.—The Golden Age, aground at the lower end of the St. Clair flats canal, was released Wednesday night after lightering a portion of her cargo. The steamer Edwards is aground just outside the St. Clair flats canal. The tug Boynton has gone to her release.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—Hunter, Ashland, pass.; E. P. Weed, Vulcan, Lake Erie, coal; Selwyn Eddy, Buffalo, for grain.

Departed—W. B. Morley, Two Harbors, for ore; Northern King, North Star, Badger State, Codorus, Buffalo, flour; Kearsarge, Lake Erie, ore; Nipigon, Lake Erie, lumber; United Empire, Sarnia, wheat and pass.; John Owen, America, Buffalo, wheat.

MARINE NOTES.

The grain rate to Buffalo dropped to 5¾ cents yesterday, and is weak at that rate today.

Masters of vessels are advised to keep well over to the Sarnia dock before making the turn at the head of the middle ground abreast of Port Huron. The stake at the head of the middle ground has been shifted further up the river.

The tugs Boynton and Thompson succeeded in releasing the steamer Elfinmere and consort from Russell's island, St. Clair river.

Another effort is being made by the tug Merrick to release the schooner Col. Ellsworth from Whitefish Point, Lake Superior.

While rounding to at Port Huron in a fog, yesterday, the steamer Sacramento and her consort, Paisley, came together. The stern of the Sacramento was damaged, while the Paisley lost a cathead and some rail and stanchions forward.

At Bay City the small schooner George Davis collided with a bridge and had her foremast carried away.

The steamer City of Owen Sound has been released from the bottom at the entrance to Georgian bay and will be repaired at Midland. Swelling grain raised the steamer's main deck and her bottom has suffered damage that causes considerable leakage. The schooner J. G. Worts is still ashore, but said to be in good shape.

The steamer America found the schooner Reuben Doud on Lake Erie disabled through the loss of headgear and towed her to anchorage near Bar Point.

Duluth clearances: Castalia, 78,000 bushels wheat; City of Paris, 70,000 bushels wheat; Badger State, 3500 barrels flour; Kirby, 2200 tons ore; Martin, 1450 tons ore; Mohegan, 1500 tons ore; Mingoe, 1600 tons ore, Buffalo; United Empire, 9765 bushels wheat, Sarnia.

SWEDISH MINISTERS.

Rev. Mr. Larson of Duluth Addressed Them.

Minneapolis, Nov. 15.—The Swedish Ministers' State association met this morning in its semi-annual session at the First Swedish Baptist church in this city. The meeting really opened last evening with an address on "The Fatherhood of God" by Rev. A. S. Andell, of the Elm church, Minneapolis, but the first business session did not occur until this morning.

On the program were two papers, one by Rev. M. Larson, of Duluth, on "The Slumbering Powers in Our Church," and the other by Rev. O. P. Peterson, of St. Paul, on "The Divine and the Human in a Spiritual Revival." Both were followed by discussions. This afternoon other papers were read by Rev. Sandell, of this city, and Rev. P. P. Sandstrom, of Wisconsin.

The gathering is well attended, there being present this morning some forty or fifty outside pastors.

HEALY EXPELLED.

Irish Parliamentary Party Turns Timothy Out.

Dublin, (Nov. 15.—Representatives of the Irish parliamentary party, now meeting in Dublin, by a vote of 33 to 22 have adopted a motion to expel Timothy M. Healy and Arthur O'Connor from the governing committee of the party. Hon. John Dillon, M.P., offered a motion to authorize the chairman of the committee of the Irish parliamentary party to communicate with the executive committee of the national federation with a view to carrying out the suggestion of Archbishop John Walsh, of Toronto, favoring the holding of an international convention of representatives of the Irish race throughout the world. Mr. Dillon's motion was carried.

Hon. T. M. Healy in an interview declares that he did not intend to form a third party, and that he did not expect to belong to any other party than the anti-Parnellite party, of which he is still a member. His removal from the inner circles and from the various committees, he added, was merely a snub and it would not make any difference in his conduct.

CAMPOS OUTDONE.

Gomez Bests Him by a Clever Strategy.

Madrid, Nov. 15.—The correspondent of the Imparcial at Havana cables that Antonio Maceo is marching to the west of the island of Cuba to reinforce Roloff and Gomez. The revolt, it is added, has assumed considerable proportions in the province of Santa Clara, and Jose Maceo is said to have penetrated into the province of Puerto Principe at the head of 3000 men.

El Liberal says that the rebellion is costing Spain $150,000 daily.

A sensation has been caused in military circles here by the receipt of a private dispatch from Havana to the effect that Gen. Maximo Gomez by a clever movement in a northern direction has turned the troops of Gen. Campos at Santa Clara, and is now en route for the province of Matanzas with a view to destroy the plantations there. It is not expected that he will capture a big town, but it is believed rather that he will attempt to terrorize the country and destroy crops.

OUT FOR MONEY.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Emil M. P. Burdick, of this city, has been arrested on the charge of bigamy preferred by Miss Marjorie Rhoden, a beautiful young woman from Stockton, Cal. In court Miss Rhoden stated that an acquaintance formed in California was succeeded by a correspondence which led up to her coming to this city to marry him. Burdick deserted her after obtaining her money, and Miss Rhoden found that he had previously married and deserted another woman after living with her one day.

SUICIDE OF A TRAVELING MAN.

Buffalo, Nov. 15.—T. B. Roberts, of Allegheny, Pa., committed suicide in his room at the Tremont house in this city last night by shooting himself through the heart. Roberts was a traveler for a Pittsburg house. He received a letter from his firm yesterday discharging him from its employ. The suicide had three life insurance policies but nothing else of value in his possession.

SUICIDE BRIGGS DIES.

St. Paul, Nov. 15.—John F. Briggs, the bartender who made such a desperate attempt to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a pocket knife early Monday morning, died at the city hospital at 8 o'clock last night, but not of the injuries he inflicted. Shortly after his arrival at the hospital it became evident that Briggs would have a siege of delirium tremens to contend with in addition to his other trouble. He grew rapidly worse until he died.

FOR DURRANT'S NEW TRIAL.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—The attorneys for Theodore Durrant have prepared an affidavit of their client to be read in support of the motion for a new trial on Friday, Nov. 22. Two of the principal points on which a new trial will be asked are the ruling of Judge Murphy as to Juror Brown, who was peremptorily challenged by the prosecution after he had been accepted and sworn and the refusal to grant a change of venue. The newspapers will be attacked in the affidavit for alleged persecution of the prisoner, which the defendant's counsel think led to a prejudice against Durrant.

HOSPITAL SCANDAL.

Iowa Said to Have Been Swindled by Its Officials.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 15.—The state executive council has discovered what promises to develop into one of the biggest scandals ever known in Iowa official circles. Under the laws insane patients who cannot pay for support in state hospitals must be cared for by the counties from which they are sent if they have a residence in the counties. Patients who have no residence are cared for at the state's expense. Investigation has developed the fact that insane patients from Illinois counties adjoining Scott county, in Iowa, have been sent over to Iowa and taken to Iowa asylums as state patients by Scott county officials. The council declares this has been going on for a long time in other border counties as well as in Scott county, officials reaping a rich harvest in fees and mulcting the state. A thorough investigation will be made.

CHICAGO CARRIERS' CASES.

Washington, Nov. 15.—First Assistant Postmaster General Jones today decided the Chicago letter carriers' cases upon the reports of the special agents and the written defenses of the carriers. The cases are disposed of as follows: Sixteen ordered removed from the service; six suspended for thirty days; two suspended for twenty days; three suspended for fifteen days; fourteen suspended for ten days; thirty suspended for five days; thirty-one suspended for two days; four suspended for one day; four reprimanded. These, with the reprimands already administered, make a total of 173 carriers' cases.

New York, Nov. 15.—Lazard Freres will ship $1,250,000 gold by tomorrow's steamer.

W. H. Crossman & Bros. state that they will not forward any gold by tomorrow's steamer. Von Hoffman & Co. will ship $1,000,000 in gold by tomorrow's steamer. Total engagements to date, $2,250,000.

Messrs. Lazard Freres have withdrawn from the sub-treasury for shipment $1,250,000 gold which is to be forwarded by tomorrow's steamer. Sub-treasury officials have been informed by Von Hoffman & Co. that they will not withdraw today the $1,000,000 gold ordered this morning.

MURDERER HANNIGAN'S TRIAL.

New York, Nov. 15.—David Hannigan's trial for the murder of Solomon H. Mann, his sister's seducer, is likely to last well into next week. It has been on trial for three weeks. There will be no session of the court on Monday, the day being given up to the ceremony of the formal transfer of the room from the Municipal Art society, which has had its decoration in charge, to the city. The evidence in the Hannigan case today all bore upon the question of the prisoner's sanity.

WHITE MAY BE LYNCHED.

Winston, N. C., Nov. 15.—A mob visited the home of William Barbee in Cabarrus county Tuesday night for the purpose of lynching an Indian doctor named White who was arrested there. He is charged with having caused the 16-year-old daughter of Barbee, a half witted creature, to submit to him. The girl returned home after the crime had been perpetrated and is now in a precarious condition. Indignation runs high in the neighborhood and the indications are that White may be lynched. White also stands charged with beguiling the wife of Martin Furr, of the same county, causing her to leave her husband.

WOOLEY HAS A GRIEVANCE.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 15.—Rev. J. Z. Tyler, of this city, referring to the attack of John G. Wooley on President Clarke, of the Christian Endeavor, says that Wooley had a personal grievance against Clarke, dating from the New York convention of 1892. He regarded himself as slighted and that is really the root of the whole matter. Tyler accuses Wooley of trying to commit the Christian Endeavor to the Prohibition party.

WHERE IS SCHLATTER?

Officers and the Healer's Victims Still Wondering.

Denver, Nov. 15.—Although it is generally believed the whereabouts of Francis Schlatter, the "healer" is known to his closest friends in this city, the federal authorities have not succeeded in locating him. The case against the men who advertised to sell through the mails handkerchiefs which they claimed had been blessed by Schlatter and would cure all ills, has been continued until Saturday. Meantime the efforts to find Schlatter, who is wanted as a witness, will not be abated. A great crowd of afflicted persons seeking treatment at the hands of "the healer" assembled again this morning at the residence of ex-Alderman Fox, where Schlatter lived from Sept. 1 up to the night of his unannounced departure, and many were sorely disappointed because he did not put in an appearance and resume his labors. It is generally believed that Schlatter is with friends in some quiet retreat not far away and it is not unlikely that he has begun another long fast.

SCHLATTER AT BEATRICE.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 15.—A special to the Star from Beatrice, Neb., says: At 9 o'clock this morning a man came over the Union Pacific, went direct to a hotel and registered as Francis Schlatter, of Denver, in plain handwriting. He asked for the key to the room, went to bed and asked not to be called until 3 o'clock. The clerk on duty at the time says he distinctly represents pictures of Schlatter brought here from Denver.

IT WAS NOT SCHLATTER.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 15.—A special to the Bee from Beatrice states that the man who registered there as Francis Schlatter is not the alleged healer, who disappeared from Denver yesterday. The man at Beatrice is a young man.

ASSAULTED BY A NEGRO.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15.—Yesterday a negro made a murderous assault upon Mrs. L. B. Railey, at her residence, just beyond the city limits. The negro entered the dining room and, seizing her struck her over the head three times with some instrument, making severe wounds. The negro escaped to the woods, but he has been hunted all day by several hundred armed and infuriated citizens. Capt. Woods, the commonweal attorney, has issued a warning to those in pursuit not to resort to violence if the negro was caught.

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY.

Woodsfield, Ohio, Nov. 15.—An attempt was made at an early hour this morning to rob the Monroe county bank at this place by four men. They drilled several holes in the vault, destroying the time lock, but failing to get in. Just before they began operations in the bank, Sheriff Keyser had occasion to go to his stable in the rear of the bank building, and while walking down the alley the four cracksmen pounced upon him, bound him and gagged him and robbed him of $60 and a gold watch. There was a large amount of money in the bank vault.

Harry Smith Came in From Chicago With Detective Benson Today.

Report as to His Manner of Leaving Duluth Was Correct.

He is Sorry He Left But Will Not Say Anything More.

Detective Bob Benson returned this morning from Chicago with Henry Smith, the ex-clerk of Panton & Watson, who is under indictment for grand larceny in the second degree. Smith sat in the chief's office on his arrival and was plied with questions by the detectives. Smith stated to a Herald representative that he had nothing to say for publication except that he is sorry he left town and would not have done so if he had not thought at the time it was best for all parties concerned. "The circumstances of my leaving are described in The Herald of last night," said Smith, after he had read the story published. He will be taken to the county jail this afternoon.

Detective Benson says that he met his man among a crowd coming out of Sam T. Jack's theater, on Madison street, and Smith fairly trembled with surprise. Then he walked up to the detective and shaking hands remarked: "Hello, Bob! I know what this means. I'll go back. I was a d—d fool to leave."

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Two Damage Suits Are on Trial Today.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Morris' court gave the case of Anna A. Evered against H. A. Douglas et al to the jury, and at 9:30 o'clock this morning that body appeared with the intelligence that it had succeeded in coming unanimously to a conclusion which was to the effect that plaintiff should have judgment for $310 against the defendant. A stay of thirty days was granted. This morning Judge Morris took up the case of Julia Mack against the Duluth Street Railway company.

Mrs. Mack is the widowed mother of a 6-year-old boy, whom she alleges was suffered by a conductor to get off a car while it was going at a rapid rate one day last June, with the result that his arm was injured severely. She asks $2500 damages through D. M. DeVore, her attorney.

The conductor's testimony was that the boy got out of the car while he was in the forward end, so he was not to blame for the accident. He seemed to be not greatly damaged, anyway, as he picked himself up and ran off, at the same time applying his thumb to his nose and derisively wriggling his fingers at the conductor. The case was still on trial at noon.

The jury returned a verdict this afternoon for the defendant.

The damage case of Thomas J. Hawkins against the Eastern Minnesota railway, to recover $25,000 for the loss of Hawkins' reason resulting from an accident, was drawing near a close in Judge Moer's room at noon. Cy Wellington was just closing to the jury, and it was expected that the case would go to the intelligent panel of twelve shortly after noon.

The criminal calendar will be taken up Tuesday morning by the county attorney, beginning with the case of Joseph Wessel, who will have to answer a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. His case was continued from last term.

The Elder, Halling and other important cases will come up later.

MOSES COOK ARRESTED.

Authorities at Wabash, Ind., Have Him in Custody.

Two or three days ago a warrant was sworn out against Moses Cook, who failed for such a large amount and with such insignificant assets, charging him with fraudulently disposing of his goods. Cook left town some days ago and was said to have gone to Wabash, Ind., to see a sick brother. Whether the latter part be true or not the former is, for he has been arrested at Wabash on a telegram from the Duluth authorities. An officer left today to bring him back.

This desire is brought about by the fact that the United States government is insisting upon a definite reply to its representations in the case.

His style of speech is decidedly original, exceedingly sarcastic and very clear and his ideas are excellent. He handles everything without gloves, and is interesting in a high degree.

UNDER FALSE PRETENSES.

Fraud in Getting Citizenship Papers Charged.

Milwaukee, Nov. 15.—United States Marshal Pratt received a bench warrant from the United States district attorney of Maryland calling for the arrest of Karl Franz on a charge of obtaining citizenship papers under false representations. The warrant was placed in the hands of detectives who arrested Franz. According to the testimony of the detectives before the commissioner Franz readily told the whole story detailing how he was to vote the Democratic ticket and when apprehended was furnished money and means with which to come to Milwaukee. It does not appear from the papers what false representations were made.

Commissioner Bloodgood considered the evidence sufficient to hold the prisoner and fixed bail in the sum of $1000. If it cannot be furnished Franz will be taken back to Baltimore. It was stated during the examination that there are likely to be scores of arrests in Baltimore for the same crime Franz is charged with.

JOHN DRAKE'S FUNERAL.

Chicago Hotel Man Buried with Masonic Honors.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The body of the late John B. Drake, of this city, was interred this afternoon in Rosehill cemetery. During the forenoon a large number of Chicago's most prominent citizens gathered at the residence in Calumet avenue where services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Barrows, of the First Presbyterian church. These services were followed by the Masonic ritual under the auspices of Apollo commandery, Knights Templar, which also had charge of the ceremonies at the grave.

The floral tributes at the residence were many, coming from friends in many cities. One of the most notable was a broken column of roses and violets, coming from Mr. Drake's employes, representing almost every one.

TO CHICAGO VIA MOTOCYCLE.

New York, Nov. 15.—A horseless wagon was started from Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street at 12:17 p. m. on a drive to Chicago. This is said to be the longest trip ever undertaken by a road vehicle propelled by a motor. The wagon won the second prize in the Paris-Bordeaux contest last spring. It was run by a naptha motor. Tonight it is expected the carriage will reach Poughkeepsie and the riders expect to arrive in Albany some time tomorrow. The carriage is expected to arrive in Chicago in time to take part in the wagon motor contest in that city on Thanksgiving day.

What We Are Doing on Cut Glass!

We have just received our new fall line for Christmas from the well-known factories of the Mount Washington Glass, Walsh Cut Glass Company and many other makes, and owing to the large wholesale business we are doing this fall on these goods, we are able to buy them 25 per cent cheaper than any small retail jeweler in Duluth. Now we propose to take a hand in cutting prices to such an extent that it will cause a very sickly smile to come over the faces of our would be competitors when our customers tell them the prices at which the Parker Company are selling their cut glass.

The Following Are a Few of Our Eye Openers For Saturday Only.

	FORMER PRICE.	REDUCED TO.
Beautiful New Cut Princess Water Bottle	$6.00 each	$2.39
Oil Bottle, same cutting	$4.00 each	$1.75
Finger Bowls, same cutting	$2.00 each	90c
Handled Olives, same cutting	$2.75 each	$1.25
9-inch Salad Bowls, same cutting	$15.00 each	$6.75
Strawberry Cut Tumblers	$7.50	$2.95

Lack of space forbids quoting any more prices but just try us on by having a few samples sent to your residence that you may compare them with similar pieces sent on approval from our would be competitors, and if our prices on the same fine quality of cut glass are not 25 per cent below them, we will gladly donate the cash value of the goods to the Associated Charities of the city. We make this offer and will allow the same to stand for 10 days from this date.

F. A. PARKER CO.

No. 10 East Superior Street.

P. S.—If their cut prices are GENUINE why are they afraid to tell you what they are in the columns of this paper? Because it would show too plainly that they do not fulfill their promise to you.

NO CO-INSURANCE.

Attorney General Childs Says It Is Prohibited.

St. Paul, Nov. 15.—Attorney General Childs this morning rendered Insurance Commissioner Smith an opinion upon the legality of four forms of riders relating to insurance and rents which the insurance men proposed to attach to their policies. The attorney general holds that three of the forms are illegal and that the first rider providing that the company shall be liable to the assured for the actual loss of rent ensuing from a destruction of rented property by fire not exceeding the amount of the insurance is valid.

Provision No. 2, which the insurance men desired to attach was to the effect that the assured must carry insurance in amount not less than 75 per cent of the actual annual rents of the premises, and the third provided that the company should be liable only for the proportion of the loss which the insurance bore to the annual rental of the premises at the time of the fire. The attorney general holds that this provision makes the assured a coinsurer, which is forbidden by the law.

The fourth provision requires the assured to agree to maintain insurance to a certain amount. The law forbids a contract that the assured shall maintain insurance to any extent; that he shall be an insurer to any extent, or that he shall bear any portion of the loss. As the first clause merely provides that the company shall be liable only for the actual loss of rent ensuing from the damage or destruction of the property by fire not exceeding the amount insured, it violates none of the provisions of the law. The others are held invalid.

The chief effect of the decision is that co-insurance in any form does not go under the new law.

NOT CONFIRMED.

London, Nov. 15.—The report that the sultan of Turkey intends to recall Shakir Pasha, the high commissioner for Armenian reforms from Erzeroum and eventually appoint him grand vizier is not yet confirmed by his actual recall, but it is persistently stated that the pasha will shortly be appointed grand vizier.

EMBEZZLER SENTENCED.

Ironton, O., Nov. 15.—Ex-Treasurer Mandville Green Clay, of Lawrence county, was today sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $11,000. He pleaded guilty to embezzling county funds.

ENGINEER WAS CARELESS.

Detroit, Nov. 15.—At the opening of the grand jury investigation into the Journal building explosion today, strong evidence was adduced tending to show gross carelessness on the part of Engineer Thompson, who, it was stated, left his boilers often to be watched by inexperienced persons, and that the steam pressure and height of water were at times badly looked after.

NEW EXPERT PRINTER.

Editor Whitney of the Marshall Messenger Chosen.

St. Paul, Nov. 15.—The state printing commission held a meeting at the capitol this morning and unanimously elected C. C. Whitney, of Marshall, expert printer to succeed George C. Evans, the present incumbent and then adjourned until tomorrow morning when other matters will be taken up. Secretary of State Berg notified Mr. Whitney by telegraph that he had been elected. The change will take place at once, but Mr. Stevens will remain for a time, probably until Dec. 1 to post the new expert printer on the work now in hand.

Mr. Stevens says he has not decided what he will do, but he has two or three propositions under consideration. Mr. Whitney, the new incumbent, is president of the State Editorial association and for many years has been publisher of the Marshall News Mesenger, one of the best country newspapers in the state. He is a fine printer, who has spent his life in the business, and is very popular with the fraternity throughout the state.

MAY RISE

Stock of Anthracite Coal on the Docks is Rather Low.

Coal Dealers Would Not Be Surprised to See Another Raise.

A Variety of Causes Have Combined to Cause the Shortage.

If you have not laid in your stock of coal for the winter, you had better do it right away. There is a shortage in the stock of anthracite coal and it bids fair to continue, so nearly all of the wholesale men say. There is not much more anthracite on the docks today than there was on May 1 last, when the winter season was over, and more than that there is not much time for getting more.

What causes this shortage in the supply, will be asked. Coal men give several reasons. It is not due to any combination. Prices were very low last spring and the stocks on hand at the close of the season were large, owing to the light winter. The coal barons could see no reason for mining coal very rapidly. Then they stopped issuing the regular statements of the amount mined, as they usually do and did not know where they were at. They were working along in the dark when suddenly, about a month or six weeks ago, they woke up and found themselves about 2,000,000 tons short.

They proceeded at once to get to work, but found themselves confronted with other difficulties. The season had been dry and there was no water in the mines, the railroads were crowded with business and could not furnish the cars and boats were not to be had.

In consequence coal took a jump in price. Since the middle of September there has been an advance of $1.50 a ton in the price of anthracite coal. Home coal men say there may be a further advance of 75 cents or $1, although it is of course possible that there may not. The character of the winter has much to do with fixing the price.

There is good reason, however, for expecting an advance. One coal man said this morning: "The contracts now made in the country and city will take about all the coal now on the docks and but little more can be expected in. These contracts only cover 50 or 60 per cent of the total consumption. In the city they only run to about 33 1-3 per cent of the whole." Another one estimated the amount of coal on hand at only two-thirds the amount usually on the docks at this time.

A. C. Jones, of the Northwestern Fuel company, takes a more conservative view of the situation. He thinks the price of coal is about as unreliable to speculate upon as the price of wheat. He admits that there seems to be a shortage now, but says there have been spasmodic shipments out of here which now seem to be falling off. Then again the weather will have much to do in fixing the price.

The general opinion is that there is a substantial shortage and that to be on the safe side one had better lay in a stock. It certainly will not go any lower.

Officer Curran's Case.

The case of Officer Curran, who is under suspension charged with implication in the Panton & Watson robberies will probably be heard by Mayor Lewis tomorrow. "I had been waiting for the return of Detective Benson before I looked into the matter," said the mayor this morning. "If Curran is guilty he will be punished, and the matter will not be allowed to drop. If not, of course he will be reinstated."

She Charges Seduction.

William Bushnell is in a peck of trouble. He is a good looking, well appearing young man from New Duluth, and he was brought back from Menomonee, Wis., by Deputy Sheriff Bates this morning to answer to a charge of seduction, preferred by Laura Kruger, also of New Duluth. There will probably be a quiet wedding at the court house within a day or two.

MR. ILTIS' LICENSE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I learn from last evening's Herald that Charles Iltis, of this place, was refused a plumber's license by the city council, on the ground that he is not a practical plumber. If that is so, I would like to know why plumbers' licenses have been issued to different men in the plumbing business in Duluth that are not practical plumbers, and do not claim to be? When he tendered his money and satisfactory bonds for a plumber's license, the same as required to comply with all rules and regulations of the city of Duluth, I think justice from the city council would grant him the privilege to make an honest living. Mr. Iltis has been in business here for the last six years, doing plumbing, and his work has been satisfactory. His application for a license bears the signature of one of the most "thorough practical" plumbers in this country. Yours very respectfully, Charles Hanson.

His Mother Complains.

Richard Jackson, the 19-year-old son of Mrs. Eliza Jackson, of 390 Lake avenue south, sat in the municipal court this morning with a broad grin on his countenance and listened to the reading of a complaint charging him with an assault on his mother. He thought the whole proceedings were funny. Richard entered a plea of not guilty and his case will be heard by Judge Edson this afternoon. The boy is charged with striking his mother on Nov. 8 in the eye with his fist. Mrs. Jackson appeared to feel worse over the affair than her son.

A Bethel Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Bethel will be held at the First Presbyterian church next Sunday evening. The churches in general of the city will unite in the service. Rev. B. The object of the meeting is simply to give the people an opportunity to know what the Bethel has done during the past year. The congregation will not be asked for any pecuniary aid.

The Newsboys' Dinner.

Preparations are already being made for the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the newsboys at the Bethel. The Sunday school of the Bethel will give the dinner and it will be at 6 o'clock as usual. Rev. Result of Their Fun.

The spectators in the municipal court smiled this morning when four small boys, ranging in age from 9 to 14 years filed into the court room. They were John Wagner, Teddy Summers, Andrew Cregar and Oscar Evans, and they were charged with sneaking into the back yard of M. Shanahan, living at 602 Eighth avenue east, after the shades of night had fallen and upsetting a privy which rolled down a steep declivity and was damaged to the extent of $6. While the complaint was being read there were a good many salty tears in evidence and eight small fists industriously rubbed eight very red eyes. There were a number of parents in the court room, who assisted in entering a plea of not guilty for each of the boys. The case was set for hearing next Monday afternoon. Then the lads after solemnly promising to appear were released on their own recognizance to await trial.

Were Only Bird Dogs.

The case of Charles Campbell, John Campbell and M. Campbell, charged with hunting deer on Nov 5 with dogs, was on hearing this morning in the municipal court. Attorney Edson appeared for the defense and tried to make the court believe that the dogs were bird dogs and the guns were loaded with fine shot. Erick Erickson, who lives in the vicinity of the Cloquet river, near where the deer in question was killed, was the principal witness for the assistant county attorney. The hearing was continued into the afternoon.

Three Drunks on Hand.

Peter Johnson came before Judge Edson in the police court this morning and with smiling countenance assured the judge that he was not drunk yesterday. Afterwards he changed his mind and pleaded guilty only to receive a fine of $10 and costs. Peter is the small-sized Findlander who fastened to Officer McEwen's whiskers yesterday when arrested and hailed the officer as his "papa."

Oscar Henson and Charles Brown had been more or less drunk yesterday, but they had sufficiently recovered this morning to be prepared with voluminous excuses. In consequence Judge Edson let the men go with suspended sentences and both expressed their gratitude before filing out of the court room.

On every Saturday, until further notice, Dr. Schiffman, at No. 400 Woodbridge block, will inaugurate a half price day for amalgam and cement fillings. The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. This will be a great boon to children, teachers and those who have not the time on other days.

DAVID B. HILL COMING.

The announcement was made in the Minneapolis papers that David B. Hill, of New York, is to deliver three lectures in Minnesota, in Minneapolis on Nov. 27, in St. Paul on the 29th, and in Duluth on the 30th. The Lyceum is not engaged for the purpose and it is not known where he will speak.

Although many remedies are pushed into the market by spicy advertisements, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup still takes the lead.

Judge Kelly Prevents the Proposed Great Northern Consolidation.

It Would be Consolidation Which the Charter Does Not Permit.

Even if it Did So, it Would be Amenable to State Laws.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—Judge Kelly today filed his decision in the important case of the state of Minnesota against the Great Northern Railway company, and the state wins. The decision in effect is that the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific may not enter into their traffic arrangement, and Judge Kelly grants the writ of injunction as prayed. While the case swings upon what appears to be a preliminary motion, that for an injunction, the decision virtually determines the whole subject, since it goes thoroughly into the matter, discussing the whole body of the argument for and against the legality and propriety of the proposed arrangement. It is remarkable that Judge Kelly arrived at a conclusion exactly opposed to that of Judge Sanborn, passing upon the very same question in the United States circuit court, where the case was heard on the motion of Pearsall for an injunction against the road. The decision filed today will be read with interest by the lawyers and railroad men in the United States.

The points of the decision are: The proposed traffic arrangement is a consolidation. Under the laws of the state of Minnesota, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads are parallel and competing lines. The traffic arrangement is therefore contrary to the public policy of the state and the general laws of 1874 and 1881. The defendant's charter does not contain either in express terms or by necessary implication the right to make such agreement or consolidation. That if any such power was ever given the charter was subject to amendment by the legislature and the laws referred to.

WILL BE UPHELD.

St. Paul, Nov. 16.—Attorney General Childs said this morning that he could say nothing at present on the decision of Judge Kelly granting the injunction he had asked against the consolidation of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads.

M. D. Grover, general counsel, and Attorney Benton, of the Great Northern, called at the capitol this morning, and Mr. Grover, good-naturedly congratulated Gen. Childs upon his victory.

The general impression among the lawyers at the capitol was that the decision of Judge Kelly will be sustained when the case reaches the United States supreme court, and that the Pearsall case will hardly be disposed of until this reaches that body, if it is appealed, which it probably will be, if the decision is sustained by our own supreme court. One reason given for this belief is that the United States supreme court is slow to overturn a state law, which has been sustained by the courts of the state.

FOREIGNERS URGED TO ATTEND.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 16.—The Exhibitors' association, of the exposition, actuated by the indefinite postponement of diplomatic day, today adopted resolutions urging through Secretary of State Olney the reconsideration of the postponement of their visit.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

Tramps Failed in Robbing an Express Car.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Three desperate men made an attempt last night to rob the Adams Express money car on the train leaving the Pennsylvania railroad station, Jersey City, at 8 o'clock, but fortunately for the express company the men made a mistake and got into car No. 5945 which contained only merchandise.

The men boarded the car in Jersey City and after the train had pulled out of the depot they jpied the door open and secreted themselves in the car. Their presence on the train was not known until the train had reached Morrisville, Pa., a town on the opposite side of the Delaware river from Trenton. Here the men evidently becoming alarmed at being uncomfortably close to Philadelphia put on the air brakes and brought the train to a stand still, jumping from the car as the train hands hurried forward and running across the fields in the opposite direction from Morrisville. On the floor of the express car lay the contents of between twenty and thirty packages. Nothing had been taken, the robbers evidently being in search of money, not merchandise.

The police authorities of Morrisville and Trenton were at once notified. The daring would-be robbers are supposed to be railroad tramps.

THREE VICTIMS.

Detroit Factory Employes Burned to Death.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 16.—Another fire attended with terrible fatalities occurred at 3:30 o'clock this morning when the factory of the Improved Match company at Bellevue avenue and Frederick street was burned and three lives lost. The dead are:

Reuben Davis, night foreman, 24 years old.

John Wagner, night watchman, an elderly man.

Agnes Yettke, 17 years old.

All the employes except the above escaped. Davis and Wagner, assisted by the Yettke girl secured the fire hose and attempted to put out the fire. Before they were aware of their danger flames sprung up all around them and they were unable to escape. After destroying the main building and gutting the smaller one the fire burned itself out. The bodies of Davis and Miss Yettke were recovered burned beyond recognition.

The building machinery and stock destroyed were valued at $60,000, insured for $6000. The Improved Match company is a new concern, not in the trust, which was organized by a number of Detroit citizens.

KITTSON CASE DECISION.

St. Paul, Nov. 16.—By a decision of the supreme court in the appeal of the St. Paul Trust company in the suit brought against it by the Kittson heirs, the decision of the lower court is confirmed that the trust company be charged with 7 per cent interest on trust funds invested in its business. The order is modified, however, in that it is held that the trust company was not guilty of default or neglect, and that it was entitled to compensation for its services.

ST. CLOUD STREET CAR SUIT.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 16.—It has been learned here that no further action will be taken in the St. Cloud street car receivership until the tax title held by the late George Tileston on the property shall have been settled. The case will come up at the December term of the district court, George H. Reynolds representing the local bondholders and H. A. Stevens, of St. Paul, the owners of the balance of the bonds. Until the title to the property shall have been settled the Water, Light and Power company, now in possession of the line, will continue to operate the same.

LIGGETT GIVES WAY TO OWEN.

St. Paul, Nov. 16.—Col. Liggett declined re-election to the presidency of the Farmers' Institute board at a meeting held at the capitol yesterday, and his nomination of Sydney M. Owen was acted upon. Col. Liggett's withdrawal was due to five years service as president. Edward Weaver was chosen secretary of the board. Winter institutes at thirty-five places were decided upon.

MAY BE REPUBLICAN.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 16.—The resignation of A. J. Carroll, representative-elect from the Louisville district, has been received at the executive office. A special election has been ordered for Dec. 7. Should his successor be a Republican the legislature will have a Republican majority on joint ballot.

BUTCHERY

Nearly Six Thousand Armenians Butchered in Three Localities.

Four Thousand Said to Have Been Slain at Guaran.

American Mission Burned at Kharput, and Powers Will Act at Once.

(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Associated Press.)

Constantinople, via Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 16.—It is now known that there are about 800 victims of the Kharput massacre, and that eight of the twelve buildings belonging to the American missionaries there were sacked and burned in spite of the assurances of the porte to the United States ambassador, Alexander W. Terrell. The American missionaries, however, escaped and are now in a place of safety. Mr. Terrell has notified the porte that the United States will hold the Turkish government responsible for the lives of the missionaries. The inhabitants around Kharput are in a state of great distress from hunger.

From Guaran, where the Kurds have been besieging 4000 Armenians, it is reported that all the Armenians have been massacred. In the district of Mardin, where there is a large Christian population of Chaldeans and Syrians, a number of villages have been burned to the ground and the people are destitute and suffering. This outbreak is regarded here as indicating that a systematic campaign has been directed from Yildiz Kiosk against all Christians, and not against the Armenian Christians alone. This puts quite a different and more serious complexion upon the whole matter, and is a feature which will immediately attract the attention of the powers.

At Sivias and elsewhere the Turks have claimed that the Armenians were the aggressors and that the former simply defended themselves when attacked by the latter. The weakness of this plea can be judged from the fact that during the recent massacre at Sivias 600 Armenians were killed and only ten Turks met death during the rioting. The report that four Jesuit priests, under French protection, had been murdered, turns out to be untrue.

No definite action is known to have been taken by the ambassadors of the powers; but it is reported that they will join in a note to the porte, informing the government of the sultan that, in spite of the remonstrances and recommendations of the powers, matters have now reached a state in Asia Minor which it is evident that the sultan's authority is not sufficient to quell, and that it is necessary for them to occupy the empire until order is restored.

The most powerful fleet ever gathered together is being assembled at Salonica bay. It will consist of about thirty British warships, including a dozen battleships of the first class; a dozen or so French ships, including half a dozen battleships; twelve Russian warships, of which four will be battleships; eight Italian warships, of which four at least will be battleships, and several Austrian and German warships. The British fleet includes the flower of the British navy, and is constantly being reinforced.

NEWS IS TOO TRUE.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Secretary Olney has received a cablegram from United States Minister Terrell confirming the Associated Press reports from Constantinople concerning the massacre of 800 persons by the Mussulmans at Harpoot and the destruction of a large amount of American mission property. The scene of this massacre is far inland and beyond the reach of a man-of-war, which would be obliged to pass the Dardanelles and enter the Black sea to approach even the neighboring coast. There is reason to believe that Mr. Terrell, in addition to strongly insisting to the porte upon the protection of the Americans there, has urged them to come to the coast, where they can be more readily assisted by the American men-of-war now off the Syrian coast.

As the reports indicate that the missionaries themselves have escaped the massacre unharmed, it is probable that the amends required by the United States will be confined to a demand for payment on account of the property destroyed.

CRISIS HAS ARRIVED.

Boston, Nov. 16.—The following cablegram was received today by the American board of foreign missions from Rev. H. O. Dwight, of Constantinople, by way of Philippopolis: "Five hundred were killed in Harpoot. Eight of the twelve mission buildings burned. Lives spared. Houses stripped. Turks will regard this as test of intention of the United States to defend missions. No missionaries anywhere killed; villages everywhere desolated; people naked and starving. Instant help. Dwight."

ANOTHER MASSACRE.

Rome, Nov. 16.—A dispatch from Alexandretta, Northern Syria, received here, says that a massacre of Christians has occurred in the vicinity of that town and in the presence of three hundred Turkish soldiers, who did not render any assistance. It is added that the European residents of Alexandretta are in danger.

LONDON

Special Cable Review of the Week Across the Water.

Queen Victoria's Return to Windsor Castle From Balmoral.

Marlborough Wedding and Barnato the Chief Topics of Discussion.

(Copyrighted 1895 by the Associated Press.)

London, Nov. 16.—As if in defiance to the ill-luck which is said to acompany the number 13, Queen Victoria today returned to Windsor castle from Balmoral in a special train consisting of thirteen cars, one of which was a handsome, large saloon car, set apart for the use of her majesty, the other carriages containing the members of her suite, servants baggage, etc. The queen's car is fitted up as a library and dining room. It is richly upholstered with silk and its furniture is embroidered with gold. In honor of the visit of King Carlos of Portugal to the queen at her highland home, her majesty caused a large bonfire to be lighted on top of Crag Owe no nSaturday last, as an honor heretofore reserved for her immediate family. The queen also ordered a torchlight procession of Highlanders, who passed in front of Balmoral castle, and afterwards executed Highland dances in the presence of her majesty and King Carlos.

The prince of Wales passed through London today from a visit to the duke and duchess of Devonshire, at Chatsworth, near Bakewell, Derbyshire, on his way to Sandringham. The party at Chatsworth, which included the earl and countess of Warwick, was conveyed to the races at Derby by a special train every day. Another large Saturday-to-Monday party is being entertained at Sandringham, and this revives the fact that while Hon. George N. Curzon, the under-secretary of the foreign office, was one of the party entertained by the prince and princess of Wales last week at Sandringham, his wife (formerly Miss Mary Leiter, of Washington and Chicago,) was not present, while Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain (Miss Endicott, of Washington,) previous to her marriage) and other ladies were invited. Emperor William of Germany sent a special courier to Sandringham with a birthday gift for the prince of Wales, who was 54 years old on Saturday last. The emperor is also said to have written to the prince of Wales expressing the hope that the duke of York's next son will have the name of Shakespeare bestowed upon him among his other names.

The newspapers here who have greedily published every cabled detail of the Marlborough-Vanderbilt wedding, continue to criticise the Americans for supplying them. Vanity Fair, for instance, says that the Churchill family is much annoyed at the vulgar notices of the marriage, and that the dowager duchess of Marlborough "is not the best pleased that both her son and grandson married Americans." Truth thinks it clear that "the New York arch-millionaire has not got beyond the elementary stage of gold fetishism, when the calf seeks to attract attention by the most lavish display of wealth."

The common council, for the first time on record, at a stormy meeting on Thursday, refused by a large majority to pass the customary vote of thanks to the retiring lord mayor, Sir Joseph Renals. This was mainly on account of the dinner which Sir Joseph gave to Barney Barnato, on the ground that the latter had proved himself to be the "Savior of London" by bolstering up his own Kaffir securities. In short, the whole Renals-Barnato affair is causing a great stir in the city. Barnato who, a few weeks ago, was the most sought after man in London, being pestered to sickness for tips from about one half of the members of the peerage, is now in very bad odor. May Fair remarks that since the slump in Kaffirs, Barnato's "social aspirations" have suffered a severe check. All the smartest men and women here at one time suffering from the South African speculative fever, are now recovering.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50 cent bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

The suit which Kate Marsden began with such a flourish in 1894 against the London Times has just been abandoned. The case brought as its casus belli of the report of the Rev. Mr. Francis, rector of the American church in St. Petersburg, which was published last year. The special charge against Miss Marsden was that she had abandoned her work because of her infatuation for an intrigue with a Russian nobleman. She had previously done good work while with the Red Cross nurses in the Turkish-Russo war, and among the lepers of Siberia, where she traveled 14,000 miles to find a precious herb which is said to have turned out to be a specific for leprosy. On her return to England she wrote a book about her travels, which aroused a storm in Russia, and which, it is claimed, caused the Russian government to attack her, some of the charges made against her being too gross for publication. Miss Marsden, in making the announcement of the abandonment of her suit against the Times, says she intends to resume her work for the lepers. Truth, though, remarked: "This, under the circumstances, is a piece of unwarranted impudence. Nobody in their senses will contribute a penny until she clears her reputation." Miss Marsden, who is about 40 years of age and the daughter of a London lawyer, so interested the public in her work at one time that the princess of Wales was prevailed upon to give her a letter to her sister, the czarina, which paved the way for the nurse's work among the lepers.

The new hotel upon the Thames embankment has at last been named and will be known as "The Cecil." It is stated that this new caravansary, when completed, including the price paid to the marquis of Salisbury for the land, will have cost upwards of £1,550,000.

One of the greatest trials which the American consul in London has to endure is the relief of men who have shipped here from America as cattlemen and are turned adrift at the end of the voyage. Many of these men are engaged in New York and other ports to take care of live-stock and are promised a certain sum and return ticket for their labor. Upon arrival, however, they only receive a few shillings and the return passage is denied them, with the result that they are left penniless on the London streets. There have been numerous instances of this of late, and the consul has been fairly besieged with applications for relief. The consulate has frequently referred the matter to Washington, but it being an issue of personal contract, the government seems powerless to offer any redress.

RUSSIA'S ROYAL DAUGHTER.

Girl Baby Born to the Czar and Czarina.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—An imperial manifesto was issued today announcing the birth of a daughter, subsequently named Olga, at 9 o'clock last night to czar and czarina. It says: "Inasmuch as we regard this accession to the imperial house as a token of the blessings vouchsafed to our house, and empire, we notify the joyful event to all our faithful subjects and join with them in offering fervent prayers to the Almighty that the newly born princess may grow up in happiness and strength."

In spite of sensational reports to the effect that the court physicians had reported to the czar that neither mother or infant could survive the accouchment, the official report states that the royal infant is strong and healthy and the mother is doing well. Last night services consecrating the birth of the child were held according to the service of the orthadox Greek church. The name of Olga has been bestowed upon the babe.

The czarina was the only daughter of grand duke Louis IV of Hess and Princess Alice, second daughter of Queen Victoria, and was born at Darmstadt, Hesse, June 6, 1872. She was married to the czar Nov. 26, 1894.

Dr. Salisbury's Words.

Anyone who has ever met Dr. Salisbury will never forget him. Although over 80, he has as bright a mind and intellect as most younger men. Of course, every one knows him as the inventor of hot water cure and the Salisbury steak, and that he is the authority on digestion and stomachic troubles.

"I studied the subject direct from nature," he said. "In order to know just how much nourishing power there was in various foods, I employed four men whose only duty it was to remain in the house with me and eat such food only as I directed. They thought they had secured the finest kind of a position. I began by taking a diet of beans, and in thirteen days there was not a man who could walk across the room. I myself was nearly prostrated. After recovery, we tried various other vegetables. A person can live eighteen days on oatmeal, and twenty days on cracked wheat."

"What are the most unhealthful things, doctor?" was asked.

"The most unhealthful vegetable in the world is asparagus. No man or woman can exist to exceed seven days on this insidious vegetable. Why it is that people have gotten the idea that it is healthful I cannot understand, unless it is from the peculiar odor it gives to the fluids that pass from the body. Some people believe it is healthful for the kidneys, but there is nothing which I know of that is more injurious. As for beef, it is sustaining and strengthening and invalids should take it as much as possible and avoid such vegetables as they know to be unhealthful.

CAUTION

THE greatly increased price of cream of tartar, the chief ingredient of a pure baking powder, has induced some manufacturers to substitute burnt alum (which costs but 3 cts. a pound), largely or wholly in lieu thereof, making a very low cost but a very unwholesome baking powder; and great efforts are made to foist these inferior powders upon consumers by the inducement of a lower price and by grossly false representations as to their ingredients and comparative value.

Alum baking powders have been declared by the most competent authorities injurious to health. Therefore every precaution must be taken to keep them out of the house. They masquerade under many names, and new brands are continually appearing.

It is safe to avoid all new brands. Baking powders that are sold either wholesale or retail at a lower price than Royal are almost invariably made from alum, and therefore not only inferior in quality, but positively dangerous to health.

Consumers can be more certainly protected from alum baking powders, and make the wholesomeness of their food doubly sure, by rigidly refusing all substitutes for Royal Baking Powder. The Royal is certified by the Government and State chemists free from alum, absolutely pure, and superlative in leavening power.

It is unwise to take chances by the use of other brands.

WELL LAID

The Corner Stone of Itasca County's New Court House Laid.

Ceremony Performed With the Impressiveness of Masonic Ritual.

Large Number of Masons From Duluth Present--- A Fine Banquet.

The special train for Grand Rapids left the Union depot yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and reached the capital of Itasca county at 12:30 p. m. There were two coaches well filled with members of the Masonic fraternity made up from the lodges of Duluth, West Duluth and Cloquet. The train was met at the depot by a large crowd and the visitors were promptly taken care of by the reception committee of Itasca lodge, No. 208, A. F. & A. M., consisting of F. A. King, George F. Myers and G. R. King. After the guests had partaken of dinner at the Pokegama hotel they repaired to the Masonic lodge rooms and made preparations for their march to the court house, where the ceremonies for the laying of the corner stone were to take place. It is needless to say that all the preliminary arrangements were satisfactorily made by Messrs. C. L. Pratt, W. V. Fuller and A. V. Kelly, the committee on arrangements. All the business houses in the town closed for the afternoon, and in consequence everybody, men, women and children, was on hand to witness the ceremonies.

The court house is located in the heart of the town, and when completed will have cost $50,000. It is to be a handsome and commodious 2-story structure, of brownstone and light pressed brick. Promptly at 2 o'clock the officers and members of the Masonic fraternity appeared at the foundation of the new building and after the opening talk by W. B. Patton, grand master, a prayer was offered by W. K. Skemp, grand chaplain, and then followed the impressive and solemn ceremonies characteristic of Masonic work. The following gentlemen were the leading participants in the work: W. B. Patton, grand master; W. G. TenBrook, grand marshal; R. E. Denfeld, deputy grand marshal; W. E. Covey, grand senior warden; Rev. Robert Forbes, grand orator; G. J. Mallory, grand senior deacon, and G. R. Hall, grand junior deacon.

After depositing the usual records, coins and first and last issues of the Grand Rapids newspapers, the stone was lowered, having been pronounced square, level and plumb by the grand master, and in a few minutes the crowd had started for the village hall, and the numerous workmen were engaged again in carrying on their labors to complete what will be the finest court house in Northern Minnesota.

The fact that Dr. Forbes was to be the orator of the day was sufficient to fill the hall to an eager and pleasant crowd, many of whom were unable to secure seats. Dr. Forbes' speech was listened to attentively throughout, and his numerous anecdotes and stories, characteristic of the doctor, were greatly appreciated. The optimistic views and ideas as expressed by him were ably given, and the advice and suggestions set forth, if adopted, will make better men and women of all those in the hall.

A banquet followed at the Pokegama hotel in the evening, and the affair was certainly the grandest and most elaborate of any in the history of Itasca county. Daniel Gunn fairly did himself proud by the sumptuous and plentiful spread set before the hosts and their invited guests. Hon. W. P. Allen was selected as toastmaster, and he filled the position admirably, introducing each speaker in a neat and witty manner. The first toast of the evening, "Masonry and Its Influences on Mankind," was responded to by Rev. Dr. Morbes, and ably set forth the uses of Masonry and its benefits and influences, and illustrated his ideas by anecdotes and stories. "Our Visiting Brethren" was the subject that Mr. Denfeld spoke upon, and as a post-prandial speaker he is said to have no equal in the Masonic organizations of this section. He handled the subject with tact and many pleasantries, which placed the audience in a jolly and merry mood.

W. Potter, who built the first house in Grand Rapids, was called upon to talk about the capital of Itasca county, its past, present and future. Mr. Potter laid no claims to being an orator, but his facts and figures as to the present and future prosperity of the lively city, were lucid and interesting. Owing to the lateness of the hour, A. G. Bernard, who was down for a speech on the new Itasca county court house, and W. G. Ten Brook, who was to speak on "Our Hosts," both abbreviated their speeches, much to the regret of those assembled, as what they did say was well received and created a very favorable impression. Mr. Ten Brook has the happy faculty of saying the right thing at the right time, and his brethren readily appreciated his happy remarks.

After three cheers were given each for Itasca lodge, No. 208, A. F. and A. M., and the commissioners of Itasca county, the banquet in commemoration of the laying of the corner stone of the Itasca county court house came to an end. The special train pulled out of the depot for Duluth about 1 o'clock, and the lively village of Grand Rapids and its many hospitable citizens will no doubt long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to have made up the party.

The following gentlemen, members of the Masonic fraternity, from Duluth and Cloquet, were among the excursionists who participated in the pleasures, joy and fun of this memorable occasion: W. B. Patton, W. G. Ten Brook, R. E. Denfeld, W. E. Covey, Rev. Dr. Forbes, G. J. Mallory, G. R. Hall, H. B. Allen, A. Cox, R. S. Munger, G. E. Long, J. C. Mishler, John Christie, W. H. Cary, J. T. Armstead, Andrew McGillivray, N. F. Russell, Peter Lack, J. H. Winterfield, J. J. Wagenstein, Gilbert Boyd, Richard Stevens, L. M. Laymail, Allan Black, J. A. Miller, Edward Blake, H. W. Van Valkenberg, J. P. Bates, August Peterson and W. H. Skemp.

POKEGAMA POINTS.

The board of commissioners of Itasca county consists of Hank Logan, chairman, and George Lydick and J. F. Ellioren.

R. S. Munger and J. J. Wangenstein took their first lesson in playing seven up while on the train.

Grand Rapids has a $30,000 school building which would be a credit to any city.

Duluth is well represented in the building of the new court house, as Wangenstein & Baillie are the architects, and J. R. King & Co. are the contractors, with Fred Evans superintending the building.

George Lydick, one of the county commissioners, has been an indefatigable worker for Itasca county, and as his size indicates can do an immense amount of work without losing any of his avoirdupois.

W. E. Covey was on hand as usual, and always ready and willing to assist when needed.

East Enders walked home this morning at 5 a. m. and made good progress, except for the snow.

What Dan Gunn does not know about running a hotel no one wants to know.

Ed Long is said to be the best cribbage player in the Northwest, that is, at least, as far as counting is concerned.

If R. E. Denfeld is as earnest and impressive in praising Duluth for the educational convention as he is talking to his brethren, we are assured of the convention.

A. V. Kelly was anywhere and everywhere all at the same time and did great work to further the enjoyment of the visitors.

No one at the banquet spoke of the Grand Rapids ladies. It was a mistake, as they are the loveliest and most divine creatures of Grand Rapids' population or any other city.

W. B. Patton, who was deputized to act as grand master at the laying of the cornerstone, more than carried out the expectations of his friends.

G. G. Hartley witnessed the ceremonies together with Doc Howe, after which they both advanced the prices of their Grand Rapids' lots.

John Eden and Passenger Agent Harper, both of the Great Northern system, were at the banquet and took in the speeches as well as the collation, principally the latter.

DULUTH BUSINESS MEN.

Their Association Decides to Give a Banqnet.

There was a slim attendance at the meeting of the Business Men's association yesterday afternoon. B. C. Church and G. G. Hartley, who were billed to address the association failed to meterialize.

President C. H. Graves called the meeting to order and after the reading of a communication from Postmaster Helinski, announcing that the department had promised the reform in the mail service advocated by the association, the colonel resigned the chair to L. S. Willcutts as he had another meeting to attend.

On Tuesday in response to the agitation of the association the Eastern Minnesotta will put on a mail clerk on the train arriving in Duluth from the Twin Cities at 2 p. m. and on the one departing at 1:40 p. m. In regard to the night service the department will endeavor to comply with the association's request. For the present the mail will be held open until 11 p. m.

G. A. Leland of the committee to consider the advisability of holding an association banquet reported that a first-class meal could be served to a minimum of 100 at a dollar per plate. He wished to know the sentiments of the members present. Then George W. Buck, another of the committee, stated that he had not given the matter much thought. The banquet trembled in the balance.

COL. HARRIS ELOQUENT.

Then up rose Col. A. A. Harris and expatiated on the glories of the coming Duluth. Eloquently he told how he had left bleeding, burning Kansas to come to the metropolis at the head of the lakes. He wanted to see concerted action and to have the members of the association get acquainted with each other. There was no better way to accomplish this than our planked whitefish and pontet canet. In company with Col. Gridley the speaker was going to the trans-Mississippi commercial congress and on their return they want to tell all about it at the banquet.

The applause had scarcely died away before Mr. Buck arose and announced that that speech had converted him. The banquet could not be held too soon. Then on motion the chair appointed Messrs. Leland, Hoilday, Backus, Laybourn, Lyons and Sargent as an executive banquet committee with power to arrange for the festivities and sell tickets.

ALLEGED DISCRIMINATION.

Then E. C. Gridley brought up the matter of the York steel plant which the railroads are accused of discriminating against in the matter of switching charges. Mr. York had stated that he was compelled to pay $5 for switching where other firms are paying $1.50 and 75 cents. A committee composed of Messrs. Silvey, Backus and Gridley was appointed to take active measures in preventing the discrimination.

George H. Crosby of the advertising and statistics committee reported that the committee had ordered 50,000 more of the statistical cards and asked for further time. Col. Harris remarked that he would want at least 10,000 of the cards to take to Omaha.

A general call arose for H. H. Phelps, who was present, to address the meeting. Mr. Phelps blushed and then reviewed the advantages to be derived from the construction of a railroad direct to Duluth from the Red River valley following the lines pointed out in his recent communication on the subject in The Herald. "The road if built would tap the great mining, lumbering and farming country and would mean the making of Duluth the terminus of the Great Northern road," said the speaker. "In two years it alone would add one-third to our population and double our business. The association can accomplish much by agitation.

Then the meeting adjourned until Nov. 28, at 3:30 p. m.

BRADSTREET'S.

New York, Nov. 16.—Bradstreet's says: The condition of general trade continues irregular without material change. There is a distinct falling off in demand for iron and steel with perhaps the heaviest reaction in the quotations in those lines reported in any week since the late boom in those metals reached the climax. Central Western cities continue to feel the unfavorable influence of unseasonably mild weather which is true as well of cities at the Northwest. Then there is the long list of decreases in quotations for merchandise, wheat, corn, oats, pork, lard and coffee among the food products; cotton and print cloths and lumber (at Boston) as well as various grades of iron and steel, copper, lead and weaker quotations for tin plates. The converse includes an unexpected improvement in woolen goods, increased orders for manufactures and higher prices for several qualities of goods.

Total exports of wheat, flour included as wheat, from both coasts of the United States and Montreal this week aggregate 3,325,000 bushels, the largest weekly total this year since the middle of last January. Last week the total was 2,356,000 bushels, in the week one year ago it was 2,909,000 bushels, two years ago it was 2,945,000 bushels, while in the second week of November, 1892, corresponding exports amounted to 3,995,000 bushels. Total exports of Indian corn from both coasts of the United States this week amounted to 1,921,000 bushels, 59 per cent more than last week and the largest weekly total of exports of corn since the third week of April, 1894.

There were 294 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 280 last week, 280 in the week one year ago, 270 in the week two years ago and 205 in the same week of 1892. The increase in the number of failures this week over last is more than accounted for by Southern and New England states.

TRADE HOLDS UP.

Gold and Stock News Has Little Effect.

New York, Nov. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The scare about gold exports had no real significance and although $2,500,000 more will go out today the stock market has been recovering. There was and is a substantial cause of difficulty in the fact that exports of products have been too small to meet the greatly increased exports of merchandise. The collapse of Kaffir speculations abroad has forced many to realize on Americans held and the impression that our government may have to borrow again also operates to our advantage. But there is no local disturbance of money markets. The government monthly crop report has caused, as usual, rather more uncertainty as to its interpretation than previously existed as to crops. The cotton statement lacking account of acreage on which it is believed was of only speculative value, and the mere rumor that Mr. Neill had reduced his estimate of the crop actually weighed more than the official estimate. The bottom fact is that even a smaller crop than anybody expects will with the 3,000,000 bales carried over, assuredly prevent any famine in cotton. Meanwhile the exports decrease 36 per cent in quantity.

Wheat perplexes the oldest inhabitant. There is really little reason to expect a yield larger than last year's, but Western receipts 8,202,854 bushels against 4,026,628 bushels last year, do not mean scarcity of wheat. Probably it is true that the attempt to induce farmers to keep back their wheat in July has ended as usual, in much bigger sales at lower prices in November and prices have now declined so far that, for the first time in many months, Atlantic exports exceed those of a year ago, having been for two weeks, flour included, 3,260,384 bushels, against 3,192,111 bushels last year. The decline in values of nearly 1 cent is not much but it does not mean confidence in renewed advance. Corn is scarcely lower, but without the aid of government all know that the supply will largely exceed all home and foreign demands.

The output of pig iron Nov. 1 was 217,206 tons weekly, about 10 per cent larger than ever before, and a continuance of the same product for six weeks more would make the half year's output 5,340,000 more, about 450,000 tons greater than in any other half year. The startling fact is that demand for products of iron and steel falls off notwithstanding the increase in output of pig and though only a few concerns have closed or reduced work or wages on account of lack of orders, prices are sinking, having declined 2.4 per cent for the week and 6.4 per cent from the highest point. Bessemer pig, billets, gray forge, bar, tank, stop plants, structural angles and wire mills have all sold lower within the past week, though quotations are kept up as far as possible by associations. Minor metals are on the whole lower, though tin has stiffened a little, but lake copper sold at 11½ cents and is weak. Lead is decidedly weak on account of foreign competition and is quoted at $3.77½.

The woolen manufacturer has to meet this year with two difficulties—the remarkable demand for clay worsteds which has encouraged an advance of 10 per cent in price and the heavy imports of woolen goods which have amounted for nine months of the current year to 58,486,402 pounds, against 12,897,080 last year and 30,380,465 in the same months of 1892. But sales of wool continue large for two weeks of November, 12,182,800 pounds against 12,389,600 pounds in 1892, in spite of the fact that part of the works are closed or working only part force. For the past week failures have been 283 in the United States against 270 last year, and forty-nine in Canada against thirty-eight last year.

WEST END

Two Men Jailed Yesterday for Behaving in a Disorderly Manner.

Duncan, Brewer & Co.'s Mill Was Shut Down This Week.

Two Are Still Running and Will Continue as Long as Possible.

Business is picking up in police circles. Two men were arrested for disorderly conduct yesterday. One of them, Oscar Hanson, while under the influence of liquor, went up to the Longfellow school house and made himself an object of disgust through indecent exposure of his person.

The other, John Wall, caused a disturbance at the masquerade ball at Great Eastern hall last evening. Among other things of a disorderly nature which he committed was an assault on Officer Peabody by striking him a blow on the head with his fist, in the hall while the dance was going on. The officer was standing within the door when Wall slipped up behind him and struck a blow which nearly knocked the officer over. The offender was quickly seized and treated to a grand march to the city lockup.

ANOTHER CLOSED DOWN.

The Duncan & Brewer sawmill shut down this week, which leaves only the Mitchell & McClure and Merrill & Ring mills still running. These mills will probably saw as long as the ice in the bay permits. It is estimated that the cut of the six West Duluth mills will amount to 170,000,000 feet for the past season. Much of this lumber will remain on the docks during the winter on account of the light shipments during the latter part of the season.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW INVALID.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Judge Gibbons, of the superior court, today decided that the law passed at the last session of the Illinois legislature, compelling barbers in this state to close their shops on Sunday is unconstitutional.

A woman never really knows the meaning of happiness and content until she is the mother of a healthy, happy child. The health of the child depends on the health of the mother, both before and after birth. Most all of woman's weakness and particularly the weakness that most strongly influences the health of children, comes from some derangement or disease of the distinctly feminine organs. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all troubles of this nature. It should be taken regularly by every woman during the entire period of gestation. It gives strength to all the organs involved, lessens the pains of childbirth and insures the health of both mother and child.

—in telegraphic reports." (N. Y. Sun.) So all washing and cleaning is easy, quick and safe—if you believe what the peddlers and some grocers tell you about certain washing powders. Now, you can test the ease and the quickness very soon. But the safety—that is another thing. You can't prove that to yourself without a long, and perhaps expensive and disastrous, trial.

Better stick to the first-made, never-changing, best-known washing-compound—Pearline. Almost any woman can prove to you the safety of Pearline. And nothing that can be, and has been, thus proved will do all your washing and cleaning so easily, so quickly, and so economically.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 501 JAMES PYLE, New York.

STRONGER

Lower Receipts, Firm Cables and Good Exports Made Wheat Strong.

The Market Ruled Steady With Practically No Change All Day.

Wheat Stocks Here Will Increase About 500,000 Bus This Week.

Wheat opened somewhat stronger this morning on continued changes in crop reports, falling off in receipts at Chicago and at Northwestern points, encouraging reports of exports of wheat and flour and firm cables. The expressed intention of the government to issue $25,000,000 bonds whenever the balance of gold in the treasury should get below $75,000,000 was regarded as a reassuring piece of news. The Chicago receipts numbered 399 cars. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were 1079 cars as compared with 1191 on last Saturday and 914 a year ago. The falling off in the number of cars received at these two cities this week as compared with last is 1192. The Atlantic and Pacific coast clearances for the week of 3,250,000 bus are large in comparison with 2,566,000 bus on the week before. There was virtually no change all day.

May was about as steady as it opened at from 54¾c to 59c, last sales being at 58⅞c. December started at 54⅛c, advanced ⅛c and eased off to 54¼c. There was good business in cash stuff, the shippers and elevators taking 200,000 bus at ¼c and ⅜c over December. The mills bid ½c premium but got no wheat. The close was ⅛c higher all round than yesterday. Wheat stocks here will show an increase of about 500,000 bus this week. Barley sold by sample at 25 to 28c with active trading, and 5000 bus of flax sold at 88½c. Following were the closing prices.

Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 55½c; November, 55½c; December, 55¼c; May, 59¾c. No. 1 northern cash, 54½c; November, 54½c; December, 54¼c; May, 58⅞c. No. 2 northern cash, 50¼@52c. No. 3, 45@50c. Rejected, 37½@46¼c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 55½c; No. 1 northern, 54½c. Rye, 33c. No. 2 oats, 18½c. No. 3 oats, 18c. Flax, 88½c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 562; oats, 5; rye, 2; barley, 24; flax, 53. Receipts—Wheat, 309,890 bus; oats, 4258 bus; rye, 4275 bus; barley, 37,649 bus; flax, 24,178 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 277,711 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Another dull day was experienced in all markets and prices and the situation practically unchanged. Wet weather continues throughout the Western states, which is regarded as favorable to the growing wheat and unfavorable for corn, though elevator companies were again noticed as sellers of near deliveries of corn. The trade in wheat was narrow, a ripple of buying at opening on the large exports for the week being about the only feature. Reports from the Northwest tell of decreasing farmers' deliveries, and in fact the primary receipts confirm this, yet another large increase in the visible supply is looked for Monday. There is a general sentiment in favor of lower prices expressed by many of the leading local traders, but the inactive condition of the market keeps them from backing up their opinion very heavily.

THE WEATHER.

U. S. Agricultural Department. Weather Bureau. Duluth, Minn., Nov. 15.—An area of low barometer has moved southeast to Southern Wisconsin during the past twenty-four hours, attended by light snows or rain in the Red River valley, the Upper Mississippi valley and the upper lake region, the heaviest precipitation being at Duluth, where snow fell to the depth of about 3 inches.

At 8 a. m. today the temperature was highest in Montana and the region north of that state, where it ranged from 40 to 58 degrees. In the remaining districts it ranged from 22 degrees in Manitoba to 48 degrees in the Central Mississippi valley.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 34; maximum yesterday, 34; minimum yesterday, 27; snow, melted, .25 inch.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity until 7 a. m. tomorrow: Occasional snow, followed Sunday by fair; slight changes in temperature; brisk northerly winds backing to westerly.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Officer.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Minnesota: Fair, preceded by rain or snow in east portion today; cooler by Sunday evening; brisk westerly winds. Wisconsin: Rain or snow today; clearing this evening; fair Sunday; slight changes in the temeprature; brisk to high southwest winds.

DULUTH TO OMAHA.

Referring to the recently published interview with Andrew Carnegie, in which he stated that Pittsburg is no longer the best place to manufacture iron and steel in the United States, because points on the lake shore have a decided advantage in cheaper cost of ore, the Chicago Record says: "It is doubtful if a ship canal ever will be built from Pittsburg to Lake Erie, as Mr. Carnegie desires, even if it is espoused by Senator Quay, who wants to commit the Republican party to the policy of constructing it. The interests to be served are not sufficient to warrant the general government in making the expenditure for that purpose. Pennsylvania iron and steel and shipbuilding enterprises will have to move to the lakes, as some have done already, if they want to compete with others under the most favorable conditions. A future of new enterprises is destined to open before very long in the great region watered by the inland seas."

It is inevitable that the great centers of iron and steel manufacturing will be upon the great lakes, and there is no reason why Duluth should not attain a leading position in this respect. In fact, it is a dead certainty that iron and steel industries will locate here in large numbers within a very few years. As Mr. Carnegie points out, it takes two tons of iron ore to make a ton of finished steel. It takes only one ton of coke to make one ton of steel pig iron. Therefore it would appear to be the proper business policy to bring the coke to the ore. Coke can be brought by water cheaply to Duluth, or coking ovens can be established here and coke produced at a low cost. Iron ore for making steel can be laid down at the furnace here from $1.50 to $2 cheaper than it can be bought by the furnacemen of Lake Erie. This would give the Duluth manufacturer such an advantage that he could compete with any iron or steel plant in the country.

M'CLEARY AND HARVEY.

The Minneapolis Tribune of yesterday said: "Some of the free silver organs have represented that Congressman McCleary got the worst of it in his debate with 'Coin' Harvey at Duluth. But the Duluth News Tribune probably tells the truth of the matter when it says that Harvey's evasiveness was only equaled by the cleverness of his juggiery with words and his own writings. McCleary, on the other hand, backed up every assertion he made with unimpeachable proof, and his criticisms of Harvey's books were unanswerable. We knew that McCleary could do up 'Coin,' and are glad to hear that he did it so effectually."

The following editorial paragraph from the West Duluth Sun fully answers the above: "It seems to be the general verdict of the people who were there that Congressman McCleary made an ass of himself, plainly speaking, in his joint debate with Harvey on the silver question. Everybody was thoroughly disgusted with the manner in which he killed time to dodge the question. After witnessing the performance of the pedagogic congressman from Mankato, we are proud of the fact that the congressman from the district is a very different kind of a man."

The fact is that the News Tribune is, like the Minneapolis Tribune, notoriously unfair in its news reports. They are made to harmonize with its own views of public questions, and its report of the Harvey-McCleary debate was biased and prejudiced and was received with disgust by many of its readers who were present at the debate and saw Mr. McCleary fail utterly to maintain his side of the debate. Even the gold standard men of Duluth admit that he was a failure in this debate, and that they were greatly disappointed by the miserable showing which he made by the side of Mr. Harvey, who has never claimed to be an orator. If the Minneapolis Tribune wants to know the truth about the Harvey-McCleary debate, and is not willing to accept The Herald's version of it, let it correspond with some of its gold standard friends in Duluth. The Herald will abide by the judgment of any intelligent and fair-minded gold standard man who heard the debate as to Mr. McCleary's performance.

MUST COME TO DULUTH.

The Omaha Bee in a recent article discussing the approaching meeting of the trans-Mississippi congress at that city, adverts to a subject in which it has always taken a great interest. "An air line from Omaha to Duluth," says the Bee, "would be worth more to Omaha and Nebraska than all the Texan deep harbors and railroads to the gulf." This is very true, and it is also an evident fact that such an air line would be of great value to Duluth, as it would place this city in direct communication with Nebraska, Missouri, Colorado and South Dakota. All these points are nearer to Duluth than they are to Chicago, and if given the proper railroad communication they would enter into close business relations with this city instead of with Chicago.

The Bee has steadily urged for several years the building of an air line to Duluth, and at one time there seemed to be a fair prospect that its efforts would be crowned with success, but the general depression that set in throughout the country prevented the carrying out of any new enterprises of this character. Now that the depression has largely passed away and capital is again seeking profitable investment, the project should be revived and a strong effort made to enlist the attention of capitalists in the excellent prospects of a paying traffic for such a road. The extension of the Duluth railway system to the West is of equal importance with the improvement of the waterways to the East. It is not only of importance to Duluth, because it will increase the traffic through this city, but it is of vast importance to all the tributary to the West and Southwest of Duluth. The only way in which they can obtain the benefit which they should derive from the improvement of the great lakes and the construction of a deep waterway to the sea is by the building of direct railroads to Duluth, where rail and water traffic meet. The Duluth delegates to the congress at Omaha should bring this important matter before that body, and they can be assured that they will receive the hearty suport of the Omaha press.

MERRITT-ROCKEFELLER VERDICT.

For the information of many readers of The Herald, who have not seen the Minneapolis letter on the Merritt-Rockefeller case, which originally appeared in the Chicago Times-Herald, it is republished in full as it was given in the Twin City papers. It is published today in order that all may learn how grossly the facts in the case are being misrepresented. Those who recall the very fair and unbiased report of the trial which The Herald gave last June and compare it with the wonderfully distorted story of the case now told will be able to appreciate the reason why The Herald criticized it so severely a few days ago. They will also be compelled to admit that The Herald was altogether too mild in its denunciation of the purpose of the writer of the article which purported to be written in Minneapolis.

It is a noticeable fact that the author of this letter dwells altogether upon the evidence produced by Mr. Rockefeller's attorneys and neglects entirely to refer to the strong testimony on the other side which fully supported the plaintiff's contentions and convinced the jury that he was justly entitled to a verdict. It was a righteous verdict.

The Herald learns through a letter from the southern part of the state that Congressman McCleary is distributing among the people of the Second district copies of the News Tribune containing its wilfully false and misleading report of the Harvey-McCleary debate, with the idea of showing his people that he came out ahead in the debate. When Mr. McCleary will impose upon his constituents such an unfair and distorted account of the debate, it shows that he is lost to all sense of political decency.

The lowest level in numbers in the tide of immigration was reached during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895. The total number of immigrants was 258,536, a decline of over 27,000, as compared with the preceding year. This was not only due to the depression in business in this country, but also to the same condition of affairs abroad, which prevented many intending immigrants from emigrating from their own country.

A Greek by the name of George Caleas sold a bunch of violets for 5 cents to a policeman in New York city on Sunday, and was promptly arrested for this awful desecration of the Sabbath. Could anything serve as a better illustration of the ridiculous character of the Sunday observance law?

The St. Louis Star-Sayings announces that despite reports to the contrary, the $750 conscience money just received by the internal revenue department is no part of the salary grabbed by a distinguished government official for a vacation of four months

The Herald is a newspaper in the broadest sense of the times. It presents the news without bias or discoloration, reserving all comment for the editorial columns. This is why men of all political parties read it.

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

"Here is a young and courtly Mandarin handing tea to a lady from a salver—two miles off. See how distance seems to set off respect! And here the same lady or another—for likeness is identity on tea-cups—is stepping into a little fairy boat, moored on the other side of this calm garden river, with dainty mincing foot, which in a right angle of incidence (as angles go in our world) must infallibly land her in the midst of a flowery mead—a furlong off on the other side of this same strange stream."

Thus writes Charles Lamb of a set of extraordinary old blue china, from which he and Cousin Bridget took their tea one afternoon long, long ago. Who has not loved dear gentle Elia for that exquisite essay on "Old China?" Who has not felt the charm of his fine humor, and followed him into that great house where he asks first for the china closet, and next for the picture gallery? I can find a tender sympathy for his old friends in blue and white, and feel with him the thrill of memory over "Those lawless, azure-tinted grotesques, that under the notion of men and women float about, uncircumscribed by any element in that world before perspective—a china teacup."

* * *

Those grotesque little Mandarins and mincing ladies were companions of my earliest efforts at the tea table, I have followed the flight of those huge birds across a willow-pattern plate, and sat beneath "the tree with thirty apples on," with that fond and flighty pair of lovers; I have placed pudgy little paws upon the thin carved edge of an old blue plate baked into hardness by India's suns, and from it eaten many a tit-bit dear to my childish heart. I love their soft old blues and whites. I should like nothing better than to let you see the dining-room in my chateau en Espagne, where deep red Californian woods supply strength and solidity and the high lights are furnished by blue and white china treasures, each separate piece of which is an embodiment of a bit of family history. Deep down in the Berkshire Hills, in the shadow of Greylock, nestles a little village. On the main street of that village is an old house which has withstood the "gnawing tooth of Time." Built before the days of the Revolution it still stands a monument of the Past. The walls of the great hall are hung with huge brass warming pans, grim reminders of feather beds and cold, icy cold bedrooms. The old carved table in the hall holds a complete set of flowing-blue India china. The old corner cupboards hold treasures untold to a relic hunter, and a seven-storied dresser with beautifully polished brass handles is crowded with genuine old delft, pewter platters, custard-dishes, "china boats for spoons," and those wonderful "china handled coffee-cups," which created such a stir away back a hundred years ago and more. Ah, how I have coveted those old wares! And how often do I wander back to gaze once more upon them in memory.

* * *

Du Maurier gave forth a witticism to the world some years ago which is classic now. One of his cleverest bits of drawing is of that aesthetic young copule who were making a struggle to live up to their blue and white china teapot. This was not a bit of airy creation, but those strugglers were real people, and the incident a true one. We have in company with all the world laughed at those ridiculous young aesthetes, but I must acknowledge that a touch of sympathy struck an answering note in my own heart, and I am quite positive it did in yours, too, my dear Modern Woman. Will you dare to deny the presence of a fetich in your home? I think I might safely wager that it is some cherished bit of china. Nothing else appeals so strongly to the feminine mind and heart. She may appreciate to the full extent of their beauty, the glass and silver which sparkle upon her board, yet to a true woman the soft radiance and exquisitely etched colors upon some loved bit of porcelain appeals far more strongly to her. Perhaps it is the color or the exquisite glow of the enamelled surface, or again it may be association; be that as it may, the treasures of her china cabinet, and every woman has some sort of one, are more the darlings of her heart than any other of her household Lares. If you wish to be a "faddist," take up the study of potteries and porcelains, set up as a collector, learn to distinguish the different marks, bathe your soul and mind in that exquisite creation of Lafcadio Hearn's "The Tale of the Porcelain God," and from it catch the spirit of the art. I am positive that you will find it immensely diverting; you will be drawn into many a thrilling and exciting chase, after a famous or coveted bit. If you are a true daughter of America, and have known the joys of a hunt through some of the old junk shops in Washington, you will feel the abounding necessity of possessing a piece of presidential china, or a LaFayette platter or a Washington pitcher, or perhaps a Franklin teapot.

* * *

I told you some time ago of the treasures of the Delft room in that House Beautiful that I know. It is genuine old blue and white ware, made in that queer old city in quaint old Holland, two centuries and more ago. None of the cheap modern imitation, but that Delft which made the name of its city famous. To sit in the glow of the birch-log which snaps and sings upon its andirons, and watch the firelight touch those treasures gently is temptingly suggestive of day dreams. Those jugs, vases and patterns once knew a home in that city of misfortune and memory. There William of Orange was assassinated; an awful tragedy of fire, from which that beautiful tradition of the storks arose, devastated its homes; twice in its history did the blowing up of a powder-magazine bring disaster; through the streets of that little town went those Pilgrim fathers who were searching for a home and freedom of thought and conscience. One who writes of the aspect of th e city of Delft of today says: "There is a kind of visible silence there, a peace of line and color, a repose of all things, looking on which the eye grows dreamy and the imagination is lulled." Hushed is the loom of the weaver, stilled is the potter's wheel, dust and ashes are the hands which once placed upon the clay designs which spoke of Persian and Oriental association, so silent and quiet is the little city that its inhabitants seem to sleep in a profound slumber now; but the sound of the trumpet and the clash of war thrilled the hearts of its people once. There is the tomb of that wonderful William, the man without a kingdom or an army, but who was more than conqueror for his loved country. There, too, lies Grotius, and many heroes of that Dutch struggle for independence, and gazing on the treasures of the potter's art with eyes which are dreamy with memories, one sees many a vision of a splendid past.

* * *

There is a proverb in Holland that servants are a cross sent from God. To us they are the Destroyer. She who would keep her china, and her lips from speaking the guile of anger, should never entrust to another the care of her treasures. If one can sweep a room so as to make the action fine, much more can she ennoble the art of dishwashing, and it is an art. It is not necessary to carry your bits of egg shell porcelain, or those companions of your leisure hours, your teacups to the kitchen sink to give them a bath. Keep your own little dishpan, and your dainty mop, and your fine linen towels, and your cake of Ivory soap separate and distinct from those plebian articles which the Destroyer uses, and take care of your treasures with loving thought and tender hands. You will find them growing dear to you from association and in the care bestowed, you will feel well repaid.

I told you last week of embroidered covers for books. I am tempted to add a supplement by telling you of the latest London craze. Utilize it for Christmas, my dear Modern Woman. A gallant bibliophile has set the fashion. It is to have one's favorite book covered with the silk or brocade of his sweetheart's favorite gown. I am credibly informed that he who started this form of devotion from the feminine has already collected quite a library. Is one supposed to have quantities of favorite books, or quantities of favorite sweethearts, or is this sacrifice of gowns for book covers merely the desire for worship on the part of one woman? History does not inform me, so that I am forced to conclude, that the patentee of the fashion is a gay and gallant butterfly who levies war upon treasured gowns as a passport to his favor. Fancy him dancing devotion all one evening before a beautiful ball gown, imagine the tender thrill with which he informs its owner of that loved volume which lies in need of a cover, imagine all the sweet nothings to be whispered in her ear, a desire seizes him to possess a piece of that exquisite brocade, and then picture the poor little flattered fool going home and snipping out a breadth of that beautiful brocade to make with daintiest stitches "a cover for his book!" You would not be guilty of any such ridiculous sentiment, I am sure, my dear Modern Woman; to you a handsome gown is a poem in itself, and not to be treated with disrespect. Scraps saved from old gowns serve the purpose quite as well, and the bibliophile with the craze for book covers will appreciate them fully as much, and perhaps, value them more highly than those which the little fool presents with a flattered flutter.

"A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and thou."

I know of one woman with whom the wilderness would be paradise if she were sitting reading to me, and I should quote Omar to her, because first of all she is a lover of books. Books fill in the measure of all of the dull days of her life, and though she is fond of pretty gowns and chiffons and loves all dainty accessories of dress, I know of an occasion when she sacrificed a wished-for gown in order to secure a first edition of a book for which her soul longed. For her I have a deep and tender sympathy. She was not in need of that book, but clothes were as dross in comparison to that treasure of the bookmaker's art, and its contents so satisfying to her that she told me she lived on it for days in an ecstasy of possession. Perhaps we all, whether book lovers or not, have some dear "ragged veterans" such as Charles Lamb cherished. Life is so incomplete without those companions that I cannot fancy any joy in living without books which minister to one in some way. Some of my old friends are companions of childhood days, and with all of them I mark the growth of years and the progress of mind. Books never bore, unless we let them; they give a cheery welcome, or their sympathetic "silent utterances" charm or soothe or inspire just as we wish them, certain that they can give us just what we ask of them. Only those who have true and tried friends upon their book shelves know what it is to love them, to hold them tenderly in the hand, to seek for a familiar passage, with that little thrill of joy which rewards one when it is found. There is an old volume in a library that I know in which is pasted in the front of it the name of the owner of the book who possessed it before its present holder. Underneath the name are these verses:

"If thou art borrowed by a friend,
Right welcome shall he be
To read, to study, not to lend,
But to return to me.

"Not that imparted knowledge doth
Diminish learning's store,
But books, I find, if often lent,
Return to me no more."

"Read slowly, pause frequently, think seriously, keep clean, return duly, with the corners of the leaves not turned down."

The first owner of that book was a Quaker who lived in Pennsylvania ninety years ago. Think how tenderly he cherished his book-friends when he could become the author of the lines above, which are calculated to inspire awe rather than pleasure, should one be bold enough to hazard a request for the loan of a book.

Old china, old books and—old clothes. I happened on this the other day and I became reminiscent at once. You will remember the delicious chapter on old clothes in "Sartor Resartus." "What still dignity dwells in a suit of old clothes! How meekly it bears its honors! No haughty looks, no scornful gestures; silent and serene it fronts the world, neither demanding worship nor afraid to miss it." Ah, yes, so might Carlyle moralize over "old clo;" but the feminine eye sees no dignity, no beauty and no sentiment in "cast offs"—unless it be the gown "which I wore when he proposed," then it acquires a tender halo; but only then, and the woman of today must be stiffly, freshly, crisply gowned, or she is relegated to the ranks of the dowdy very quickly. One must look as if one had been starched if one is up to date, and one's petticoats probably have known the stiffener which Beau Brummell recommended to those inquiring minds who sought the secret of his neckcloth. Your gowns six or seven yards around, and in extremes more, if you would be of fashion's mold; and your sleeves—well, allow them to reflect your mental attitude. If you are filled with the joy of living, if the wine of life runs quickly in your veins and happiness sits enthroned upon your brow, then your sleeves may stand out as if wired; stiff and uncompromising in look, they denote a calm satisfaction with self, and a dignity which refuses to lower its standard of high excellence. Should they have a pensive droop, he who runs may read; and should they fall flat and plain—ah! then, know that she who carries those sleeves has abandoned hope! Old china, old silver, old books—but old clothes? No. Unless they are those rich stiff brocades of 100 years or more ago, or the silks and satins of the coquette who was a contemporary of the treasures which adorn the polished dresser, or the blue and white china from which she sipped her tea.

Verily this is the kingdom of children; this age is the era of the child. I saw a little picture from the street car the other day, and I have reverenced ever since an element in that rough laborer who gave a little child some moments of supreme happiness. Between the two car lines on Superior street workmen were engaged in repairing the pavement. One stood in a deep and muddy hole working with a pickax; just above his head, enthroned on a pile of wooden pavement blocks, sat a little maiden about 3 years old. She had on a bright blue frock, a gray home-made and much-washed little coat, a little white hood, and bright scarlet stockings were on her chubby fat legs. She was sheltered and warm, and chattering away briskly, she looked so supremely proud and happy as she leaned over the deep dark hole to coquette in feminine fashion with the muddy fellow down in its depths. The world passed over her head, cars ran back and forth, and her bright face and dancing eyes looked up at them passing with a delight which was uncontrollable. So small a thing it takes to please a child!

Would you know of two new books which yet are old, and have their place among the old things of which I have talked to you this evening over the tea cups? One of them is "Snow Bird and the Water Tiger, and Other American Indian Tales," the other one is "The White Wampum"—a book of verse. Both of these books are very highly spoken of by critics, especially the book of "Tales," by Miss Compton. These tales are founded on folk lore which the authoress has secured from the best of sources, and to us who live on the borders of his land and who watch the passing of the Indian, they bear a special significance. The Indian is so much a part of our own history that the knowledge and preservation of his traditions and legends is almost obligatory. However we may regard him in his present state of semi-civilization, no matter how we may shudder over atrocities committed by his race, he is yet the most ancient and picturesque of all of our records, and worthy of preservation in history. These tales are exquisitely told and are intensely fascinating. The reviewers say they rival the "Jungle Book" in power of creation. "White Cloud's Visit to the Sun Prince" is one of the most imaginative of all the tales. They are exquisitely illustrated by Greenough. "The White Wampum" is a book of verse by Miss Pauline Johnson, whose proudest claim is that Indian blood courses in her veins; the critics are sometimes sharp with her, but perhaps that "Spirit of Poesy" who "touched her lips with the chrism of song" has fled from her as she did from Aldrich, which he fittingly laments in the "Flight of the Goddess." If I mistake not, Miss Johnson has been straying in the primrose paths of fashion. Boston opened its arms to her, and she has read her verses, while her songs and character sketches have been the rage in the drawing rooms of the Back Bay. Her songs, alas! are the swan song of her doomed people; her verses a romantic tribute to the copper-colored race. Agate.

CANNOT BE DETRIMENTAL.

Elk River Star-News: We notice that some people are terribly afraid that the holding of a winter carnival at St. Paul will injure the state by advertising the fact that our climate does not grow bananas in mid winter. We see no sense in trying to deceive people regarding our climate. It is well known that we have cold weather in winter, but it is a cold that is full of life-giving ozone, and the fact that it can be enjoyed cannot be detrimental to the interests of the state. People who come to Minnesota to make their homes ought to come with their eyes open to the actual condition of things, and not be deceived into thinking they are coming to a climate that does not exist.

THE ONLY WAY LEFT.

Detroit News: Having been injudicious enough to permit John Rockefeller's personal character to become the subject of discussion within the walls of the university in the first instance, there is now no way but for the university to answer Mr. Lloyd and declare frankly that the university cannot justify Mr. Rockefeller's illegal acts. There is nothing lost by honest and courageous action. Professor Laughlin can well afford to reply to Mr. Lloyd's letter and say frankly that he stands corrected with reference to the one point proved. After that, he had best keep quiet about Mr. Rockefeller and all his dollars that do not get into the university endowment.

VERY WEARISOME.

The Mesaba Range: The iteration and reiteration by certain newspapers of the statement that Rockefeller saved the city of Duluth, averted a panic and kept the Mesaba from starvation by investing here at the time he did is becoming very wearisome. Rockefeller received more than $10 for every dollar he invested in the Mesaba and is in a fair way to double that.

ALL GOLDBUGS DEFEATED.

Luverne News (Dem.): As the News has predicted for the past six months, not one single gold standard Democrat was elected Tuesday last to state office in all the United States. Republicans carried every northern state on a reduced vote. The attempt to elect a Democratic ticket on an un-Democratic platform has proved a total failure.

ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

The third annual ball of the Court Duluth, No. 724, independent Order of Foresters, at the Spalding last evening, was a great success, and the order will undoubtedly realize a handsome sum. But the financial feature of the affair was forgotten for the time being, and everyone was thinking only of the pleasure and enjoyment. About 300 were present, and the ball room presented a gay scene. The floor was as smooth as the most fastidious dancer could ask, and Hoare's orchestra never played better music. Manager Frisbee did himself proud, and the committee on arrangements speaks in the highest terms of praise of the treatment received from the Spalding.

The Mozart society has commenced active rehearsals for its first concert, which will be given to its associate members the last week of December. The "Song of the Bell" is the work chosen, and is a cantata of most romantic and pleasing character. In the solos it is intended to bring out some new and remarkable talent, some that has not been known to the general public. The active membership, which now includes nearly all well-known singers in Duluth, is steadily increasing, and will soon reach high-water mark at 100 voices.

The Wawanesa Dancing club admitted eight new members at a meeting on Monday evening, which brings the membership up to the limit, forty. The recital will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

The concert tour of Miss Rebecca McKenzie and her company seems to be an unqualified success in all respects, judging from the press notices which appear in each place where the company stops. Miss McKenzie's company has now been on the road a number of weeks, and nothing but the most unstinted praise has greeted their every appearance so far. Those in Duluth who are acquainted with the charming vocal qualities possessed by Miss McKenzie and who know the abilities of the other members of the company are at no loss to understand this.

Not only are the receptions warm and appreciative, but the crowds are large and of the kind which bring joy to the business manager as well as to the artists. Following are a few of the notices which have appeared regarding Miss McKenzie's voice:

The Winnipeg Tribune says: "Miss McKenzie possesses a really beautiful soprano voice of probably twenty full singing tones, with hardly a break in the whole gamut, each tone being well produced and in perfect intonation; added to which is an exquisitely sympathetic quality, a long, rolling tremolo—very different to the 'wobble' so prevalent among a certain class of singers, very grateful to the ears of connoisseurs when heard in the simple songs heard last night."

A Crookston paper says: "Miss Rebecca McKenzie and her small company captivated their Crookston audience last night, and if a return date is arranged a much larger attendance is assured. Miss Mcenzie possesses a voice remarkable in its range and sweetness."

Another paper says: "All were amply repaid in hearing Miss McKenzie sing. From her first aria until the close the audience waited longingly for her appearance, being held spell-bound by her full and sweet voice of magnificent range and clearness."

Still another newspaper critic said that "Miss McKenzie has a voice of much strength and richness and it was a great pleasure to hear her sing."

And many more which space will not admit.

BEST KNOWN OF AMERICA'S WRITERS.

M. Quad, the Detroit Free Press Man, Made Well by Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Charles B. Lewis is more familiarly known to the thousands whose life he has cheered as M. Quad. It must be more than a score of years since the country was laughing over the sayings of his honor and Bijah, chronicled by Mr. Lewis to the Detroit Free Press. From that time until now M. Quad has delighted the public with unnumbered quaint sketches of character, overflowing with a humor that appealed to readers all the more strongly because they recognized the fidelity to life under the fun.

Among Mr. Lewis' recent creations the Bowsers, Brother Gardiner, Mrs. Gallup's Tribulations, Possum Sketches, and the Arizona Kicker are destined to long life. Mr. Lewis' admorers will be surprised to learn that, like Walter Scott, Mark Twain and other highly gifted authors, he has produced work of rare quality while tormented by pain.

Mr. Lewis suffered intensely from rheumatism. "It made my days and nights miserable," he says, "and, of course, the agony was greater in bad weather. At the same time my nerves were weak, and I was in worse shape than I hope ever to be again. Yes, I took advice by the yard and medicine by the quart with no success. I was broken in spirit and bent almost double in the body, when somebody suggested Paine's celery compound for the nervousness. That remedy made short work of the nervousness and of the rheumatism, too. A few doses made me feel much better, and today I am well; a happy change that I attribute to the use of Paine's celery compound. It gives me sincere pleasure to bear witness on the merits of the compound. I know at least a dozen authors and journalists who have found it a remedy for the same complaints."

Rheumatism attacks the body when it is tired out, and when its functions begin to act sluggishly. Disordered nerves, faulty digestion, and a slow, incomplete nutrition of the body invite rheumatism, just as they do neuralgia and nervous debility. There is no surer starting point for rheumatism than a "rundown," nerveless condition.

Paine's celery compound increases the appetite by giving a healthy tone to the stomach; it makes sure that the entire nervous system gets completely nourished. It regulates the bowels and the kidneys and encourages them to get rid of harmful and poisonous matter that the sluggish system has allowed to lodge in the blood, thus causing rheumatism and kindred disorders.

You cannot cure rheumatism by outward applications. The disease is due to internal disorders and must be constitutionally attacked and got rid of. Paine's celery compound has done for thousands of other people exactly what it did for Mr. Lewis. They were sufferers as he was, and the compound has made them well.

The warmest praises of Paine's celery compound are from men and women of high character and keen intelligence. They know they are doing a work of humanity and mercy in commending to all persons out of health this certain and speedy means of getting strong and well.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Junior Class Will Give a Thanksgiving Party.

On Monday morning, the high school students had the pleasure of listening to a very interesting address by Mr. Welles, professor of mediaeval history at the State university.

The junior class held a meeting on Monday afternoon at which it was decided to give a party on the Friday following Thanksgiving. Committees were also appointed and made all necessary arrangements.

The board of editors for the "Zenith of '96" has been appointed and held its first meeting Thursday at which the plan of work was decided upon. The following compose the staff: Editor-in-chief, Trumbul Kelley; business manager, Ralph Davis; associate editors, Anna Burnham, Mary Cullyford, Julia Johnson, Richard Close, Betty M. Brearley, A. Gertrude Longstreet, Rena B. Smith, N. Josephine Carey. They will make a strong effort to have this year's publication excel last year's, a task which competent judges have said will be difficult.

On Thursday afternoon the Banjo club held its regular rehearsal and on Friday afternoon the regular practice of the Musical society was held.

On the same day the regular meeting of the Adelphic society took place. The program was on "Electricity" and was as follows:

Vocal solo..... Miss Louise Hall
Critics' report..... Gertrude Wiggins
Oration—"Edison"..... Cecil Martin
Recitation..... Miss Pittman
Essay—"Future Applications of Electricity"..... Mary Merritt.
Piano solo..... Amy Bale
A talk on electricity .... Mr. T. W. Hugo
Reading..... Alberta Stevens
Debate—Resolved That the Electric Motor Will Take the Place of the Steam Engine"..... Affirmative, Robert Gudmundson; negative, Stanley Penpraise.
Recitation..... Miss Pittman

The program was very interesting as well as instructive. The recitations by Miss Pittman, an elocutionist from St. Paul, were very much appreciated, judging from the hearty rounds of applause which she received, and Mr. Hugo's talk was very instructive.

NORWAY AS A REPUBLIC.

At the usual Saturday dinner of the Twentieth Century club on Oct. 26 Dr. Niels L. J. Gron gave an explanation of Norwegian politics which will be new to most people of this country, says the Boston correspondent in the New York Evening Post. He is a Dane, has studied in the United States, and has recently returned from a visit to Norway, in which he traversed the country from end to end. He said that there was a marked growth of sentiment in favor of a republic, and predicted that before many years Norway would be independent of Sweden and be a republic. The center of conservatism in the country in in Christiania, yet at the last election the liberals carried it.

At their national celebration on May 17 last there was a procession of 20,000 school children in Christiania carrying the Norwegian flag. The desire for a democratic form of government exists throughout the country, and he found it particularly strong among the peasants of the north. It is the influence of the United States, he said, which has wrought the change in sentiment on the part of the Norwegian people. Many thousand Norwegians in this country are constantly sending letters home, and they are epistles of democratic doctrine. Nearly every leading family in the country has some connection in this country, and the entire people is permeated with a desire for an independent republic.

The liberal party does not yet wish to show its full aim. But the effort to secure separate consuls in foreign countries is made in order that Norway may stand before the world as separate from Sweden, having her own representatives at foreign courts. If these could be secured, then there would be a demand for foreign ministers. The people of Norway, being under their own parliament, separate from Sweden, make their own appropriations, and they are now spending money for an army in a way they have not hitherto done. The speaker said that there was no doubt that there would be war between Norway and Sweden in consequence of this ambition to become an independent republic.

The Distinguished Nebraska Free Silver Congressman Discusses Elections.

He Attributes the Democratic Party's Defeat to the Money Question.

Congressman Towne, He Thinks, Will be a Conspicuous Figure in Congress.

Congressman W. J. Bryan, the silver-tongued orator from Nebraska, who will speak on the silver question tonight at the Lyceum, arrived in the city this morning on the 6:30 train and breakfasted at the Spalding before proceeding to the residence of Charles O. Baldwin, whose guest he will be during his stay in Duluth. At the office of Allen & Baldwin, the congressman was met by Hon. Charles A. Towne, T. T. Hudson and a number of the prominent Duluth silver advocates.

"The indications are that the recent elections have helped the silver cause as far as the Democratic party is concerned," said Congressman Bryan, this morning, in an interview. "The elections have demonstrated that no Democratic candidate can hope to carry the Eastern states. So long as the Eastern Democrats could point to New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, and threaten that they would desert the party in case the party advocated a free silver platform they were able to exert an influence on those who place party success above principle. But now it is evident that no Democratic candidate, whether he be a free silver or a gold man, can hope to carry an Eastern state, and the Democrats of the Western states will cease to be intimidated by the use of threats. Senators Morgan and Pugh, of Alabama, following the recent election in that state, have gone to work with the purpose of carrying Alabama for silver. Speaker Crisp has opened his senatorial campaign in Georgia with a speech favoring silver at 16 to 1, and Senator Harris, of Tennessee, announces that silver is the only hope for the Democratic party. All these things indicate that the silver sentiment of the Democratic party will be even more active than it has ever been.

MONEY QUESTION CAUSED IT.

"I think that the Democratic defeat is due to the division in the party on the money question, and that the division can not be healed. The Democratic party has lost gold standard men, who feared the silver Democrats, and it has lost silver Democrats, who feared the influence of the gold men. The gold men have gone to the Republicans when they have not staid at home, while the silver men have either staid at home or gone to the Populist party.

"Regarding the Populists. There are two kinds; those who believe in what is known as fiat or paper money issued by the government and not redeemable in coin, and those who believe in bimetallism. The believers in fiat are opposed to making the free coinage of silver the paramount issue of the day, and those who believe in bimetallism are in favor of carrying on the fight on the question of silver at 16 to 1. The indications are that the Populist party will be strong enough to make that question the most important in the next Populist platform.

"You ask me why the Republican party has been able to preserve harmony? The answer is plain. The reason, in my judgment, is that they have not been in a position of responsibility. The Democrats have had control of the house, the senate and the executive departments of the government, and have had little to do except find fault. It is true that a large majority of the Republicans joined in securing the repeal of the Sherman law, and the leading Republicans of the East have supported the president's financial policy, but public attention has not been directed to them as it has been to the Democratic party. There are a number of Republicans in the senate and house who are in favor of silver, a greater number in this congress than in the last, and I think there will be a notable growth in the silver sentiment among the Republicans as soon as Speaker Reed takes control of the house."

WILL BE CONSPICUOUS.

"I have been very much gratified by the fight which Congressman Towne is making. I expect him to be a conspicuous figure in the next congress, because he not only has ability and courage, but he comes from an agricultural state, and the objection cannot be raised to him which is raised against Teller and other representatives of the mining states. Unless I miss my guess, Congressman Towne will be the best known Republican member of congress within a year. The common people in the Republican party are interested in free coinage, and they are looking for somebody to voice their sentiments. I believe Mr. Towne is the man who can do it.

"I have seen by the papers that Secretary Carlisle may be appointed to the vacant supreme bench, and that there is a possibility that ex-Secretary Fairchild will be his successor. It will make little difference. Whoever is appointed will undoubtedly carry out Cleveland's financial policy. The only chance for the success of the Democratic party is the nomination of a silver man for president."

Verdict Against the Eastern Minnesota In Favor of Thomas J. Hawkins.

The Largest Personal Injury Award Made in This Court of Late.

A County Road Foreman Sues to Collect His Delinquent Bills.

The jury in the case of Thomas J. Hawkins against the Eastern Minnesota Railway company took the case into its hands yesterday afternoon and retired to the jury room. At 12 o'clock last night a verdict was found which upon being opened in court this morning proved to be for $10,100 for the plaintiff, the largest personal injury verdict given in this court for a long time. A stay of forty days was granted the defendant, the Eastern Minnesota railway.

Hawkins was a brakeman employed by the road, and while tinkering under a disabled car the train started up. One of his arms was caught in a chain and crushed. The injury did not appear to be very serious, and Hawkins recovered within a reasonable time. Later, however, he began to develop symptoms of insanity, and he is at present confined in an asylum. He had made a settlement for $100 with the company, but it was claimed that he was insane when he made it. Judge Moer instructed the jury in the case they found for the plaintiff to deduct $100 for this settlement, so the jury found a verdict for $10,000 and tacked on the odd $100 to be deducted on account of the amount already received.

Allen & Baldwin conducted the case for Mrs. Lydia Hawkins, who sued as the guardian of her demented husband.

Judge Morris directed the jury to find for the defendant in the case of Julia Mack against the street railway company yesterday afternoon.

The case of Gust Lundquist against the Duluth Street Railway company was taken up shortly before adjournment yesterday by Judge Morris, and it will be taken up again Monday morning. Lundquist was working for the company on some Superior street repairs when he was struck by a car and injured. He asks $10,250 damages.

The following call of cases, which includes all the jury cases, has been made for next week:

Monday—82, 85, 92, 93, 97, 98.

Tuesday—99, 105, 110, 111, 112, 117, criminal cases.

Wednesday—129, 130, 133, 136, 140, 142.

Thursday—144, 145, 149, 151, 152, 104.

SUES THE COUNTY.

A County Road Foreman Who Wants His Money.

The people's appeals from the allowance of certain bills by the county commissioners is leading to a little litigation. This morning Nicholas Anderson, foreman on the Rice Lake road, filed two suits against the commissioners and the county to recover his claims for August and September, both of which have been tied up by appeals. In his complaint he says that he has boarded his men for $2.50 per week and deducted the amounts from their wages, turning in his bill therefor to the county. It was allowed by the commissioners, but tied up by appeals later.

The amount of the bill for August was $287.73, and of that he assigned $33 to H. T. Dinham, through M. J. Durkan & Co., and $158.77 to Richard Dinham. These amounts, he claims, he will be obliged to pay unless he can get his money out of the county. His September bill is $259.80, of which $119.54 has been assigned to R. Dinham and various amounts to others, including $2.50 to "John Doe alias ——," J. H. Norton is his attorney.

Cora Alice Aspinwall, aged 23, has begun divorce proceedings against John Judson Aspinwall, aged 29. They were married in Oswego, N. Y., in April, 1892, and she alleges that he deserted her in May, 1894. She states that she intends to become a professional musician, and as such it will be necessary for her to appear in public frequently. The name of a married woman, she claims, would tend to injure her in a social and business way, therefore she asks for an absolute divorce and permission to resume her maiden name of Cora Alice Dorwin. Phelps, Towne & Harris are her attorneys.

Sarah Keating McMillan wants a divorce from William McMillan on the ground of cruelty. She is 22, he is 32, and they were married in Superior in August, 1892. McMillan is an employe of the Duluth Street Railway company. Stanford & Arbury are plaintiff's attorneys.

Hattie Isabel Pease, aged 28, wants a divorce from Gilbert H. Pease, aged 34, on the ground of desertion dating from April, 1890. They were married in Minneapolis in 1886. She also wants the custody of three children. William N. Edson is her attorney.

WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

Panton & Watson Deny an Evening Paper's Rumors.

Panton & Watson are very justly provoked and annoyed at the article published in an evening paper last evening, intimating that the firm is suspicious of all its employes. John Panton said this morning:

"There was no foundation whatever for the rumors which were published, and there have been no further developments. We entertain no suspicions against any of our other employes, and the Commonwealth ought to retract that article in justice to the employes of the store. The representative of the paper came in here and I told him there was positively no truth whatever in the rumors which he informed me were afloat, and that nothing further had developed. In spite of this he went ahead and published them. As to the amount which has been stolen, so far as we know and believe it is not more than $50, and the prediction that it may reach $1000 is entirely without foundation."

SAM P. JONES.

Famous Evangelist-Orator Will Lecture Here Next Friday.

Sam P. Jones, the most unconventional, eccentric and original of lecturers, will speak in the Star lecture course at the Methodist church next Friday evening, Nov. 22. The title of his lecture will be "Manhood and Money," and while the lecture is a new one here, one is always safe in prophesying that it will contain much that is new, much that is bright and witty and a lot that is true. His figures of speech may be uncouth, but they are diamonds in the rough, and to change the figure, they are likewise darts that strike home every time.

His lectures are always characteristic of the man, and the man is a host in himself. There is not another one like him in all this land, and he occupies a niche peculiar to himself and created by and for himself. In going to hear him one must be prepared to be instructed, to be amused, and, if one is sensitive, to be shocked by the startling and unconventional candor of his remarks. The Galveston Daily News, commenting upon his reception in this lecture, says: "The reception given to the lecture of Sam Jones at Harmony hall last night was enthusiastic and demonstrative in the extreme. The house was crowded, and the audience fairly punctuated his address with loud and prolonged cheers."

Richard Was Fined.

In the municipal court yesterday afternoon Richard Jackson, the 19-year old youth who struck his mother, Mrs. Eliza Jackson, of 390 Lake avenue south, in the eye, was fined $10 and costs. Thomas Benton, charged with keeping his saloon at 519 West Michigan street open after hours, pleaded not guilty and his case was set for hearing next Wednesday.

Charles Ellis, the West Duluth plumber who was refused a license by the council and proceeded to make water connections without one, was in Judge Boyle's court for violating the ordinance. He pleaded not guilty and was released under $10 bonds to appear for trial Monday morning.

On every Saturday, until further notice, Dr. Schiffman, at No. 400 Woodbridge block, will inaugurate a half price day for amalgam and cement fillings. The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. This will be a great boon to children, teachers and those who have not the time on other days.

Bethel Annual Meeting.

At the First Presbyterian church tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, the First Baptist, Pilgrim Congregational, First Christian, First M. E., Unitarian, First Presbyterian and other churches will combine their congregations in the interest of the Bethel, which lies near the hearts of all Duluthians. The principal addresses will be delivered by Dr. Salter and Mr. Frankland, of the Seamen's Fund society. Some of the pastors will speak briefly. The musical features will be a special attraction, being a combination of the choirs of Pilgrim Congregational and First Presbyterian churches. The following is the program:

Organ prelude—Overture, "Mendelssohn" ..... Mrs. L. A. Marvin

Anthem—"Good Shepherd" ..... Bain

Misses Caldwell and Calverly, Messrs. Maynard and Stevenson.

Organ offertory by Arthur G. Drake.

Anthem by Pilgrim Congregational choir .....

Anthem—"Sing Allelulia Forth" ..Boch

By the combined choirs.

Organ postlude by Mrs. Marvin.....

Arrangements will be made to seat everybody who may come.

We want a Furnished House at once.

Little & Nolte, 30-31 Exchange Bldg.

The Special Term.

The special term of district court, presided over by Judges Moer and Morris, contained a large number of cases this morning, but little of importance to the public. Judge Morris decided to grant Ralph N. Wood's petition for the appointment of a receiver for the Elroy Produce company, but up to noon he had not yet decided whom to appoint.

Harry Smith, Panton & Watson's defaulting shoe clerk, was arraigned this morning and given until Monday to plead.

THE POULTRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Arrangements for the organization of the poultrymen at the head of the lakes are about completed and the officers of the association will soon be announced. G. H. Thompson, of the Glen Avon poultry yards, has taken an active interest in this organization and it will prove of much benefit to poultry fanciers.

THE MUSICAL PROGRAM.

The choir at the First Presbyterian church consisting of Mrs. L. A. Marvin, organist; Miss Caldwell, soprano; Miss Calverly, alto; F. W. Maynard, tenor and F. M. Stephenson, bass, will sing the following numbers tomorrow morning:

Andante..... Merkel

"Praise the Lord"..... Verdi

Offertorium with alto solo..... Jensen

Andante..... Whiting

Overture..... Weber

AN IMPORTANT OFFICE.

To properly fill its office and functions it is important that the blood be pure. When it is in such a condition the body is almost certain to be healthy. A complaint at this time is catarrh in some of its various froms. A slight cold develops the disease in the head. Dropplugs of corruption passing into the lungs bring on consumption. The only way to cure this disease is to purify the blood. The most obstinate cases of catarrh yield to the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla as if by magic, simply because it reaches the seat of the disease, and by purifying and vitalizing the blood, removes the cause. Not only does Hood's Sarsaparilla do this, but it gives renewed vigor to the whole system, making it possible for good health to reign supreme.

Bonspeil Will be the Greatest in the History of the Association.

St. Paul People Fail to Get it Away From Duluth.

Duluth Polo Club Claims and Will Hold the Championship.

The annual bonspiel of the Northwestern association, numbered the fourth, which takes place in Duluth during the week beginning Jan. 13, promises beyond the peradventure of a doubt, to speak oratorically, to be the greatest ever yet held in the Northwest.

Assurances have been received from all over the section included in the association that each club will turn out a large representation, and promises have also been made that rinks would be sent from towns never before represented at the association's gatherings. The committees having the work in charge are working hard as becomes good citizens and good curlers, and their reports are exceedingly sanguine and hopeful. Not only that, but outsiders are becoming interested, and the association itself is doing all it can to insure a good attendance.

A cheerful bit of news was received during the week from the jobbers' union, to the effect that that body had appropriated $100 for the purpose of buying a trophy for the curlers to play for, and that event will be made one of the most important of the bonspiel. The trophy is to be known as the "Duluth Jobbers' Union Trophy." There already is a "St. Paul Jobbers' union Trophy."

* * *

During the week the whispers that St. Paul would endeavor to capture the bonspiel and add it to the carnival it is to hold during the winter came to a head and resulted in a voluminous correspondence and little else, for the idea that Duluth could give up the bonspiel after going so far was too absurd to create much of a stir. At a meeting held Thursday evening it was decided to do nothing further than to reiterate Duluth's invitation to her bonspiel with the greatest good nature.

Indeed, nothing but good humor prevailed during the whole proceeding. St. Paul did not demand the bonspiel. She merely insinuated gently that perhaps Duluth might be magnanimous enough to give it up in view of the fact that St. Paul was to hold a bonspiel of her own anyway, and that might draw people away from Duluth.

* * *

But the Northwestern Curling association and the St. Paul Curling club had nothing whatever to do with this good natured but absurdly nervy request, and Secretary Myron stated that any demand to make a change must come from Duluth.

* * *

About twenty-five football enthusiasts left yesterday on the St. Paul & Duluth trains for St. Paul, where they expected to witness a tremendous game of football today between the Universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

* * *

A special telegram from West Superior to the Minneapolis Journal has raised a roar from the local polo players, and no wonder. It must evidently have been dictated by absolute ignorance of the facts and an indifference to the truth that is shockingly self-evident. The dispatch is clipped bodily from a Superior daily, and it is as follows:

"There are two polo clubs in this city, the Badgers and the Superior Polo club. The Badger club consists mostly of East End boys, and it was organized three years ago. Last season the Badgers in a series of games captured the championship of the West from the Duluth club, which took the championship from the Henrietta club, of St. Paul, early last winter. St. Paul, Duluth and Minneapolis will no doubt make a great effort to get the championship from Superior this season."

These statements are wholly and gratuitously false, and it is not likely that the Badger club is prepared to back them up. The Badgers existed but one season, that of 1893-94, and they never even met the Duluth club. The best team that Superior affords is the Superior Polo club, and while that is a very good club indeed for a town like Superior, its desire for the championship has never been a serious menace to the laurels of the Duluth club. This is evidenced by the fact that out of fourteen games which the Duluth club has played with the Superior club the latter has beaten in one lone, solitary game, which will hardly entitle them to the championship.

* * *

The Duluth club fairly won the championship of the Northwest from the Henriettas, of St. Paul, two years ago, and it has held it ever since. Not only that, but it will hold it again this winter, and will be open to games which shall demonstrate its title thereto. There have been some changes in the club, but they will not weaken it in any degree, at least.

* * *

Another candidate for the championship appeared in this city last winter in the shape of a club of boys from 16 to 20 years of age, who put up a surprisingly stiff game of polo, and much is expected of them this winter.

Capt. F. B. Taylor, of the Duluth Polo club, has written a communication to the Journal stating the facts in regard to the Western polo championship.

NEW MINE TO BE OPENED.

Property Near McKinley to Become a Shipper.

The village of McKinley will now take a new lease of life, says the Mesaba Range. A mine is to be opened there at once, and between 75,000 and 100,000 tons of ore will be shipped therefrom during 1896. Capt. Harry Roberts, who recently secured an option on the Pettit & Robinson lands in section 5-55-16, has disposed of the same to a firm of furnacemen in Youngstown, Ohio. The lands are described as the sw¼ of nw¼ and w½ of sw¼ of section 8, and were originally a part of the McKinley mine. As previously mentioned, the McKinleys had already shown up a quarter million tons of ore on these lands and Capt. Roberts but recently started a crew of explorers at work for the purpose of further development.

Capt. E. J. Gilbert, the well known mining man for several years superintendent of the Pioneer mine at Ely, will have charge of the new work. Mr. Gilbert was in town yesterday. He says that preparations for mining are to be commenced at once. It is the intention to ship about 75,000 tons of ore from the property next year and steady work through the winter will be necessary in order to put the mine in shape. It is not yet determined which railroad will handle the ore, but about a mile of trackbuilding will be necessary in either case. This will also necessitate considerable work in that locality during the winter months.

The Drake & Stratton company have placed one of their steam shovels on the bench in the east cut of the Biwabik and the other three are working in the thoroughcut. The ore has been reached at several points in this cut and in other places only about five feet of surface remains. The dump is growing every day and is already a veritable mountain. The good weather of the past week has been very favorable for stripping and the company has been able to make up for some of the time lost because of the bad weather of last week.

A special correspondent to the Engineering and Mining Journal says: The Minnesota Iron company is optioning all the property it can get its hands on, and will this week or next secure the Lucky Boy, south of Ely, and close beside the Anderson. There is supposed to be a valuable deposit of ore in this property.

The Ely Miner says that work on the new No. 4 shaft of the Chandler will be resumed next Monday morning. Shipments from the mine ceased today, 600,000 tons having gone forward for the season. The stockpiles have been cleaned up with the exception of about 2500 tons of the Long Lake grade. This is a remarkable output for a mine which is stocked from only two shafts. The coming season three shafts will stock. Hoisting has begun from the seventh level of No. 3 shaft. This is seventy-five feet below from where hoisting has been in progress in the past and 400 feet below the surface. Old No. 4 shaft has been sunk twenty feet deeper and drifting begun. Men are being hired daily and by the beginning of the year a considerable force will be employed. The management states there is no scarcity of men and that large numbers are daily arriving from other ranges looking for work.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some reading that will prove interesting to young mothers. How to guard against the disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by all druggists.

RECEIPTS

Will the Receipts of Wheat Show a Falling Off Soon?

Reports Indicate Fifty Per Cent of the Crop is Marketed.

There is Not Very Much Kicking Over Lack of Cars.

Replies to 800 inquiries sent all over the Northwestern wheat country by a Duluth commission firm as to questions now agitating the trade form, when grouped into classes, an interesting and very important source of information. The inquiries were sent ou Nov. 1 to 800 well known shippers throughout the Northwest, whose opinions were the best to be obtained. Up to this time about 500 replies have been received from as many different points. The replies received cover all of North Dakota, the northern part of South Dakota and the western part of Minnesota. As a whole the replies indicate a yield in the three states of 163,050,000 bushels. This is obtained by scaling the government acreage of 1894 by 10 per cent and applying the average yield as computed from these replies. The inquiries made were as follows: 1, what is the estimated average yield in your vicinity; 2, What percentage of the crop has been thrashed; 3, what proportion of the crop has been marketed; 4, are farmers satisfied with elevators, grades and prices.

As to the average yield, there is hardly a reply that estimates it at less than twenty bushels per acre. The exceptions are mostly in the southern part of North Dakota, where hail was most noticeably destructive. The average runs considerably over twenty bushels in some localities, and the average of these replies for North Dakota is 21.8 per cent. Reckoning the acreage sown to wheat as 10 per cent smaller than last year or about 2,750,000 the total yield for that state would be 59,950,000, or say 60,000,000 bushels. More latitude has to be allowed in computing the figures for South Dakota and Minnesota, owing to the more scattering returns, but arriving at conclusions in the same manner, Minnesota's yield would be 70,000,000 to 72,000,000 bushels, and South Dakota's 29,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels, or a total of 160,000,000 to 162,000,000 bushels.

There is very little discrepency in the replies as to the proportion of the crop that has been threshed. Over one half the replies state that from 10 to 15 per cent remains to put through the separator.

The replies as to the proportion of the crop that has already been marketed also show a striking coincidence, those from the same district agreeing with remarkable exactness. Outside of those districts visited by hail, there are only three reports of practically the entire yield having been marketed. Several letters put the amount in farmers' hands as fully 90 per cent of the whole. Averaging up all the replies, it is estimated that 55 per cent of the yield is still in farmers' hands, though the proportion is presumably larger in South Dakota and Minnesota, owing to the earlier maturing of the crop. A safe average of the whole would be that nearly if not quite 50 per cent is still in farmers' hands.

The unanimity as to interrogatory No. 4 is practically dissatisfaction, most of the replies being an emphatic "no." Five per cent left the question unanswered, and about an equal number left it unanswered or conceded that all the country houses profess to have their No. 1 hard and contract grade bins full and can receive only low grades of wheat. One reply to the fourth question was, "not on your life." Another correspondent said, "not in a thousand years." One man said, "neither grades, weights, prices or dockage." Another was more generous with "Hobson's choice," and still another retorted, "between the devil and the deep sea." There were not as many complaints about scarcity of cars as might have been expected.

Scrofula lurks in the blood of nearly everyone, but Hood's Sarsaparilla drives it from the system and makes pure blood. 12

THE FRENCH PRESS.

Paris, Immorality, Zola and Exalting of Vice.

The amount distributed in the form of subsidies by the Panama canal among the French press, that of Paris taking the lion's share, has commonly been estimated, in the absence of precise information, at 25,000,000 francs, says the National Review. The sums paid to individual newspapers have been published and range from 50,000 to 300,000 francs, more or less, the amount given often depending rather on the avidity and tenacity of the claimant than on the influence of the organ he represented. When the Panama scandal was undergoing investigation by a parliamentary committee a well known editor, being asked if he had received money from the company, replied that he had, and added, haughtily:

"I have the right to sell my publicity, have I not?" Nowhere outside France would a newspaper editor so lightly assume the right to sell his opinions under the name of publicity, especially when a national enterprise was involved for the support of which patriotism should have been a sufficient motive.

The relations of the press to Panama have never been fully elucidated, judges and witnesses at the trial tacitly agreeing to leave this phase of the case in obscurity, and the newspapers having their own reasons for keeping silence. If Charles de Lesseps had desired he might have made some piquant revelations. In any event, the press by its indiscriminate praise of the project evoked an enthusiasm that led to its first illusory successes, and must be regarded as the chief cause of the final catastrophe.

The newspapers that are simply established to make a living are naturally not scrupulous regarding the means. The puffs of individuals and merchandise in the news columns of a newspaper are the most excusable form of this sort of "publicity." The sale of an editor's opinions to a natural enterprise, or of his silence in regard to an establishment whose only aim is the impoverishment and demoralization of the public, is of extremely doubtful morality. The same may be said of another form of exploitation, not of individuals, but of an idea—that of immorality—which has long furnished abundant material to the humorist and the writer of romance. It is only necessary to mention one novelist, Zola, who labored industriously in this field, till the desire to become an academician caused him to turn his attention to cleaner subjects and even to themes that had an odor of sanctity. The humorous weeklies that have for many years found it impossible to live without rendering virtue contemptible and exalting vice directly or indirectly have of late years sunk still lower and are now filled with indecent engravings that would not be tolerated elsewhere, either by press, public or judicial authority.

THE IDEAL PANACEA.

James L. Francis, alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an ideal panacea for coughs, colds and lung complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physician's prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial, or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this ideal cough remedy now. Trial bottles free at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

HER PLAN

How a Determined Woman Brought Her Penurious Husband to Time.

Made a Bargain With Him to Take the Servant's Place.

He Held Out For Three Weeks, But Then Gave In.

There has been a little domestic drama recently enacted on the hillside with the culmination of which there are a good many sympathizers right here in Duluth. Of course, the gentler sex scored a triumph.

Mr. Blank came down stairs to breakfast one morning about six weeks ago and scowled at his wife from over his Herald. "I received that coal bill yesterday," he snarled. "What in the world can you do with all that coal? Either the cook is stealing it for her friends or you are being cheated by the coal dealer. It's a doggone shame the way money goes in this house. You are always wanting money for dresses or coal or something."

"Yes, and I never get it without pleading for an hour or two," replied his usually submissive helpmeet, whose eyes were sparkling with determination. "If I was a common hired girl I'd have money enough to at least clothe myself decently without having to beg for it. You refuse to give me an allowance to spend as I please and now I have decided on a plan. It has come down to one of two things. Either I go home to mother and you hire a servant or I will stay and do the servant's work myself and draw a servant's wages for it. Which do you choose? If I stay, of course, it will avoid a good deal of talk among the neighbors."

Mr. Blank was non-plussed and his pipe dropped from his listless fingers and smashed on the floor. "What's that?" he stammered.

His wife was determined and repeated her proposition. Finally the head of the household consented and a bargain was struck. Mrs. Blank was to do the housework receiving in exchange therefor five large round dollars every Saturday night and the relations between the two were to be merely that of master and servant.

"I'll bring her to her senses," chuckled Mr. Blank to himself as he wended his way to the office after breakfast. When he returned that night instead of finding his wife at the door to greet him according to her time-honored custom, she was ensconced behind the stove in the kitchen paring apples.

"What time do you want supper," she asked as he entered.

"Oh, the usual time," he remarked blithely as he sauntered off to the parlor to figure out a scheme of revenge.

In the interim before supper he amused himself by smoking some particularly strong cigars in the parlor because he knew his wife abhorred the scent.

The long wished for plan failed to materialize, but the supper did, and the meal was eaten in silence. Once or twice Mr. Blank made a remark, but his utterances were received in silence. After the meal was finished, Mr. Blank sat around the house for a while watching his helpmeet wash the dishes, but finally the solitude grew so oppressive that he took his hat and found refuge and consolation at a neighboring saloon.

The next day the same performance was enacted, and Blank began to grow heartily tired of his contract. He tried to find some fault with the manner in which the housework was done, but there was none to find. All his orders were promptly obeyed without question, and everything about the house was kept in appleple order. Once or twice when friends came in for an evening, Mrs. Blank relaxed sufficiently to exchange her calico dress for one she had been accustomed to wear and assisted in entertaining her husband's guests. Her own particular friends, however, ceased to call, evidently according to some arrangement.

On Friday night, which had been chosen as Mrs. Blank's "night off," she never failed to attire herself sumptuously, and start on a visiting tour, but she always returned before the clock struck 10, and no fault was to be found on that score. On Saturday nights she would approach the head of the house and receive a nice crisp $5 bill and retire apparently satisfied. In short, Mrs. Blank proved herself to be a model housekeeper, and yet Mr. Blank was not satisfied. He began to grow lonesome, and spent more time at the club than formerly.

Finally he could stand the ordeal no longer, and at last, after the agreement had been in force three weeks, he came home one afternoon earlier than was his wont. Mrs. Blank sat on the porch sewing when her husband approached and kept her eyes on her work.

"Maria," he faltered, "I surrender. It is a wife I want and not a servant."

Mrs. Blank failed to enthuse, and coldly asked "what do you propose. Am I to have a regular sum to spend without having any questions asked?"

The "yes" came readily enough, and after Mrs. Blank had finished a long cry on her husband's shoulder, he plucked up courage to enquire:

"Who suggested that abominable scheme?"

"It was dear mother," came the reply, and Mr. Blank gritted his teeth. However, he has stuck to his bargain, and peace once more reigns in the dwelling on the hillside.

This is the story of an actual occurrence in Duluth, and it would never have leaked out if Mrs. Blank had not told her dearest friend in confidence, so that the whole town knew of it. Of course the actors in the drama were not named Blank, but it would cause another irruption if the real names were published, and the moral is just as plain and the story as good.

CHANGES IN LINCOLN PARK.

Changes in the southwest entrance to Lincoln park will be made at once. The driveway will be done away with, as it is considered dangerous to pedestrains, and in its place there will be a wide cemented and paved walk, with a handsome drinking fountain in the center, says the Chicago Herald. This fountain has been presented to the park by Mrs. Martha A. Kellogg and others. Stone abutments will extend from the fountain to the sidewalk, one on each side, for seventy-five feet. These will be convenient resting places. The new walk will continue in nearly the same direction that the roadway does, toward Grant monument. Other walks will cross under the drive by means of wide culverts. The walk that now runs parallel to North Clark street will be done away with, as it is located too near the street. Additional trees, flower beds and flowering shrubbery will be set out.

A baby elephant will be secured that children may enjoy rides upon its back. Several hundred of the fancy electric light posts used at the World's fair will be put up in the park.

The Chicago Turngemeinde presented to the board plans for an open air gymnasium, which will be put up free of cost to the park just north of the base ball grounds. The equipment will include a running track. Instructors from the Turngemeinde will give instructions free.

WHY DO WE DO IT?

Perhaps some sage can tell me, for, indeed, I'd like to know,
The secret of the titles that I hear wherever I go.
There's Brown, who studied medicine, attaining some renown,
Whose wife I hear referred to now as "Mrs. Dr. Brown."
What reason for the custom can the wise ones give to me?
Why not as well refer to her as "Mrs. Brown, M. D.?"

Because O'Shea is on the bench why should we always say,
In speaking of his charming wife: "There's Mrs. Judge O'Shea?"
Is she a judge by marriage? Was she wedded to the court?
There should be some good reason why the title she should sport.
If one should wed a justice, pray advise me, would she be Entitled to be known by all as "Mrs. Jones, J. P.?"
If not, what reason can we give for speaking as we do
Of "Mrs. Major Cannonball" or "Mrs. Bishop Pew?"
Do titles go to families for use of ev'ry one?
And if they do, why aren't they used by daughter and by son?
Why not a "Miss Lieutenant Sharpe?" Why not a junior, too?
At least let's be consistent in the things we try to do.

MEMOIRS

The Second Volume of Gen. Sherman's Book Is More Interesting.

How He Was Tricked Out of Presidential Nomination Twice.

Acquits Garfield of Any Act of Treachery---Charges Against Alger.

The second volume of Senator Sherman's autobiography has been received by The Herald from the publishers, the Werner company, of Chicago. In this volume are given his recollections of events in which he played a part from 1877 to the present year. It begins with the introduction of the Bland bill and the enactment of the Bland-Allison silver law, and several chapters are devoted to that measure and the condition of the treasury, including the resumption of specie payments and the refunding of the national debt. Then he gradually leads up to the Republican convention in 1880 when he was a candidate for the presidential nomination, but was defeated and Gen. Garfield nominated. This portion of the book naturally attracts great attention, because the story had been circulated that in it there was an attack on Gen. Garfield's good faith towards Senator Sherman. There is nothing whatever in the text to warrant such a statement.

Gen. Grant and Mr. Blaine were candidates. "The idea was," says Senator Sherman, "that in the certain contest between Grant and Blaine I might be nominated in case either of them should fail to receive a majority of the votes cast in the convention." He then alludes to the charges that were made against him. One was that in some way or other he was under the influence of the Catholic church, and was giving Catholics an undue share of appointments. He made a reply, stating: "I was born, bred, educated and ingrained as a Protestant and never had any affinity, directly or indirectly, with the Catholic church, but share the common feelings and prejudices of Protestants against the special dogmas and rites of that church." Then it was said he was using the patronage of his office as secretary of the treasury to aid in his nomination, and in reply he pointed to the large number of Grant and Blaine men in the department. He early announced that unless the state of Ohio would give him a substantial endorsement, his name would not be presented to the national convention. "Governor Dennison and Governor Foster had frankly and openly avowed their purpose to support my nomination, and actively did so. * * * While in Ohio I had a consultation at Columbus with Governor Foster, ex-Governor Dennison and a number of other personal friends, all of whom expressed great confidence that by the time the state convention met, the friendly feeling in favor of Blaine, in some of the districts of Ohio, would be waived in deference to the apparent wishes of the great majority. In that event, in case my nomination should prove impracticable, the whole delegation could be very easily changed to Mr. Blaine. As to Gen. Grant, though he had many warm personal friends in Ohio, yet, on account of objections to a third term, very few desired his nomination.

GARFIELD PROMISES SUPPORT.

"Prior to the state convention," adds the senator, "I had an interview with Gen. Garfield which he sought at my office in the department, and he there expressed his earnest desire to secure my nomination and his wish to be a delegate-at-large, so that he might aid me effectively. He had been chosen, with little or no opposition, United States senator, to fill the place of Thurman, whose term expired March 4, 1881. I had not a doubt of the support of Governor Foster, with whom I had been in close correspondence, and who expressed a strong desire for my nomination. I was permitted practically to name the four delegates-at-large, and had implicit confidence that these delegates would take the lead in my behalf."

Dennison, Garfield, Foster and Bateman were named as delegates-at-large to the national convention, and were instructed for Sherman. The state convention also passed a resolution in favor of his nomination. "After the state convention," says Mr. Sherman, "it was generally assumed that I would receive the united vote of the delegation in conformity with the expression of opinion by the convention. During this period a few leading men, whose names I do not care to mention, made a combination of those unfriendly to me, and agreed to disregard the preference declared by the state convention." The national convention met in Chicago, June 2, 1880, and of this the senator writes as follows:

"Four days were occupied in perfecting the permanent organization, and the nomination of candidates for president. During this time a minority of nine of the delegation of Ohio announced their determination to vote for Blaine. This was a fatal move for Blaine, and undoubtedly led to his defeat. Nearly four-fifths of the delegation were in favor of my nomination, in pursuance of the express wishes of the Ohio convention, but they were all friendly to Blaine, and whenever it should have become apparent that my nomination was impracticable, the whole delegation could easily have been carried for him without a division, and thus have secured his nomination. The action of these nine delegates, who refused to carry out the wishes of the state convention, prevented the possibility of the vote of Ohio being cast for Mr. Blaine.

"Long before the convention I had declared, in a published interview, that 'Blaine is a splendid man, able and eminently fit for president. If nominated he will find no one giving him a heartier support than myself.' We were connected by early ties of association and kinship, and had been and were then warm friends. Blaine, when confident of the nomination, said of me: 'To no living man does the American people owe a deeper debt of gratitude than to John Sherman for giving them resumption with all its blessings. As secretary of the treasury he has been the success of the age. He is as eminently fit for president as any man in America, and should he be nominated all I am capable of doing will be done to aid in his election. Should it be my fortune to become president, or should it fall to the lot of any Republican, no one elected could afford to do less than invite Secretary Sherman to remain where he is.' The folly of a few men made co-operation impracticable. I received opposition in Ohio from his pretended friends, and he therefore lost the Ohio delegation, which, but for this defection, would have made his nomination sure had I failed to receive it."

Gen. Garfield made an eloquent speech nominating Senator Sherman. There was a long struggle. The final result was the nomination of Garfield. But let the senator tell his story: "It is probable that if I had received the united vote of the Ohio delegation I would have been nominated, as my relations with both Gen. Grant and Mr. Blaine were of a friendly character, but it is hardly worth while to comment on what might have been. The course of the Ohio delegation was the subject of severe comment, and perhaps of unfounded suspicions of perfidy on the part of some of the delegates.

"In time I became thoroughly advised of what occurred at the Chicago convention and had become reconciled to the result, though frequently afterwards I heard incidents and details which occasioned me great pain and which seemed to establish the want of sincerity on the part of some of the delegates, and tended to show that for some time before the meeting of the convention the nomination of Gen. Garfield had been agreed upon. After its close I had numerous letters from delegates from other states complaining bitterly of the conduct of the Ohio delegation and giving this as a reason why they had not voted for me. I was assured that large portions of the Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and other delegations, had notified Governor Foster that they were ready to vote for me whenever their vote was required, but no such request came from him. The matter had been made the subject of public discussion in the newspapers. I was content with the result, but was deeply wounded by what I could not but regard as a breach of faith on the part of some of the Ohio delegation, and especially of Governor Foster, who had been fully advised of my feelings in regard to his course. I received a letter from him, on the 23rd of June, answering the allegations that had been publicly made in regard to him, and explaining his action."

GARFIELD ACTED FAIRLY.

Senator Sherman's reply to Governor Foster's letter is reproduced. He accepts the governor's explanations and assures him of his continued friendship. "The nomination of Garfield," he also said in his letter, "is entirely satisfactory to me. The only shade that rests on this feeling is the fact that Garfield went there by my selection to represent me and comes from the convention with the honor that I sought. I will do him the justice to say that I have seen no evidence that he has contributed to this result except by his good conduct in the presence of the convention. I had always looked with great favor upon the contingency that if I was not nominated after a fair and full trial and Blaine was, you would be the candidate for the vice presidency, and had frequently said to mutual friends that this was my desire. The contingency of Garfield's nomination I did not consider, for I supposed that as he was secure in the senate for six years, he would not desire the presidential nomination, but as it has come to him without his self-seeking it is honorable and right and I have no cause of complaint. If I believed that he had used the position I gave him to supplant me, I would consider it dishonorable and would not support him; but, while such statements have been made to me, I feel bound to say that I have never seen nor heard from credible sources any ground for such an imputation, and, therefore, he shall have my earnest and hearty support."

Gen. Garfield was elected and chose Mr. Blaine as secretary of state. Mr. Sherman was elected senator from Ohio for the fourth time. In a letter to President Garfield he urged the appointment of Mr. Windom as secretary of the treasury, and he was selected.

"I knew Garfield well," adds the senator. "From his early advent in 1861 in the legislature of Ohio, when I was a candidate for the senate, to the date of his death, I had every opportunity to study his character. He was a large, well developed, handsome man, with a pleasing address and a natural gift for oratory. Many of his speeches were models of eloquence. These qualities naturally made him popular. But his will power was not equal to his personal magnetism. He easily changed his mind, and honestly veered from one impulse to another. This, I think, will be admitted by his warmest friends. During the trying period between his election and inauguration his opinions wavered, but Blaine, having similar personal qualities, but a stronger will, gained a powerful influence with him. When I proposed to him to be a delegate-at-large to the Chicago convention, he no doubt meant in good faith to support my nomination. When his own nomination seemed probable he acquiesced in, and perhaps contributed to it, but after his election he was chiefly guided by his brilliant secretary of state. There was a striking contrast between the personal qualities of Garfield and Hayes. Hayes was a modest man, but a very able one. He had none of the brilliant qualities of his successor, but his judgment was always sound, and his opinion, when once formed, was stable and consistent."

THE LATE SECRETARY WINDOM.

Of Mr. Windom, he says: "Mr. Windom certainly proved himself a very able and accomplished secretary of treasury during the short period of his tenure. * * * He demonstrated his ability, not only in the plan of refunding the debt, but in the general conduct and management of the department."

Much space is devoted to the assassination of Garfield and the events following it. The campaign of 1884, the nomination of Blaine and Logan, and their defeat are treated at length. Coming to the Republican national convention of 1888, Sherman again figures as a candidate, with the unanimous support of the delegates from Ohio. Mr. Blaine had positively declined to be a candidate. Gen. Harrison was nominated. Of his defeat, Senator Sherman says:

"From the best information I could gather from many persons with whom I conversed, I have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that I was defeated for the nomination by New York. I was assured before the meeting of the convention that I would have six votes from the beginning from that state, and could reasonably hope for a large addition to that vote in the progress of the balloting. Instead of this I did not receive a single vote, although three or more delegates had been distinctly selected in my favor and had given pledges to their constituents that they would vote for me, but they did not on a single ballot do so, except I was advised that at one ballot one of them voted for me.

"I believed then, as I believe now, that one of the delegates from the state of New York practically controlled the whole delegation, and that a corrupt bargain was made on Sunday which transferred the great body of the vote of New York to Gen. Harrison, and thus led to his nomination. It is to the credit of Gen. Harrison to say that if the reputed bargain was made it was without his consent at the time, nor did he carry it into execution. I believe and had, as I thought, conclusive proof that the friends of Gen. Alger substantially purchased the votes of many of the delegates from the Southern states who had been instructed by their conventions to vote for me."

GEN. ALGER ANGERED.

This latter statement has aroused the ire of Gen. Alger, and in a Detroit dispatch published in The Herald on Thursday of this week he indignantly denied that any votes were purchased to his knowledge, and expressed surprise that Senator Sherman, in his disappointment, should make such a charge. But it is evident that Senator Sherman feels strongly on this point, because a little farther on in his book he says: "The only feeling of resentment I entertained was in regard to the action of the friends of Gen. Alger in tempting with money poor negroes to violate the instructions of their constituents."

The history of the Sherman silver law is given, and in the same chapter appears a eulogy of the late "Sunset" Cox, with whom, although they differed politically, Senator Sherman had a close acquaintance. Free coinage of silver, the Nicaraguan canal, and Gen. Sherman's death are discussed in another chapter. Next comes an account of the campaign of 1890-91 in Ohio; extracts from speeches on protection to American industries; the repeal in 1893 of the purchase clauses of the Sherman act; the passage of the Wilson tariff bill. In closing his memoirs the senator says: "The events of the future are beyond the vision of mankind, but I hope that our people will be content with internal growth and avoid the complications of foreign acquisitions. Our family of states is already large enough to create embarrassment in the senate, and a republic should not hold dependent provinces or possessions. Every new acquisition will create embarrassments. Canada and Mexico as independent republics will be more valuable to the United States than if carved into additional states. The Union already embraces discordant elements enough without adding others. If my life is prolonged I will do all I can to add to the strength and prosperity of the United States, but nothing to extend its limits or to add new dangers by acquisition of foreign territory."

WHAT OVER-WORK DOES.

The Evil Effect of Too Much Mental or Bodily Work.

Where it is Felt, How it is Felt and How it Can be Cured.

Overworked Kidneys---Their Symptoms and How to Help Them.

Overwork does more than tire you. It exhausts you.

Enough work is good, but overwork is not good.

Work makes your blood circulate and perspiration flow. It clears out your blood vessels and the pores of your skin, helps to throw off waste matter, brings fresh blood to weak places, and renews your energy and vitality.

Overwork makes your organs work too hard, eats up your vitality, exhausts your energy.

The organ that works the most feels it the most.

But the kidneys feel it always, whatever organ may be overworked.

And this is because your kidneys filter your blood.

All the blood to nourish your different organs has to pass through your kidneys. If any organ is overworked and needs more blood than usual, your kidneys have just so much more work to do.

After a certain limit of strain is reached, or after the kidneys have been so much overworked that they fall sick, they let the blood pass without filtering it; or sometimes they even filter out the good matter and leave in the bad.

So that the worst of overwork is, that it hurts your kidneys.

This applies to mental overwork, bodily overwork, overeating, dissipation, youthful excesses, etc., etc.

The way to cure the effects of overwork is, not to take stimulants, but to cure your kidneys with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

As soon as your kidneys are well, they will supply pure, fresh, strengthening blood or nourishment to your overworked organs, and they will get well, too.

You may be broken down in health from overwork or excesses. You may feel that you are losing your mental or nervous power and physical capacity for work.

It is because your kidneys need looking to, that they shall filter your blood and give you fresh life and energy.

Or you may suffer from some of the symptoms of kidney disease, such as backache, sideache, headache, nervousness, frequent thrist, sleeplessness, swelling of the feet and ankles.

Of these too, Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure you. They are tonic and strengthening to the kidneys, and cure all their diseases and injuries.

Blood diseases, naturally, are caused by sick kidneys. That is, diseases which are caused by impure, poisonous, badly filtered blood.

Of these may be mentioned rheumatism, gout, anaemia, chlorosis, pale and sallow complexion, lack of ambition, dizziness, hysteria, neuralgia, etc.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure these by curing the kidneys.

Pure blood means health. Healthy kidneys make pure blood.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent prepaid to any address for 50 cents per box.

HE HAD TO BE CAREFUL

Or Would be Left Out in the Cold.

Washington Star: "What is the matter?" asked one of Mr. Vivvies' boon companions; "you haven't taken the pledge, have you?"

"No. But I'm not looking on the wine when it's red in the cup, just the same."

"Reformed, have you?"

"Yep. You've heard of a woman's marrying a man with the idea of getting him to stop drinking. It doesn't always work, but it did in my case. My wife is a stupendously clever woman."

"Made you promise, did she?"

"She didn't have to. When I started down town tonight she said: I've lost the latchkey, dear, but it won't make any difference. You ring the bell and I'll let you in.' I said, 'all right.' 'Only,' she said, 'we'd better agree on some password, so that when you ring I can look out of the window and make sure it isn't a burglar.' 'Of course,' said I; 'what'll the password be?' 'I have it,' she answered; 'it mustn't be too simple. You just say "Irrepressible reprehensibility" and then I'll come down and let you in.' Gentlemen, if I can't say irrepressible reprehensibility when I get home I don't get in, and, moreover, I assume the chances of being taken for a house-breaker. I've simply got to be careful.' And he went over and resolutely seated himself next to the ice water tank.

PHYSICIANS HAVE FOUND OUT

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit, which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

SATISFIED HIS CONSCIENCE.

It was under some of the earlier bankrupt laws that this exhibition of rare shrewdness occurred, when it was required that in case of a man's insolvency he must turn over to the proper officer of the law every bit of his property for the benefit of his creditors, says the Syracuse Post. The subject of this story was yet a young man and wealthy when misfortune overtook him and failure was inevitable. Some of his property was real estate, some of it was not, the latter consisting of securities easily converted into currency.

A nice little bundle of bank bills could be more safely handled than certificates of stocks, etc. When the time came, being an honorable man he conscientiously surrendered his entire effects, even a tubular cane, from which the handle could be disjointed, the gift of an admiring friend. After handing the walking stick to the official, thus satisfying the law, he suggested its return. It was a present from a friend, and could be of little value to any one but himself as a memento.

"Certainly," said the officer; "take it, it's of no use to us."

"Thanks. I'll prize it highly."

Some time afterward, in his quiet home, the shrewd financier disjointed the handle and removed from his tubular depository several thousand dollars of well crumpled bank bills.

Well, what shall we tackle next?

* * *

Owing to absence from the city of one of our editorial committee, of whom considerable was expected, last week our column "was not."

* * *

At the regular meeting of the Gorman post last Tuesday evening the following nominations were made for officers of the post for the next year: For commander, S. C. Maxwell; senior vice commander, L. W. Palmer; junior vice commander, John T. Russell; quartermaster, L. C. Johnson; chaplain, J. B. Inman; surgeon, George K. Swain; officer of the day, Comrade Ferguson; trustees, Comrades Higgins, Forward and Stimson. Unless there should be some other nominations made before the election, it looks a little like these nominees might be elected.

* * *

Has anything been done yet looking towards railroad excursion rates from St. Paul to Duluth at the time of the grand encampment? It is one of Duluth's great opportunities for an advertisement that will count big for the future.

* * *

Vets, we must begin to make arrangements for going in a body or in three battalions to St. Paul. Every member of each post that is physically able should be enabled to go and should go. To this end it is probable that some provision should be made in a financial way to enable all to go and leave their families. It is not too early to think of these things.

In last Saturday's Herald E. R. Cobb was pleased to take issue with us in regard to some things we said about his report to the Trades assembly of the moneys expended during the past fiscal year by the board of education. In the first place, Mr. Cobb must have read our remarks not very carefully at least, as evidenced by his not understanding apparently what we were driving at. Perhaps that was our fault and not his. But he speaks of the article being "over his (our) initials." He was entirely mistaken in this, as the article was not published over any initials. We take it that this convicts Mr. Cobb of reading carelessly, and excuses us from any charge of amour guilty. We expressed a doubt about the accuracy of the figures of that report so far as the money paid out in salaries to the teachers was concerned, and after all of Mr. Cobb's faultfinding and attempts to sustain the correctness of the reports, he virtually admits that we were right and that his reports, although made by Mr. LeMieux, were wrong, for he says: "The fact that some of our teachers who have lived and worked in this city ten months out of twelve, and go out of town two months, did not occur to me as a sufficient reason for conceding their salaries as expended out of town." That is just where the difference is between us, if a firm of Chicago contractors should get the contract for erecting a school house like the Irving, for instance, and bring all his mechanics and material from Chicago, and they should live and work in the city for ten months before completing that contract, would Mr. Cobb and organized labor of Duluth consider that was a case of paying the money right out in Duluth? If so, then, pray, why has organized labor furnished us so many "amusing illustrations of the fact that some people create a grievance where no facts exist upon which to base one?" We care but little for all this. We mentioned it only incidentally and did not complain about it; in fact recognized fully that it must needs be that many teachers must be employed from outside of the city. Our grievance we clearly pointed out, but as it has been fully covered by Mr. Hugo's proposed amendment to the rules of the board requiring all teachers to be or to become citizens of the United States, we ask Mr. Cobb and the Trades assembly to join the "vets" once more in giving three cheers for "Old Glory."

No One Need Longer Suffer From Rheumatism or Neuralgia. Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy Always Cures.

SHERIFF E. W. HOWE.

Half the world suffers from pains and aches when there is not the slightest reason for so doing. Headache is alarmingly frequent and leads to serious results. Backache is most common and keeps thousands in misery. Neuralgic pains of side or chest torment myriads of victims. All this suffering is caused by a weakness, irritation or diseased condition of the nerves and blood, is entirely unnecessary, and can easily be cured.

Sheriff E. W. Howe, of Northfield, Vt., advises you in all such cases to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He tells the great good this remarkable medicine did him, and to show the high esteem in which he is held by his townspeople and that you can trust implicitly in every word he says, it is only necessary to state that Sheriff Howe has been sheriff and deputy sheriff of Northfield for twenty-three years; is town trustee, street commissioner of Northfield, chief engineer of the fire department, town grand juror and school committee, besides being a prominent business man well known throughout the state of Vermont. The word of a man so highly trusted and honored should be taken and his advice followed by all.

"I was sick five months which left me with asthma and rheumatism. The asthma would take me most anytime, especially nights, when I was obliged to get up and open windows and doors to breathe. It took me once on my way home so bad that I was obliged to have help to get home. I suffered greatly with this trouble. My rheumatism at this time was very bad, being so that for six weeks I did not leave the room and for five months I did not do a day's work.

"I saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised and the cures effected by its use, and thought it might hit my case, and it did. The asthma is greatly improved, in fact, it is nearly cured, and the rheumatism is greatly helped. I think very highly of this remedy for it is good, I would recommend anybody to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for asthma or rheumatism, for it is a good medicine. I deem it simple justice to a great remedy to write this letter. I never expected to do any more work when I was sick, but the Nervura did me a great deal of good and I am now able to work again."

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, or 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

The Merritt-Rockefeller Suit is Reviewed From the Defendant's Side.

Of Course They Claim the Verdict Was Contrary to Evidence.

Text of an Article Which Has Been Causing Much Comment.

Minneapolis Correspondence Chicago Times-Herald: On June 13 a Minnesota jury rendered a verdict of $940,000 against John D. Rockefeller, of New York, in favor of Alfred Merritt, of Duluth. The case was heard in the United States district court at Duluth, Judge John A. Riner, of Wyoming, presiding. The case comes up in the court of appeals at St. Louis next month.

Notwithstanding the importance of the case and the national prominence of the defendant, no connected account of the suit its inception and the relations which existed between Rockefeller and the Merritts has ever been given to the public. The Merritt family, of which Alfred Merritt is a member, resides at Oneota, a part of Duluth. Their chief occupation has been that of explorers in the wilds of Northern Minnesota for timber and minerals. In the fall of 1890 one of their employes found iron ore at what is known as the town of Mountain Iron, Minn. By the financial aid of K. D. Chase, of Faribault, Minn., the Merritts secured by purchase and lease a considerable amount of mining property. Of course this was of little value unless it could be rendered accessible by the construction of a railroad. Mr. Chase, however, enlisted Donald Grant, of Faribault, a wealthy railroad contractor, and his brother, A. S. Chase, of Duluth, and others, and among them the railroad was begun. It was the plan to construct it from Stony Brook, a point on the Duluth & Winnipeg road, to the mines, and to use the Duluth & Winnipeg to reach the lake at the town of Superior. The Grant-Chase syndicate, with the Merritts, constructed some eighty or ninety miles of the road. In the meantime the Merritts were launching mining companies and engaging in other speculations.

But differences arose between the Merritts and the Grant-Chase syndicate regarding the policy of the railroad. The control of the road was disputed by the two factions. The Merritts threw overboard their Minnesota lawyers and got a New York attorney named Wetmore, who was connected with the American Steel Barge company, of West Superior, Wis., to advise them. At Wetmore's suggestion the directors of the railroad issued and sold to Wetmore and the Merritts 4000 shares of new stock. This they bought at a cost of $400,000, spot cash. This purchase gave the Merritts and Wetmore an unquestioned majority of the railroad stock and enabled them to control the road, in spite of anything the Grant-Chase people could do. It was a pretty heavy price to pay for the stock of a road in process of construction. But they bought it without flinching, and, what was more, in order to buy it they borrowed the whole sum of A. D. Thomson. But the Merritts were not yet satisfied. They determined to get rid of the Grant-Chase party entirely. Accordingly they, with Wetmore, bought out all of the Grant-Chase railroad stock at a further price of $265,000, spot cash, borrowed practically in the same way. It was in the spring of 1893, right on the eve of the panic. The coming storm was already beginning to gather, and its mutterings could be heard in various parts of the land.

COLOSSAL SCHEMES OF THE SPECULATORS.

But the Merritts now controlled the railroad, and they at once proceeded to carry out their ideas of policy. Their plan was nothing less than to cut loose from the Duluth & Winnipeg and to build into Duluth at what proved to be a cost of $2,500,000 of cash, and to construct in Duluth a dock actually costing upward of $500,000 more. Relying on Wetmore to raise money for them in New York, they proceeded as officers of the road to let contracts involving enormous obligations; to purchase on credit immense quantities of material, and to set to work hundreds of thousands of laborers. Wetmore was able at first to send them money, but May and June came and money tightened. Out of $3,000,000 actually needed, the Merritts had only arranged with Wetmore that he should raise $1,500,000. He had actually raised less than one-half of this and scarcely one-quarter of the sum really required to carry out the Merritt schemes. Leonidas Merritt went East to help Wetmore, but neither of them was able to make any progress.

The Merritts were well liked. Everybody believed they were doing their best, and their creditors were as patient as possible. But in July the storm broke. The laborers at the mines and on the railroad, whose wages were long overdue, could not be paid. They began to suffer and then to complain. Litigations were begun. Liens were filed and suits instituted to throw the railroad into the hands of receivers. Contractors, material men and laborers united in a chorus of rage and vituperation. At the mines threats were made and knives were drawn. On the railroad contractors were knocked down and labor riots were imminent.

The railroad had utterly lost its credit. Its papers were worthless at the banks. Its acceptances were protested. It was totally on the brink of ruin. The interest of the mortgages was in default, and there seemed nothing but foreclosure and the wiping out of all the stock. This would have destroyed not only all of the earlier holdings of the Merritt stocks, but all of the new stock just acquired, to pay for which they and Wetmore had borrowed the $965,000. It was at this juncture that the Merritts and Wetmore, who was a partner with them in all, or nearly all, their schemes, appealed to Rockefeller.

But they had another motive in going to Rockefeller besides interesting him to loan them money. The Merritts and Wetmore from the beginning had cherished far-reaching designs. Wetmore had begun buying properties on the range on his own account, and he and the Merritts had fixed up a plan among themselves for consolidating all their Mesaba mines, and had formed a company for this purpose. Wetmore was an old Marquette boy, and had been interested in mines from his boyhood. He was a scopey and imaginative man.

CASTING THE COIL ABOUT ROCKEFELLER.

He had been engaged with the Colbys, of New York, in various mining operations, and was an officer in the Aurora, Tilden and Spanish American mines, which the Colbys controlled and in which Mr. Rockefeller was minority stockholder. Wetmore knew about all of these mines. He was persuaded of their enormous value, and he wanted them brought into the proposed consolidation. It would be a long step in the direction of that universal consolidation of Lake Superior mining interests which for years had been the dream of brilliant and poetic financiers.

During the months of May and June the testimony shows that Merritt and Wetmore were negotiating with the Colbys to get these great mines into their scheme. A contract with the Colbys was drawn up and actually exhibited at the trial, signed by Leonidas Merritt and Wetmore, but the signatures of the Colbys were never obtained to the contract and the scheme fell through. The fact is the Colbys wanted more for their properties than the two were willing to pay. The Colbys had been offered $3,000,000 cash for the Tilden and Aurora properties alone, from a responsible source, only a short time before these negotiations. Colby swore to this. The Colbys would not entertain any offers Merritt and Wetmore were willing to make. But Rockefeller had large interests in these mines, though his interests were not controlling.

The negotiations with the Colbys failed, along in June, and about the same time Merritt and Wetmore began to find pretty hard financial sledding. It was at this juncture in their affairs that Wetmore and Merritt made their first joint determined attempt to engage Rockefeller in their enterprises. In the first place Rockefeller alone had the money to float their schemes, and in the second place he was a large stockholder in the big old range properties, and if they could once buy out his interests in these properties, the rest of the stockholders, including the Colbys, would be likely to follow him like sheep.

Accordingly, early in July, as Gates swears, Merritt and Wetmore approached Gates—Rockefeller's man—with a proposition to buy out Rockefeller's interest in the Colby mines. Gates swears they offered Rockefeller all he paid for his stocks, with 6 per cent interest, less dividends. The sum amounted to about $2,000,000, and this they agreed to pay, not in cash, but in bonds of the new consolidated company, which they had got up at 90 cents on the dollar. Rockefeller hesitated a long time. Finally, however, he consented and agreed to sell his mining stocks to the company the Merritts and Wetmore had organized.

ROCKEFELLER BEGINS LOANING MONEY.

Having now got Rockefeller's stocks into their company, Wetmore and Merritt began a regular siege to borrow money for their various enterprises, and Rockefeller, having become interested in their properties began that system of enormous loans to the Merritts, individually, to the railroad and the mines, which saved the properties from utter wreck. During that summer, fall and winter—the period of the panic—over two and one-half millions of Rockefeller's money was sent to Duluth. It was Rockefeller's money that paid the employes of the railroad, saved the contractors from ruin, constructed the immense dock, and mainly built the extensions of the railroad. It was Rockefeller's money that saved the railroad from going into the hands of a receiver; that prevented the foreclosure of the mortgages and saved to the Merritts and Wetmore the stock for which they had given their notes, collateralized by their most valuable properties.

Besides loaning the railroad money, Rockefeller also loaned to the mines, thus enabling them to continue their development, and in addition he bought from the mines 300,000 tons of ore, for cash, and transported the same over the railroad, paying 80 cents per ton freight, when there was no sale for the ore, in order to keep the mines at work and give the railroad something to do. Besides all this, he loaned several hundred thousand dollars to Wetmore and the Merritts for their personal debt. Up to this point it is difficult to see how the Merritts could regard Rockefeller in any other light than that of a benefactor. He had apparently saved all their enterprises from utter ruin and their letters and telegrams, brought out on the trial, show that they appreciated these favors at the time.

But a change came over the spirit of their dreams. September came and October, and November, and December. The panic did not let up, but rather it grew worse. The Merritts had been expecting that the name of Rockefeller, of Standard Oil fame, would give to their stock a Standard Oil value. The connection of Rockefeller with them was extensively announced. The letters of Lon Merritt, brought out at the trial, show that he expected to float the consolidated stock at much more than the value of the stock of the constituent companies which formed the consolidation. It is possible that he would have succeeded if iron ore had continued in demand and the panic had not practically suspended all forms of business. The Merritts found very few who had any money to invest in their consolidated stocks. The rosy hopes which they held in July and August, of paying their obligations in consolidated stock, at big figures, seem by December to have utterly vanished.

AN UNEXPECTED INCIDENT OCCURS.

At this juncture an unexpected incident happened. The Tilden mine, a large block of the stock and bonds of which Rockefeller had sold to the Consolidation for bonds, although containing an immense body of very high grade ore which could be cheaply mined, became embarrassed through the failure of a bank in Milwaukee, in which the company had a large deposit, and the mine was thrown into the hands of a receiver. Rockefeller was surprised. His side of the house was then on the most friendly terms with the Merritts. He immediately sent Gates to the Merritts and Wetmore, and at a meeting of the Consolidated directors offered to give back the bonds which Rockefeller had received for the Tilden bonds and stocks, thus completely undoing the trade.

This act of magnanimity was curiously received. Then and there the Merritts broke with Rockefeller and his crowd. Why this proposition was declined has never yet been fully explained. It is an important point with the defense, showing, as they claim, the nature of the Merritt litigation, that the Merritts refused to trade back when Rockefeller offered to do so, and then sued Rockefeller for damages on account of this very trade. Information of the row in New York quickly reached the friends of the Merritts in the West. Marcus Simpson, of Burlington, Iowa, and Judge D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud, Minn., rushed on to New York, full of zeal, to help the Merritts.

Meantime the Merritts engaged Judge John F. Dillon, of New York, as their counsel. When Searle and Simpson arrived they heard the Merritts' story and then went with Judge Dillon and his partner to visit the Rockefellers. Gates told them in the presence of Judge Dillon the whole story of Rockefeller's connection with the Merritts and exhibited the documents. The result was that both Simpson and Searle sided with Rockefeller on the spot and have ever since been strong champions of the Rockefeller side. The same is true of some of the Merritts. Lewis J. Merritt and Hulett C. Merritt, who are perhaps the ablest business men of the Merritt crowd, refused to join with their relatives and have ever since sided with Rockefeller against the rest of the family.

The result of all these things was that under the advice of Judge Dillon the Merritts and Wetmore a week or two later accepted a modified form of Rockefeller's proposition, by which Rockefeller agreed to give back the bonds which he had received for these mining stocks and take stock instead, on account of the embarrassment of the Tilden mine. The whole matter was closed up in a meeting of the directors at which several of the most prominent stockholders were present, among them Judge W. W. Henry, Marcus Simpson and Judge D. B. Searle. The vote was unanimous, the Merritts and Wetmore voting affirmatively. The whole matter was understood to be settled and the outwardly friendly relations between the parties were resumed.

APPROACH OF THE FINANCIAL CRISIS.

But matters with the Merritts were rapidly approaching a crisis. It was January of 1894. Their creditors had held off long. It was true that they owed large sums of money to Rockefeller amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars and had pledged with him about all their personal stocks, but much of this money was on long paper and was not due, and the part that was due was not demanded by Rockefeller.

He was not pressing them for either principal or interest, but the Merritts had many other creditors East, West, North and South, among the banks, corporations and individuals. Some of these were not so lenient. They had been demanding their money for months in increasingly imperative tones. They would no longer be put off. The Merritts in their extremity again turned to Rockefeller for relief. They offered to sell him 90,000 shares of their consolidated stock at $10 per share, giving them thus $900,000. This would not only pay all they owed to Rockefeller, but would give them some $300,000 or $400,000 for their other creditors.

It was finally agreed that Rockefeller should buy the 90,000 shares at the figure named by the Merritts, they to have the right to buy back 55,000 shares within one year at the same price, with 6 per cent interest. This 55,000 shares represented about exactly what they had owed Rockefeller himself. Rockefeller thus practically extended his loans for a year. The balance of the stock which represented the claims of the other creditors was bought outright.

Rockefeller at this time had the whole 90,000 shares in his strong box as collateral for the loans, and those who are familiar with the story have wondered why he did not refuse to buy at any price and simply bide his time, and when the notes came due, close them out in the usual course of business. He would then have got the whole of the stock for about one-half what he paid for it. Indeed, he got the odium of doing this very thing, for the Duluth papers of the time were full of tales of a "freeze out" under big head lines, and these tales were widely copied throughout the state.

The facts as now developed, however, show that Rockefeller treated the Merritts here with magnanimity. Rockefeller swears that a few weeks later, at the request of the Merritts and on their representation that it would be a great accommodation to them, he bought 12,000 shares more at the same price, giving them $120,000 cash. This closed Rockefeller's transactions with the Merritts.

BASIS OF ALFRED MERRITT'S SUIT.

What now is the basis of this great suit brought eight months later by Alfred Merritt? The Merritts now claim that far back in August, 1893, when Rockefeller sold to their consolidated company his Tilden and Spanish American iron stocks, he misrepresented the condition of those companies and thereby damaged the Merritts. On the witness stand Lon Merritt claimed that he once met Rockefeller and only once. No other Merritt ever met him. That Rockefeller invited him to come to his office. This, he says, was in June, 1893, before Rockefeller sold the mining stocks to Merritt and Wetmore. In this interview he (Rockefeller) and Gates were alone together and Rockefeller went on to tell how good these Tilden and Spanish American properties were, making various statements as to their value.

Gates and Rockefeller swore to an entirely different story. They swore that the interview took place not before, but after the Merritt company had already bought Rockefeller's stocks. They swore that Rockefeller did not invite Merritt, but that the interview was sought by the other party. They both swore that no business was talked during the interview and that it was understood before the interview began that it was to be purely social. They swore that Rockefeller's properties, so far from being exploited and praised up, were not even mentioned in any way, shape or manner during the interview, and that the interview, instead of lasting three-quarters of an hour, as Lon Merritt swore, did not exceed five or ten minutes at most in length.

The details are corroborated by the testimony of George D. Rogers, Rockefeller's private secretary. The Merritts, therefore, rally to the attack again. Three of them, "Lon," "Alf" and "Andy," come forward and swear that some six weeks after this they met Gates alone in an inner room in Wall street, which is several blocks away from Gates' office. The three Merritts were with Gates alone. Neither Wetmore nor anybody else was present, and the three say that Gates there made the same representations to them.

Here they have Gates at a disadvantage, three to one. He declares vehemently that the alleged interview never took place. The defense was amazed when it heard their testimony and instantly wired to New York to get the bookkeeper of the Wall street establishment, where the Merritts placed Gates in the alleged interview, to hurry to Duluth. He swore that no such interview could have taken place; that Gates had not visited the place and that the Merritts and Gates could not have got into the room without going by him. He was there every day. The testimony of Wetmore was also introduced. He swore that he knew nothing of any misrepresentations at any time.

THE OPPOSITE SIDE OF THE PROPOSITION.

But the Rockefeller side does not rest with these sworn denials as to representations. Of course, Rockefeller's lawyers did not fail to point out the suspicious character of the circumstances attending this three-to-one interview, with nobody else about, either to corroborate their own testimony or to come to Gates' defense, and they called attention to the fact that it bears all the marks of a put up job. They go on to urge that the idea that Rockefeller or Gates should have made misrepresentations in regard to these mines is in itself absurd. In the first place, business men of Rockefeller's caliber are not in the habit of making misrepresentations of any kind.

Besides this, neither Gates nor Rockefeller had ever seen either the Tilden or the Spanish American mines. Neither of them were mining men. All they knew about these properties they had learned from the Colbys and other officers of the companies. The Merritts and Wetmore had no occasion to come to them for information. Before they had approached Rockefeller to purchase the mines, they had already for weeks been negotiating with the Colbys themselves. They had at one time arranged to visit the mines with the Colbys. Moreover, Wetmore had been for years connected with these mines; had been acquainted with mines from his boyhood, and he knew far more about these mines than either Rockefeller or Gates. If the Merritts had not relied on the strong statements of Wetmore and the official information at their command from the Colbys, they would, themselves, have visited the mines or hired experts. The last thing they would have done would have been to make inquiries of Rockefeller or Gates, who were known not to have first-hand information on the subject.

Moreover the defense urges that Rockefeller never sought to sell his interest to the Merritts. That the whole scheme originated with the Merritt side and was urged on Rockefeller by the Merritts and Wetmore, in order to enlarge the power of the consolidation on which they were working, enlist the great wealth of Rockefeller in their vast enterprises and save the same from the ruin that was impending. The testimony of the defense goes to show that it was only reluctantly, and after much persuasion, that Rockefeller consented to sell at all. He took the first opportunity to offer to trade back. What interest, therefore, had he in making misrepresentations of the properties?

But the defense, while insisting that no representations of any kind were made, declared that they were, nevertheless, comparatively indifferent to that point. They took the bold ground that, even if the alleged representations had actually been made, they would, in fact, have been perfectly true. They would have been not misrepresentations, but statements of cold fact, and they brought many witnesses to prove that the mines were entirely solvent, as well as enormously valuable at the time when the sale took place. Charles L. Colby, well known in Wisconsin and Minnesota railway circles, who was at the time of the sale the president of the Tilden properties, swore as follows, on being asked what was the fair and reasonable worth of the Tilden mine in 1893, when the sale was made:

MR. COLBY'S EVIDENCE AT THE TRIAL.

"Well, I put a valuation on it at that time at between four and five millions, which, I think, was a fair valuation. It is impossible for anybody, of course, to make an exact valuation of property which is underground, and the value of which depends upon the state of the market and the output for many years in the future. Therefore, it is a matter of estimate. At that time we could take out of the mine about 600,000 or 700,000 tons in a year, and at the market price of ore there was about 75 cents per ton profit. But the developments that were being made, the machinery that was being put in, largely increased the output year by year. We can now take out about 1,200,00 tons per year in to market."

Charles F. Rand, the receiver of the Tilden mine, swore as follows:

"The company owned about 800 acres of mineral lands in fee in the state of Wisconsin. * * * The Tilden mine occupies 420 acres of ore land, being one mile in length across the entire property, and has been fully exploited. We have a mine that extends over 3500 feet in a vein, and we have shafts and diamond drills at work on other parts of the property. The mine is fully equipped. It has four shipping shafts at the present time and two others that are not quite finished. The annual shipping capacity in 1893 was about 750,000 tons per year. It has another shaft pretty nearly completed, which would almost double the capacity of the mine. It is a soft hematite, all high-grade Bessemer, showing 64 per cent of iron and not to exceed .040 on 1 per cent of phosphorus."

Clarence M. Boss, mining engineer and inspector of mines for Gogebic county, Mich., swore as follows, on being asked what, in his judgment, was the amount of merchantable iron ore on the Tilden mine in August, 1893:

In round numbers, blocked out in sight, a reasonable estimate would be not far from 6,000,000 tons, and there are indications of more. But whether a good deal more or very little would be purely conjectual. It is a good high-grade Bessemer ore.

Similar testimony was introduced by Rockefeller's attorneys to show the enormous extent and great value of his Spanish-American properties. The testimony of the defense in both instances went to show that the properties were worth more than Rockefeller got for them. No testimony was introduced by the plaintiff going to show that these statements were not true, and similar statements were made by some of their own witnesses.

THE JURY FAILED TO GIVE REASONS.

The jury did not state how they managed to figure out a damage of $940,000 to Alfred Merritt by reason of Rockefeller's consenting to put his interest in these great properties into the consolidation. A curious commentary on this verdict is furnished by the results of their present season's operations of these mines. The writer is informed by a party who has had access to the figures, that the Tilden is this year making a handsome profit and that the Spanish-American mine is shipping ore to the United States at a handsome profit. These are the mines involved in the suit, and by reason of which the Merritts claim damage. The mines put into the consolidation by the Merritts, on the other hand, will none of them, except those leased on royalties, make a dollar of money this year above expense. It is the talk here among business men who know human nature and are acquainted with the facts in this case, that Rockefeller was mulcted out of nearly a million dollars by a jury, not because he was wrong, but because he is rich, and it is no wonder that he appeals to a higher tribunal for the justice which was denied him in the lower.

Betterment of Trade Conditions Has Furnished Work for Most Men.

The Stone Cutters are Now Among the Busiest of All.

Nothing Further Done in Regard to the Proposed Workingman's Club.

Another week has passed without an event in labor circles. The betterment of trade conditions has found work for most of the "boys" and the stonecutters, whose hammers have hardly clicked all summer are now among the busiest of the crafts. The strike of the Lyceum employes shows no new phases. The letter written by the Federated Trades assembly to A. M. Miller detailing the circumstances of the walk out has been answered and the reply, by the way, is decidedly unsatisfactory to the labor boys. The matter may be discussed in a special session this week.

* * *

Now is the time when everyone is getting ready to dance and a half dozen unions are preparing to add to their coffers by giving dances.

* * *

It is gratifying to note that the assembly will have a hand in reforming municipal affairs. Mrs. Akin, who has been delegated to act with the council committee and representatives of the civic organizations in figuring out a plan to reduce city expenditures, is prepared to devote her time to a careful investigation.

* * *

Nothing further has been done in the matter of securing the rooms in the Clark block for a laboringman's club. The sentiment among the men appears to be that the establishment of the club would strengthen the cause of unionism by furnishing a place where the men can meet for discussion and recitation. It doesn't need silver-plated spittoons for the purpose and expenses will not be excessive.

The second hearing of the case of Superintendent Herbert Warren, of the street car company, charged by President McCallum, of the assembly, with permitting unvestibuled cars to be run will come up in the municipal court Nov. 20 and will be vigorously pushed. Incidentally County Attorney Arbury, who conducted the prosecution, denies that he said substantially that he had no interest in the suit.

The first annual ball of Local 106, Painters and Decorators union, will be given Thursday evening, Nov. 21, at Hunter's hall. Music will be furnished by Hoare's orchestra. Tickets are $1.

The plumbers and gasfitters' ball at the St. Louis Thanksgiving evening promises to be highly successful and tickets are going like hot cakes.

The call has been issued by the State Federation of Labor for the semi-annual convention to be held at Winona, Dec. 8. Every convention held in the past has been of benefit to organized labor throughout the state. Duluth organizations should lose no time in electing delegates to represent them as the local delegation will endeavor to secure a special railroad rate as soon as the attendance from this city can be definitely ascertained. The call is as follows:

To all trades unions, labor organizations, farmers' alliances and industrial bodies within Minnesota.—Greeting: The semi-annual meeting of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor will convene in Winona on Sunday, Dec. 8, 1895. All affiliated organizations and those desirous of affiliation are hereby cordially invited to be represented by delegates at said meeting. The basis of representation is one delegate for each twenty-five members or major fraction thereof, but no local organization shall be entitled to more than five delegates. The revenue of the federation comes from the collection of semi-annual dues of 50 cents per delegate, and an affiliation fee of $1 from each organization on its entrance. Bodies heretofore affiliated, but which are unable to be represented at any meeting, may continue themselves as affiliated organizations in good standing by transmitting to the secretary the semi-annual dues for at least one delegate.

The attendance at the late conventions of the federation has been steadily increasing, as the very useful work done by it in behalf of the industrial mass of the people has become better known and understood, and it is expected that the same growth will be seen at the coming meeting. It is the province of the federation especially to guard the interests of the producing classes in that most important point, the making and enforcing of laws that bear upon the laborer. As it is daily becoming more clearly apparent that this is the vital matter—that the prosperity or distress of the worker depends entirely upon the laws under which he lives—that the small compensation which he receives for filling the land with wealth for others to enjoy is due to bad laws, and that proper and just legislation would at once give prosperity, comfort and happiness to every citizen, just so is the work of the State Federation growing in importance. No real labor organization can afford to be unrepresented. Let the best and wisest men of all our unions come together and endeavor to find the way to most fully and quickly secure the rights of the people, who make our country what it is, and on whose labors all depend. Application for special rates on the railroads has been made to the Western Passenger association, but no reply has yet been received. If granted due notice will be given by publication. Fraternally, W. B. Hammond, secretary; E. R. Cobb, president.

PLANS OF EUGENE V. DEBS.

Should the plans of Eugene V. Debs be carried out the new trades union movement will revolutionize trades unions. There are to be mixed unions formed of the workmen in trades of allied character and carrying out what is termed the "unification of labor."

The organization in each trade will be similar to that of the American Railway union, where any employe, from the engineer to the man who walks the tracks, is eligible as a member. This would insure to a union formed of the building trades of Chicago a membership, on present members on roll, of nearly 20,000, and would give such a body greatly increased power. The new organizations will all unite in a central council, each union sending delegates according to its membership, and then there will be an executive board, who will have authority to appoint grand officers. From the central council, too, general laws for all the unions composing it will be formulated.

The statement of Oscar Neebe as to the intention of the socialists points out plainly the political features of the organization and its use in a campaign. He said the other day:

"With unions organized on these lines and the Socialist labor party the third party in the field, there will be some chance for the workingmen. In unions with large membership there will be less fear of cliques than in small ones, and the members can more readily be influenced to vote a certain way. Workingmen must learn to vote, and they must be taught in the trades union. The latter cannot help anyone better than himself, unless they are organized on the same plan as the American Railway union."

WITHDRAWAL OF WERNER COMPANY.

The chief triumph of late in labor circles, and, of course, more particularly among the printers, is the withdrawal of the Werner company, of Akron, Ohio, from its fight against organized labor. The International Typographical union, the International Printing Pressmen's union and the International Brotherhood of Book Binders have now come to an agreement with the large printing and publishing company. The latter undertakes to employ none but members or those eligible as members in these unions; to pay scale of wages demanded by those organizations; to confer with representatives of the union in case of dispute, and if necessary submit to arbitration; and that no change should be made in wages or existing regulations without thirty days' notice to the parties interested by party desiring the change.

Such an agreement is regarded as a great victory for the labor unions, for the Werner company has never previously admitted the right of a union to negotiate on a question of wages. It is said the expense to the Typographical union will not exceed $600, and President Prescott has received many deserved congratulations on the able manner in which he conducted the fight.

TROUBLE IN NAVY YARDS.

Grand Master of the International Association of Machinists James O'Connell reports considerable trouble in the government navy yards and arsenals. Two months ago he went to Washington and interviewed Secretary of Navy H. A. Herbert, but no good result has yet followed. The complaint is made that men are blacklisted and that there are frequent dismissals for some alleged petty cause. On Friday of last week he received a notification from the Brooklyn navy yards that thirty-eight men had been dismissed from their employment merely for attempting to defend themselves from some unfounded charge. Mr. O'Connell says determined action will be taken at the next meeting of congress and some measure introduced to protect employes, and, where necessary, give them redress. A system which permits the introduction of mechanics merely because they possess a pull, friendly or political, and the dismissal of others to make room for them, he says cannot be permitted to exist any longer.

BRITISH TRADES UNIONS.

The British Board of Trade has published its report on trades unions in 1893 and to those fond of figures comparisons will be of interest. Above the year preceding there has been an increase of trade unions of thirty-one registered and fifty-one unregistered societies.

Accounts were received from 683 unions, showing a membership of 1,270,780. At the beginning of the year the total funds in hand amounted to £1,992,397, while at the end of the year the sum was £1,933,068, the income for the year being £1,966,971 and the expenditure of £2,246,515.

In order that a comparison may be made between 1892 and 1893 returns were secured from 531 unions as to membership, income and expenditure for both years. The following table affords full details:

	1892	1893	Increase.
Membership at end of year	1,195,932	1,166,922	* 29,010
Annual income	£1,749,969	£1,897,390	148,291
Annual expenditure	1,720,983	2,157,160	436,177
Funds at end of year	1,820,934	1,556,163	*264,771
Amount expended on—
Out-of-work benefit	384,789	495,046	110,257
Dispute benefit	447,534	704,146	256,312
Sick benefit	214,457	235,758	21,301
Accident benefit	17,819	25,678 *	7,859
Superannuation benefit	105,975	116,615	10,640
Funeral benefit	82,929	90,611	7,682
Other benefits, grants	130,186	161,157	33,971
Working and other expenses	334,123	324,335 *	9,788

*Decrease in 1893, compared with 1892.

The unions chiefly affected by the diminution in aggregate numbers are those representing the less skilled branches of industry.

Even with the heavy fall in membership the total income shows an increase of nearly 8½ per cent, due to the fact that in the unions where there was a loss of members the contributions of the more skilled classes have considerably increased. It is customary also in a large number of unions to increase the members' contributions in proportion to the fall below a certain set limit. Another reason for the increased gross income of the year is that during the long-continued labor disputes in 1893 there were many special contributions of large amounts to certain unions upon which heavy calls were being made.

The workmen in the Belfast shipbuilding yards have given notice to their employers that they will strike unless higher wages are conceded. The Clyde shipbuilding unions will co-operate with the Belfast hands and bring out 25 per cent of their men. This will throw 50,000 men into idleness if carried out.

THE FEDERATION CONVENTION.

The American Federation of Labor will hold its fifteenth annual convention at Madison Square garden, New York city, on Monday, Dec. 9, commencing at 10 o'clock. Accommodation has been secured at the Ashland house, Fourth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. The basis of representation is as follows: From national or international unions under 4000 members, one delegate; above that number, two delegates; if 8000, three delegates; 16,000, four delegates; 32,000, five delegates, and so on. Also from each local or district trade organization neither in connection with nor having a national or international head in affiliation with the federation, one delegate.

The National Seamen's Union of America holds its fourth annual convention at 51 South street, New York city, Thursday, Dec. 5, at 10 o'clock. Representation to be based: Districts with not less than 200 members, three delegates, and one more for each 500 members above the first 500. Districts with less than 200 members, one delegate.

The officers of the Cigarmakers' International union will be balloted for the second Saturday in February, 1896, and those successful will hold office for three years. That members should vote is made compulsory under a fine of 50 cents, which if unpaid for eight weeks causes suspension. The method to be pursued is that the five candidates for each office receiving the nomination of the largest number of unions shall be placed on the tickets and voted for. Then the balloting will continue until one candidate for each office receives a majority of all the votes cast, after each ballot the lowest on the list being dropped.

TO COUNTERACT THE A. R. U.

Already steps are being taken by the executives of five labor organizations in the employ of the Western railroads, viz., Frank B. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Grand Secretary Arnold and Second Assistant Grand Master Mayer of the same order; W. B. Powell, grand chief, and M. Dolphin, first assistant grand chief, and L. A. Tanquery, chairman of the grand executive committee of the railway telegraphers; First Assistant Grand Chief Lee of the railway trainmen, and grand chief clerk of the railway conductors, to counteract the work of Eugene V. Debs. Mr. Debs went to Woodstock jail he has claimed that on his release he would find no difficulty in reviving the American Railway union and making it a greater power than ever before. Acknowledging the strength and fearing his ability, the men above named have completed arrangements to form a federation which numerically and in power will not possess any less significance than the powerful alliance with which Mr. Debs succeeded in tying up the entire system of several of the largest lines in the country.

The managers declare they have no intention to antagonize the railroad officials. Grand Master Sargent, in speaking of the matter, said the trouble between the employe and the employer was that they did not understand each other. He thought there should be more honesty of purpose upon the part of both capital and labor. He was sure that the labor societies were rapidly bringing such a condition into being; they had already improved the moral tone of all railroad employes, who had learned to educate themselves and thereby to appreciate the better class of work, whereby the railroad itself had been greatly benefited. He thought that the first step in the making of the proposed federation was to see that conservative men were placed at its head; men who would do the greatest good for the greatest number, and put their foot upon anything that savored of antagonism toward one another.

BARBERS TO MEET.

The barbers' unions of St. Paul and Minneapolis held a friendly meeting at St. Paul a few days ago. It was decided to issue a call for a state convention of journeymen barbers to be held in Winona immediately following the semi-annual meeting of the State Federation of Labor. One of the objects of the barbers' convention is to begin agitation for a law requiring barbers to be licensed in the same manner as physicians and dentists.

They claim the public, at least that portion who do not shave themselves, will welcome a movement raising the standard of the proficiency in the art of shaving, and preventing the introduction of incompetent persons into the craft.

TO ENFORCE CHILD LABOR LAW.

Labor Commissioner Powers announces that factory inspection to enforce the child labor law in Minneapolis will commence in the next few days. The bureau of labor desires to work in harmony with the associated charities and the school authorities. The work already done has shown that the law is weak, for, while the bureau has been given authority to force children out of factories and workshops, there is no law compelling them to attend school. So soon as the work has progressed sufficiently in St. Paul a truancy officer will be appointed to carry out the same duties as in Minneapolis.

LABOR NOTES.

Imogene Fales insists that E. V. Debs should head the labor ticket for the presidency next year. He is in favor of a convention not later than Feb. 22 feeling assured that such a nomination would be a declaration of war and an ultimatum from labor to capital.

From San Francisco comes the news that the waiters have formed an organization under the title of the White Waiters Protective association. A similar undertaking now under consideration in Chicago meditates no such distinction of color.

It is announced that the San Francisco collector has been instructed that all the Chinese admitted as laborers for the midwinter exposition last year must be deported. Under the law they were entitled to remain twelve months, which has been overstayed.

It is announced from Peoria, Ill., that the railroad telegraphers are comfortably located in new quarters and a steady growth in membership shown. There is already an official organ, the Railroad Telegram.

In St. Louis attempts are being made to start a daily labor paper, and the St. Louis unions are now raising money for that purpose.

In Honolulu there is no superfluity of unions at present, the printers only having organized; but there are others in contemplation.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 17. "Rejecting Christ; the Consequences." Matt. x, 11-15, 32, 33. By Arthur W. Kelly in the Golden Rule.

The world that Christ entered was a lost world. That was why he came to it. Every man today without Christ is lost until he has accepted the Savior. Salvation is the natural state of no man; it is to be had only by an act of the will that works a radical change. That one should be lost, it is not necessary to be an infidel, a scoffer, an open opposer of the gospel, immoral; simple neglect to obey Christ's call is enough. Of him that obeys not the Son it is not said that the wrath of God will come on him, but that it abides on him; it is on him already, and nothing but obeying the Son can remove it.

Indifference to heavenly things, and having the mind filled with thoughts of business, pleasure, learning, or anything else, are among the most common ways of rejecting Christ. A clear view of the Savior's glory and love would often be enough to call out love in return; it is one of Satan's shrewdest and most successful schemes to keep the eyes so fixed on other objects that they find no time to see the cross. Rejection of Christ thus brings a corresponding effect. Indifference deepens until it cannot be overcome by the most telling appeals; conscience becomes less keen as its warnings are less heeded; putting off to a more convenient season becomes putting off forever; the man has sought to be left to himself; he is left to himself, and in him is fulfilled the sentence, "he that is unrighteous, let him do unrighteousness still."

But though Christ's call may have fallen on ears wilfully or carelessly deaf, it does not leave unchanged any to whom it comes. For one within whose reach the gospel has been brought it can never be the same as if the way of salvation had remained unknown, that is, judgment enough on any life that light came and darkness was chosen instead. Salvation never can be offered a whose bringing heavier condemnation if not redemption, a savor of death if not a savor of life.

Rejection or acceptance of Christ is for two worlds; the choice cannot be made separately for time and for eternity. He that chooses that this life should be spent out of Christ thereby settles it that the unending life shall be spent in the outer darkness; the Lord denied in this world becomes the denier in the other world; the narrow line that at one point is the boundary between accepting and rejecting Christ ever widens till it becomes the great gulf.

A TALK ON THE TOPIC.

By Rev. W. Knight Chaplin, of London, Eng., joint honorary secretary of the British national council of Christian Endeavor.

We will consider this topic under three headings, the three R's.

1. Reception. In order to realize to the full the fearful loss attending the rejection of Christ, it is necessary to meditate somewhat upon the priceless blessings that follow upon receiving him. Two passages of Scripture will suffice to indicate what these are.

1. John 1:12. "As many as received him, to them gave he power (the right or privilege) to become the sons of God." Receiving Christ is the portal through which we pass into Christian sonship, a relation far higher than any other to which it is possible for man to attain. It implies: (a) Intimate intercourse. (b) Divine guardianship. (c) An eternal inheritance. "If children, then heirs." Heaven is an inheritance that all the saints are heirs to. Receive God's Son, and he will make you sons.

2. Matt. 10:31. "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven." Confession by Christ—the eternal destiny of each soul will be determined by this. Think of what it will bestow! Ever-enduring health to those whose lot nearly all their days has been to languish as pale, emaciated, bedridden sufferers; unfading youth and vigor to those who, faithful through many years, have become decrepit, tottering, aged disciples; home, sweet home, to weary pilgrims after many a toilsome journey; immortality to every child of the King. To be confessed by Christ will mean that faith will be exchanged for realizing vision, and that to the joys of a spiritual presence will be added the personal manifestation and glory of our Redeemer and Lord.

II. Rejection. "Rejecting Christ"—there are no other two words that, linked together, are so full of such inexpressible pathos. They stand for present peril and perpetual punishment. They indicate the one great sin that makes judgment and doom inevitable. "God is not now dealing with man on the sin question, but on the Son question." Sin was atoned for on the cross at Calvary; but to reject Christ is to refuse to benefit by the atonement that he has made. The supreme wofulness of this folly becomes apparent when we remember that—

1. In rejecting Christ men reject a Savior of incomparable beauty. In Jesus, the living epistle of God, there was no blemish of any kind. There he stands, spotless in a grimy world, undefiled in the midst of pollution; dwelling with men, yet every moment communing with God; the friend of sinners, yet the holy servant of God. And men reject him!

2. In rejecting Christ men reject a salvation for which there is no substitute. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" There is no earthly misery like sin, and there is no deliverance like that with which Jesus makes us free. Words will not tell it. The salvation that is in Christ is "the pearl of great price." And men reject it!

III. Retribution. The consequences: "But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven." Thus man's folly will be spread before the angels and the man himself be denied admission into the house of many mansions. This is a side of truth that we are in some danger of forgetting. It should not be so. God most surely rewards those that keep his laws, and just as surely punishes those that break them. The Judge of all earth will do right, but that righteousness that he will mete out the same measure to the law-keeper and the law-breaker. Let us be careful not to hide this truth beneath a veil of sentimentalism. Satan, caught redhanded, must carry the brand upon his brow. Sodom, self-doomed by its own corruption, must perish in the fire. The Jew, forsaking the fountain of living water, must die of thirst. Judas, having wilfully gone out into the night, must go to his own place.

The consequences of rejecting Christ are unspeakably awful. One naturally shrinks from discoursing upon a theme of such solemn and dreadful import. Yet the truth must be told. "The wages of sin is death." "He that believeth not shall be damned." To the rejecters of Christ we are told that the Judge at the last assize will say: "Depart from me, ye cursed." What awful words! How charged with vengeance! They open up the dread prospect of an eternal exile from God and heaven. The sentence, "depart from me," is one that excludes forever the sinner from the presence of a holy God, and from entrance into the holy heaven. "Ye cursed"—what a character, and what a doom! Sin brings a curse, and, unless that curse be washed away by the blood of Christ, it clings to the sinner forever. Hence all that reject Christ are accursed. God himself pronounces them accursed; the Savior that died for them pronounces them accursed. Blessings were once offered to them, but they preferred curses, and such must be their portion forever. Each brought this ruin upon his own head, and thus he is self-accursed. God only pronounces upon him a state that he has himself chosen. He is accursed by the law, which he has broken; by the gospel, which he has rejected; and by his own conscience, which ratifies the sentence of the Judge as equitable and just.

Thank God, that day of retribution is not yet. Opportunity to accept Christ is still ours.

"While life prolongs its precious light, Mercy is found and peace is given."

"While God invites, how blest the day! How sweet the gospel's charming sound! 'Come, sinners, haste, O haste away, While yet a pardoning God is found.'"

ENDEAVOR NOTES.

The Minnesota Endeavorer, our state paper, arrived yesterday and is chuck full of complimentary items concerning the late convention.

Dr. Jannette McLaren writes from St. Paul that the effects of the convention are strongly noticeable there in an increased attendance at the prayer meetings and more earnestness throughout all departments. The same thing is reported here; at the late meetings of one of the large societies there has been an average attendance of ninety members while formerly that average was only sixty.

An item in the Golden Rule says that a St. Louis, Mo., society is furnishing scrap books of helpful clippings from religious papers, to the jails and hospitals. That is good, but better still, we have lately taken up the plan of aiding in the gospel services held in the county jail on Sunday afternoon. Last Sunday we furnished some special music and helped materially in vigorously singing the good old songs that stir a man's inmost soul. After the meeting we had personal talks with those behind the bars, and good results seem certain.

The union work for the coming year has not been thoroughly organized as yet but we are planning upon several lines, such as relief, organization of new societies, emphasizing good citizenship, creating a system of intervisitation among the city societies, etc., and hope to have some and emphasize all of these plans well established before long.

THE STAGE

"The Heart of Maryland," by Belasco, Is Scoring a Success.

Nearly Every New York Manager Had Refused to Produce It.

Neil Burgess's New Horse Race Play Makes a Profound Failure.

At the performance of "The Heart of Maryland," the other night, a Northern man suddenly found himself applauding the Southerners in a whole-hearted manner, says a New York correspondent. As soon as he realized what he was doing his hands fell to his sides, and he exclaimed: "Well, I'm blowed! I've sat through a great many war plays before this, but I never saw one yet that could make me sit up and blubber like a baby and give the Southerners the good hand. That fellow Belasco must be a corker."

The man who made this speech simply instanced one of the remarkable peculiarities of this play. Examine the manuscript and you would be forced to admit that Belasco has favored neither side; as far as words go he has remained strictly neutral. The heroine is a Southern girl, the hero a Northerner. The heroine naturally excites the most sympathy from the audience, but, as though to counteract this factional effect, both the villains in the play are Southerners. Perhaps, however, the most wonderful feat which Mr. Belasco has achieved is that before the curtain has fallen on the first act he has reduced the women's handkerchiefs to a briny pulp, and has obliged the men in his audience to take refuge in "sniffles." What other playwright has accomplished this? Look through the big successes of the last fifteen years, and if you can show me a single drama where tears have flowed with such alacrity as in "The Heart of Maryland," I will take off my hat to your superior knowledge.

Every American should rejoice at the success of "The Heart of Maryland." It means so much—not for David Belasco alone—and surely no man has ever served a longer and more bitter apprenticeship—but to all American playwrights this success is fraught with significance. It really begins to look as if the American dramatist is looking up.

So far this season there have been thrice great big successes—"The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Social Highwayman" and "The Heart of Maryland." The latter two of these plays are the work of American playwrights. The success of Belasco's play has set the teeth of every New York manager on edge. Nearly every manager had refused to produce it, because Belasco insisted that Mrs. Leslie Carter should be cast for the part of Maryland. The managers claimed that Mrs. Carter's unsavory record in the divorce court would prevent her from ever being accepted in New York, even if she were capable of playing so difficult a part. But so many actresses have been divorced since Mrs. Carter's affairs attracted public attention that the New York critics, without a single exception, have been obliged to acknowledge that she gives a peformance of which any actress might well be proud.

Yesterday, in speaking of "The Heart of Maryland," Belasco said: "Nobody knows what a fight I have had to get this play on the stage. Since my quarrel with Charles Frohman, my way seems to have been blocked every direction. Last year I had made all my arrangements with Mr. Palmer to produce the play at his theaters, when Frohman's 'New Woman' and 'The Fatal Card' companies were hurried in time. After that slap in the face I went from one manager to another, only to be turned down. Finally I met Max Bluinan. He and Charles Evans had just leased the Herald square. Bluinan read my play, and then he said to me, 'Dan, I'm a greenhorn in stage affairs, but that play is great. Even I can tell that. You go ahead and stage it at my expense. I don't care how much you spend. I'll foot the bills all right, and we'll open our next season with it at the Herald square.' You know the rest," continued Belasco. "I'll tell you another reason why I am so elated at my play's success. It has always been said that I could not write dialogue, and that in order for me to write a play that would be a success I must have a collaborator. This play, 'Heart of Maryland,' is all my own, and I am ready to stand or fall by it."

From present prospects, Mr. Belasco will stand.

"The Shop Girl," the latest importation from England, has only scored a partial success. It will never repeat the immense success here which it scored in London, because it is too much in the line of the Hoyt farce-comedies. Only words of praise, however, can be bestowed on the company, for a cleverer crowd of performers have never been sent over here. Young George Grossmith made the hit of the piece, and his song, "I'm Beautiful, Bountiful Bertie," is already being whistled on the streets. As one of the New York critics remarked, young Grossmith is not only the son of his father, George Grossmith, but he is the nephew of his uncle, Weedon Grossmith, an actor who, during his first season in this country, was chief comedian with dear, never-to-be-forgotten Rosina Vokes.

After Grossmith returned to England, Felix Morris played his parts, but his place was never filled, and although he has not appeared here for ten years now, New Yorkers have not forgotten him.

Young Grossmith's wife, Adelaide Astor, is also a member of the company. She is a pretty girl, who sings in a still, small voice. Her chief claim to distinction lies in the fact that she is a sister of the famous Gaiety dancer, Letty Lind. Miss Astor dances prettily and is agile, but the grace of the only Letty lies not in her toes. There are several young women in "The Shop Girl" who are already cutting a swath on the Rialto.

But to hark back to American plays again. There is a chance, a very strong probability, in fact, that when the Lyceum stock company comes back to the home theater they will appear, not in "The Home Secretary," as has been announced, but in "The Social Highwayman."

If this plan, which is now under consideration, is carried through, Miss Mary Stone, who wrote the play, will be paid a compliment of immense dimensions. The situation is simply this: The Hollands produced "The Social Highwayman" just at the close of their New York engagement. It only ran two weeks, and as it takes the New York public at least a month to get headed towards a new play, the consequence is that to the great bulk of the metropolitan public it is still an unknown quantity in all but name. Now, as the Hollands will not play in New York again this season, Daniel Frohman is negotiating with Mansfield to secure the New York rights in the play and produce it with Herbert Kelcey as the social highwayman and Fritz Williams as the faithful valet. This play would suit the Lyceum company down to the ground, and it is sincerely to be hoped that the project will be put through.

One of the later productions at the Lyceum in New York will be Pinero's "Benefit of the Doubt." In London his play has scored a genuine success. Bernard Shaw, in the Saturday Review, declares that it is worth a dozen "Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmiths" and "Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

Since Lillian Russell announced her intention of reappearing in tights once more bids for the contract have been pouring into Manager Abbey's office. Miss Russell has elected to appear in "The Little Duke." The title possesses a certain face value, so it will not be changed, but it may be said at once that as Miss Russell is to play the title role, this particular duke will be little in name only.

A great deal of sympathy has been expressed for T. Pearsall Thorne, the young American composer, whose romantic opera, "Leonardo," is now running at the Garrick. Mr. Thorne has the misfortune to be rich as well as clever, and in consequence the critics of almost every morning paper roasted his music most unmercifully. Because it was not bright and pleasing? Oh, dear no. They were forced to admit that his work had improved immensely since "The Maid of Plymouth," but the criticism abused Mr. Thorne for presuming to write an opera and put it on the stage himself. The real true facts about this much-abused production are simply these: "The book of 'Leonardo,' as originally presented, was unpardonably bad. It deserved every 'roast' that it got, and more. A new version has now been made by Mrs. Madeline Lucretia Riley, which is a vast improvement. As for the score, well, in places his orchestration is weak, but it can honestly be said that since Reginald De Koven wrote 'The Fencing Master' have so many charming melodies been heard in an opera."

Neil Burgess, the actor, who made a fortune out of "The County Fair" chiefly because of the horse-race mechanism he devised for it, recently leased the Star theater in New York and inaugurated his management with a new play called "The Year One." The great feature of the play was to be a chariot race in which two four-horse teams were to appear to be running straight toward the audience. Of what happened on the opening night of the production a New York critic writes:

"There have been fizzles and fizzles on the New York stage, but in the completeness of its list of casualties 'The Year One,' which was produced at the Star on Saturday night, bears off the palm. Its failure was so absolute that it ceased even to be funny, and from 11 o'clock in the audience sat there in stormy, wild-eyed silence waiting for the grand chariot race which was to recompense them completely for all that had gone before.

"The play never ended. What became of the hero and heroine, the charioteers and the vestal virgins is still a mystery. The horses that should have won became balky and refused to budge an inch. The horses attached to the other chariot rushed madly on to victory. After this catastrophe Mr. Burgess decided to tempt fate no longer. The curtain was rung down and the audience rushed from the house. Upstairs in the gallery a few hisses were heard, but the good nature of the audience quenched them quickly.

"If the misconduct of the horses had been the only catastrophe, there would still be some hope for 'The Year One.' Something always does go wrong with Mr. Burgess' animals on a first night. Who that saw her will never forget that memorable cow at the opening performance of 'The County Fair,' who distinguished herself by trying to jump into the orchestra and various other specialties? But the blame for the failure of 'The Year One' lies at the door of the author, Charles Barnard. Mr. Barnard has written an absolutely inane play. Whenever it attempts to be funny it only succeeds in being vulgar. Neil Burgess, in the dual role of the Emperor Caesar and a vestal virgin was not in the least amusing. When this actor puts on women's clothes he can play the part of a New England spinster without giving offense. The bad taste of his performance of the vestal virgin might be condoned if it were clever, but Mr. Burgess simply repeated his well known impersonations of Aunt Abby and the Widow Bedott.

"When it is remembered that this play has been in rehearsal for more than three months and that the production has been postponed no less than three times in order to give a smooth performance, it seems almost incredible that such an exhibition has been made.

"As far as could be seen from Saturday's performance, the patent chariot scene is merely the treadmill scene of 'The County Fair' reversed. The horses run toward the audience instead of across the stage."

Henry Irving's opening night in New York in "Macbeth" was marked by an interesting incident which is thus recounted in the Evening Sun:

After the last curtain had fallen both Mr. Irving and Miss Terry were called out several times. Finally the English actor advanced to the footlights. The theater doors had by that time been thrown open and part of the audience had reached the lobby. The crowds flocked back obediently, however, and stood at the rear of the orchestra on tiptoe, straining their ears to catch a syllable.

It was evident that Mr. Irving was talking, because those who had opera glasses assured those who had none that they could see his mouth moving. But so far as the speech itself is concerned it will probably remain forever a mystery. Mr. Irving had been speaking for about a minute when suddenly there was an explosion behind the scenes, and Mr. Cooper appeared on the stage as though shot from the mouth of a cannon. He looked fearfully frightened and embarrassed, but he had presence of mind enough to bow and get off the stage as quickly as he could.

Mr. Irving spoke for another minute, then bowed and the curtain fell. Five minutes later Manager Bram Stoker was surrounded by a crowd of morning newspaper reporters, all asking for the words of Mr. Irving's speech.

"I am awfully sorry that I can't oblige you," said Mr. Stoker. "But I didn't hear the speech."

"Nobody heard the speech," cried the reporters in unison; "that's the trouble."

"Excuse me, gentlemen. I'll go and ask Mr. Irving about it," said Stoker.

Ten minutes later Mr. Stoker returned. His face had fallen about a foot.

"Really this is too bad, gentlemen. I have seen Mr. Irving and Mr. Irving seems to be as much in the dark as any one else. He says that he hasn't the least recollection of what he said."

It is a pity that Queen Victoria knighted Henry Irving. His English is now worse than ever. As far as it could be understood at all by the audience it seemed to be a cross between the argot of Richard Harding Davis and the patois of Chimmie Fadden.

In the production of "Macbeth" which was shown at Abbey's last night Mr. Irving has broken his own record of stage spectacles. Surely no such eerie panorama was ever seen upon a stage before. It seemed as though the stage scenery and lime light had risen superior for once to human histrionic effort. It was certainly the scenic effects rather than the acting of Mr. Irving and his company that awed the audience last night.

In all matters of detail it was almost a perfect performance. The one thing lacking was a libretto. And to all but the most letter perfect of Shakesperean students a libretto was a positive necessity when Mr. Irving was on the stage Never was the reading of this actor so absolutely unintelligible, and in no part that he has played here are his mannerisms so painfully apparent. This was the greater pity from the fact that Mr. Irving's conception of Macbeth was in many ways unconventional and directly at variance with all stage traditions.

Mrs. Langtry who declined to come to America last season, breaking her contract with T. Henry French, has not left the stage, says the World. She has just started on a tour of English provinces with the plays called "Gossip" and "The Polka." Evidently she intends to continue her operations for the news comes that she is now looking for a West End theater in London. Nobody understands this woman. She is credited with a very level business head. Yet she gives up her American tour, under the direction of an influential manager, for—the English provinces. These remarks are not made in any bitterness of spirit, for Mrs. Langtry never will be missed.

A handsome young girl applied for a position in the chorus of "The Wizard of the Nile" at the New York Casino. She said she had sung with Francis Wilson, De Wolf Hopper and other opera stars. She was accordingly engaged on trial. She gave her name as Miss Lisle Meade. Miss Meade proved an earnest worker and was at once looked upon as a valuable addition to the company. She seemed to enjoy the work and asked to "understudy." She desired, she said, to ultimately venture into grand opera. A great surprise was in store for her associates. On Tuesday night, before the performance had concluded it was noticed that two nuns were walking up and down near the stage of the theater, as if waiting for some one. They waited until the members of the chorus began to come out and when Miss Meade made her appearance one of them stepped forward and said something to her in a low voice, which sounded like "Sister Grace!" Miss Meade gave a smothered scream, yet followed the two nuns to a shadow of the Casino building, where for a few moments afterwards she was observed to be weeping bitterly. At last she withdrew from them and re-entered the Casino by the stage door, and soon appeared with a bundle of clothes. She has not since been seen by anyone. The mystery of her disappearance was explained by a roommate. Miss Meade had confided to her that she had run away from a suburban convent to join the comic opera company, and that a sister of hers was one of the superiors of the institution.

Lillian Russell on tour engages almost an entire floor of the various hotels at which she stops. This does not mean that Lillian needs an entire floor herself. Traveling with her are Susan Leonard, her sister; Owen Westford, her brother-in-law; Fred Ross, another brother-in-law, who is her private secretary; her sister Nannie and three nieces. Now and then, furthermore, a sister joins her for a week. And, of course, she has Welsh rarebit parties sometimes.

Ellen Beach Yaw is in London again, after several weeks' sojourn in Paris. Her American season will begin about Jan. 15. Her concerts are limited to fifty in number, and will be given in the large cities only.

Dorothy Morton makes an ideal Cleopatra in her teens, says Theatrical Tidings. It is worth noting that this young prima donna is on the threshold of an important career. She looks not unlike Sybil Sanderson and her voice is remarkably clear and brilliant.

Mr. Kendall, manager of the Holyoke Opera house, is disgusted with the performance given recently in his theater by a certain melodrama company, and he talks of making an effort to organize the New England managers into an association to protect themselves against poor companies that travel on the strength of reputations gained in the past, says the Dramatic Mirror.

LYCEUM ATTRACTIONS.

Theater-goers in this city who are lovers of good musical farce comedy have a rare treat in store for them. Donnelly and Girard, whose success in their new comedy, "The Rainmakers," has been the event of the theatrical season in New York, will be seen in this city at the Lyceum next Monday and Tuesday, and will present the comedy in its entirety. Just as it was given during its phenomenally successful run in the metropolis. The original company, all of the scenery, electrical and mechanical effects with which it is equipped will be used here, and as perfect a production as it is possible to conceive will be presented.

Primrose & West's minstrels are booked to appear at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Whereas said mortgage and the principal note thereby secured contain provisions that if any default be made in the payment of any installment of interest thereon when the same becomes due, then and in any such case, the said mortgagee may elect without notice that the whole principal sum thereby secured and all accrued interest thereon shall immediately become due and payable and may enforce payment thereof by foreclosure or other legal measures; and

Whereas default was made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said note and mortgage due November 1st, 1895, amounting to the sum of forty (40.00) dollars, the payment of which was secured by said mortgage, by reason whereof the undersigned mortgagee and legal holder of said note and mortgage has elected to exercise said option and has heretofore duly declared and does hereby declare the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage with all accrued interest thereon, to be now due and payable, and

Whereas no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned and pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz.: All those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered twenty-nine (29), block six (6), and the easterly ten (10) feet of lot thirty (30), block six (6), all in Princeton Place Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, which said premises with the hereditaments and appurtenances will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and taxes (if any) on said premises and fifty (50.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County at the front door of the court house in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Monday, the 23rd day of December, A. Winter Gowns Are Charming and Very Rich in Color Contrasts.

Ladies of Social Prominence Now Discard Nightgowns for Pajamas.

Pretty Hats for First Half of Winter and Some Fashion Notes.

The season when opera and afternoon teas, dinner parties, and social functions of varying degrees of importance become the absorbing theme of life will soon be with us again, and meanwhile the numerous elegancies of dress which will be in demand later are perplexing the feminine mind, says the New York Sun. The question as to what particular styles will prevail is not easily answered until the new modes appear on dress parade for public approval; but if elaborate preparations are any indication of things in prospect, this season will surpass all others in the richness of its materials and lavish extravagance in all the minor accessories of dress.

Embroideries such as were a feature of fashion in the time of Marie Antoinette, wrought out by hand in exquisite harmony of color on a white satin ground, are one of the distinguishing characteristics of the latest imported gowns. Small pieces of this embroidery are used for vests and collar bands, narrow yokes, and wide-draped revers, with such good effect that very little trimming of any sort is needed. Besides these embroideries, which are invariably worked by hand in the form required, there is a great variety of bands of machine embroidery in open designs and equally artistic colors, which are much less expensive. Fine beads and glittering sequins added to these make them very showy and a very good substitute for the fine needlework.

Real laces of various kinds add elegance, as well as expense to many of the handsomest gowns, and the woman who possesses some fine old lace can find no end of uses for it this season. Short lengths make pretty hat trimmings, and evening dresses can absorb almost any amount. Venetian rose point, Brussels point de gaze, Italian point, Renaissance lace, and guipure, are much used for dress trimmings, but for those who can't afford the genuine article there are lovely compensations among the imitation laces, which are more attractive than ever. While collars of Renaissance and the heavier laces are elaborately jetted and traced with gold thread to make them more showy, and lace treated in this way covers revers, collar bands, and vests with great effect. Very pretty waists for evening gowns, of striped, flowered, or plain satin, either high or low neck, are made of fine lace traced with gold thread, arranged over chiffons and a white silk lining. The sleeves should be of silk like the skirt or of plain white chiffon, with a trimming of the lace. A narrow vest of painted satin, with a tiny frill of colored velvet down either side, is a pretty addition; and the combination is especially pretty for a black and white striped gown.

Full waists of plain chiffon are used for evening, and are made quite up to date by a rich belt of colored mirlor velvet; so it is possible to freshen up a last year's evening gown in a very acceptable manner, despite the fact that the latest models have waists and skirts alike. Sleeves are sometimes of a contrasting material, and a very charming illustration of this is a gown of purple pink satin, with black mousseline-de-soie sleeves and neck trimming. The sleeves are very short, arranged in a series of deep puffs up and down, with bands of beaded trimming between, and the frill around the neck is very full, and caught at one side with a large velvet orchid.

Sleeves of evening gowns, with very few exceptions, are perceptibly shorter than they were last season and stand out in full round puffs or short double frills. The latest sleeve for day gowns is decidedly the Marie Antoinette style fitted closely above the elbow with a short draped puff at the top, which varies a little in length and fulness according to the material. So it is safe to prophesy smaller sleeves in the near future. Of course, large full puffs are still worn, but they have lost their stiffening, and many of them are arranged plain at the armhole on top to give length to the shoulder, and the fullness is plaited in at the side and under the arm. These sleeves are very long and shaped in a long point, which falls over the hand and is often made dressy by a frill of lace.

VARIETY IN SKIRTS.

Skirts show some variety in the cut, and Paquin, who is the leader in this branch of the dressmaker's art, shows a new model which exceeds all others in point of fullness. It is plaited across the back and on the hips, falling in soft folds instead of the stiff godets, which are apparently quite out of fashion. Another skirt which is shown as a new model is very full, cut circular at the side, and gauged instead of plaited at the waist across the back. The front has a plait on either side which follows the seam to the bottom and has the appearance of a wide box plait. The most successful of skirts are lined with silk, not so much for the luxury of a silk lining as for necessity, because the little stiffness silk can give is needed, now that hair cloth has been discarded, except for a very narrow facing. Skirts of evening dresses are made quite plain or trimmed, if at all, down either side of the front breadth, which is sometimes made of a contrasting color and material.

The most fascinating gowns for evening and for bridesmaids at a full-dress wedding are made of flowered satins with a Louis XVI coat, or a long pointed waist, with full paniers on the skirt and close sleeves with a full short puff at the top. Chine silks, which are not so expensive, are very popular for evening gowns, and make very good copies of the old-time dresses. A waist which can be worn with a last season's skirt, especially if it is white, is made of white China silk scattered over with a chintz pattern and trimmed with fine, creamy lace. Another combination for extending the usefulness of an old skirt is a bodice of white mousseline de soie striped with narrow black lace insertion. Black velvet jet applique forms a band around the decollete neck, and turquoise blue satin sleeves give the touch of color.

A very stylish gown is a good illustration of the elegance displayed among the imported evening costumes. It is made of heavy pearl-colored satin, with bright-colored bouquets of chine flowers scattered over it. The skirt is immensely full, and the bodice is cut in the Louis XVI fashion, with coat sides, opening over a Dresden china green velvet vest. Diamond buckles fasten the velvet where it is caught up at the neck. The sleeves are of green velvet, and the wide collar is of silk, edged with handsome lace. Quite in contrast is a simple gown of plain white satin lined with pink silk, which has a full bodice of white chiffon over a tight-fitting lining of white silk. Pink ribbon embroidered with silver sequins frames the low, square neck, and hangs in looped bretelles from either shoulder. Long fringed ends from the right side pass under the draped pink sash and fall on the skirt, and pointed epaulets of lace lined with pink and embroidered with silver sequins partially cover the sleeves.

Another gown, which has more of the old-time charm about it, shows a tablier front of rose velvet, trimmed across the bottom with lace. The pointed waist and short puffed sleeves are of velvet decorated with point de Flandres arranged around the shoulders like a fichu, which is looped at the neck in front to form a butterfly effect. The skirt is of rose and yellow chine flowered silk. Another dress of pale blue chine silk represents a very different style. The skirt is cut so full that it falls in plaits at the side as well as the back, and the full bodice of pale blue chiffon has an Empire belt of green velvet decorated with miniature buttons. The sleeves are simply a double frill of silk, like the skirt, over which falls the drapery of Brussels lace, which extends all around the neck. A showy gown, of yellow duchesse satin, is trimmed on either side of the skirt with an applique of real lace, with raised flowers and tiny brilliants for the center and a large bow of pale green velvet ribbon at the foot. The odd-shaped revers is of green velvet, covered with an applique of lace. The bodice of pale yellow chiffon is very nearly covered by the wide draped belt of yellow satin, and green velvet bows adorn one side of the neck.

A pretty coat bodice for theater and demi-dress occasions is the waist of a black and white striped silk gown. It is made of black satin-finished velvet, and the revers are of pale blue silk, covered with lovely old-fashioned embroidery. The vest is of creamy lace over white satin, with a frill of edging down either side, and the belt is of pale blue. The back is plain and closely fitted without seams, and finished with a narrow plaited basque.

The combination of novelty silks and velvets with dark wool gowns is very effective, and is used for the entire bodice, or a part, combined with the wool. An example of this is shown in bodice of a dark brown cloth gown where the lower part of the waist, from a narrow yoke, is of the flowered silk, except a narrow band of cloth down the middle of the back and either side of the front, which is of white cloth, showing only the width of a wide seam from the neck to the belt. The silk is edged all around with Persian lamb, little points of white cloth fall over the dark collar, and a tiny roll of fur finishes the bottom of the waist. A black satin bodice for a black crepon dress shows a wide collar of black net embroidered in sequins and bordered by a frill of plaited chiffon. Another and very simple waist for a checked tweed morning dress is of olive green cloth, with a deep yoke and sleeves of shot purple and green silk. Brown fur trims the neck, sleeves, and edge of the basque. The only feature of the last bodice is the wide collar of heavy cream lace embroidered elaborately with jet.

SOME HINTS ON DRESS.

Gowns and Clothes to Match the Eyes.

Fashions as they walk abroad in midseason between summer and winter are an incongruous patchwork of odds and ends from the past season, brightened by an occasional costume made in the latest, most wintry fashion. Straw hats and fetching novelties in winter millinery walk side by side, while pale summery tints and the dark, rich hues of autumn furnish still more striking contrasts. It requires an expert to discover anything especially new in the color scheme of the new fashions, except in the novel combinations and the fresh names which periodically present themselves to vary the monotony of the plain browns, greens, blues, reds and yellows which have already been well honored by time. Benares red, Russian green, Marie Antoinette blue, bishop's purple, and dead-leaf brown are some of the old colors with new names, and the tints which really delude us with a gloss of novelty are the amethyst shades of pale pink and deeper violet, lizard green, and lapis lazuli, which deepens into purple, and the varying shades of dull red with plenty of yellow in it. These Oriental colors are beautifully combined in the chameleon velvets and brocaded silks, as well as in the elegant embroideries and fancy bead trimmings which so generously decorate the latest gowns, and stamp them as new.

Color is an important element in the art of dressing well and becomingly, it is best to consider it very carefully when making a selection for any article of dress which comes near the face. The woman who possesses good taste very readily discovers which color sets off her complexion to the best advantage; but she who is not quite so successful in her estimate of effects may safely follow the prescribed rule for using the color of the eyes as the keynote of color in dress. If the eyes are blue, even though they are hopelessly pale, blue near the face will give them a deeper shade, a brighter expression, and make any color with which blue can be successfully combined becoming.

Any woman who studies effect will soon see that the color which intensifies the color of her eyes is the one which is most becoming every time. Pale blue and pink should be carefully avoided by women with red hair, as they exaggerate rather than soften the natural coloring; but they will never make any mistake with any of the dark shades of brown, especially the red brown. Brown is also the color for a brown-eyed woman, as it will bring out the beauty of her eyes as no other color can if she but chooses the right shade. Gray is becoming to women with gray hair and to young women who have gray eyes and lovely complexions, while white is becoming to almost every one, old or young, providing she selects the right tint. The blonde can wear the pure white without a tinge of yellow or pink in it, but the brunette must be careful to wear the soft cream shades, and if she wears black at all it must be very glossy, while a pronounced blonde can safely deck herself in the dull black which is used for mourning. Green is the color which is pretty sure to be suitable to every complexion, providing one is fortunate enough to discover the particular shade which harmonizes best with her coloring; and so it happens that green is the leading color this season, especially the strong dark shades of metallic green, and, as every conceivable tint in nature's garden semes to be reproduced in materials and trimmings, it is a simple matter to find the right one.

A shade called willow green is very attractive on a woman with pink and white complexion, and a very effective gown of this is made of smooth cloth, which is used for the skirt and vest only, while the bodice is a Louis XVI coat of satin in a much lighter shade of green, scattered lightly with pink flowers and darker green leaves. This is finished on all the edges with a very narrow band of dark brown fur, and cream lace is fulled down either side of the front, partially covering the narrow vest of plain cloth, like the skirt.

CONTRASTS NOT POPULAR.

Decided contrasts of color are not so popular as they were in the spring, and in their place we have a more pleasing harmony of two or three shades of one color in as many different materials, all combined in one gown. And when strong contrasts are used at all the shades are most carefully chosen, so that they blend prettily together without being striking. Dull green satin, covered with an applique of lace, makes a very stylish vest and basque frills for a dark blue gown, and one very stunning combination in green is a grass-green cloth dress piped with a paler shade and a full vest of green miroir velvet, stamped with an Oriental pattern in rose and gold color. The daintiest reception dress which the French dressmaker can produce is made of pale gray cloth with a narrow tablier of gray velvet down the front of the skirt and a narrow applique of white lace down either side. The waist is a short coat of the cloth, which has a zouave effect in front, where it opens over a full white chiffon vest trimmed with fine white lace. A wide collar of gray velvet trimmed around with an applique of lace to match the skirt and an additional frill of edging make the gown very charming and almost striking in effect, because it is all in one color.

Wide collars are still a part of dress decoration, although they are not as universal as they were in the spring, but they exceed all their predecessors in fullness, width and trimming, and collar bands are also very much trimmed with ruffles of lace, velvet or silk plaited in the upper edge to stand up like a ruche or fall over it in a soft frill. There are all sorts of pretty designs for the full vests of the coat waists which are so fashionable this season, and among these is a front of miroir velvet trimmed across with bands of guipure insertion edged with tiny frills of chiffon. Other vests of velvet are embroidered with jet and silk, and old-fashioned red silk handkerchiefs, patterned all over in gold and brown, are effectively plaited into form. The vest for a dark blue gown, Persian velvets, with many soft colors indescribably blended, and the pattern traced with jet and spangles, are used for vests, and also for the entire bodice of wool gowns, with sleeves like the skirt, and, after all, it is the erratic little fancies of fashion which are the most tempting.

A prominent gown is of dark green cloth, and the bodice, which is round and quite plain in the back, has a full front of green velvet embroidered in an applique of light green velvet, gold thread and fine jet, and a chemisette of fine creamy lace. A round zouave of the cloth, trimmed on the edge with the same applique, falls on either side, and the belt and collar, which has a ruche of lace, are of plain velvet; while the sleeves of cloth are made in the Marie Antoinette style, wrinkled from the wrist to three or four inches above the elbow, where the short draped puff begins.

Another very unusual gown is of blue cloth, covered to the depth of five-eighths of a yard around the bottom of the skirt with blue silk, the same shade, plaided with narrow stripes of black velvet and finished at the top with a milliner's fold of cloth. The waist and sleeves, to the elbow, are of the silk, and bib-shaped pieces of cloth embroidered at the top with jet, are arranged in front and back alike, while over the shoulders are draped pieces of black chiffon edged with plaited frills.

A pretty model for a young lady's dinner dress is carried out in striped silk with a white ground. The close sleeves are of lace over plain white silk, and the butterfly puffs are of the stripe. The full bodice has a lace yoke to correspond with the sleeves, and is trimmed with bows and braces of ribbon to match one of the colors in the stripe. Another gown of dull red brocade has a blouse of black and green shot miroir velvet, and a zouave and sailor collar of guipure traced with gold thread. A Louis XVI coat of green brocaded silk is trimmed on either side of the lace vest with loops of jet and fancy buttons, and the fancy cravat is of plain velvet of a lighter shade.

Fancy or blouse waists, except for theater wear, are a very smart part of the new fashions, but they are still worn in the evening, and here are two charming little models. The first is of cream silk muslin over white, and trimmed crosswise with narrow insertions of yellow lace and tiny frills of the muslin edged with lace over the shoulders and at the neck. The sleeves are of pale blue silk, flowered with pink blossoms, and the collar and waistband are of blue satin ribbon. The other is a baby waist of white chiffon with bands of violet ribbon, ornamented with applique lace flowers, carried down front and back. The sleeves are of chine silk, and bows of violet ribbon finish off the shoulders.

SOME FRENCH FASHIONS.

Flaring Skirts Make Wearers Look Quite Youthful.

It is said that the flaring skirt persists because it gives a look of youth to the figure. Clearly it is charming, charming as another will be when it comes; though I had rather find the main explanation of its youthfulness in its profile, in the outlines that converge upward so rapidly as to make the eye believe that the waist is small, says Ada Cone in the Chicago Record. These lines, so positive, cause the eye to lose all notion of the figure beneath, and whether the figure is old or young does not appear. This seems to be the secret; also this aim to produce a small waist has been that of all other dress that has gone before, where the end has been reached by other means.

ACCENTUATING A SMALL WAIST.

When fashion is for a skirt full at the top then the bodice is depended upon to give the small waist. Then the bodice is tight and smooth and sharply pointed and cuts far down into the skirt, so as to make the waist look some half as long again as it is by nature. Dress was thus cut in Marie Antoinette's time and has been so cut in our own not very long ago. But when the bodice is round, then the skirt, with the outlines it has today, takes the responsibility for the waist; and when the bodice is not only round but a full blouse there is an enhanced charge put upon the skirt, which makes it flare still more at the edges. And this alteration between bodice and skirt has been going on ever since Eleanor of Castile, dressed in round bodice, huge sleeves and a flaring skirt, with very much the same outline as the dress of today, came to France to be the wife of Francis I, which is to say ever since French dress became an art.

With this principle in mind one may venture to predict that the godet skirt, or one similar in profile, will be worn until the time comes for a change in the bodice. As yet there has appeared no very credible sign of a turn in the wheel.

OTHER CHANGES DOUBTFUL.

The movement for drapings was started last year by one or two great dressmakers whose fortune was made by draped gowns at the time of the empire, and who naturally therefore regard them with reminiscent favor. But dress is not ruled today by a dressmaker's souvenirs.

There is talk also of princess gowns, and certain ones are in fact being worn. Over these, too, the dressmakers are sanguine. A new style is so ardently desired. For myself I believe less in them as an established revival than in the overskirts, and for the practical reason, among others, that it is so extremely difficult to cut bodices and skirt together so as to give a small waist effect and a look of elegance that it can be accomplished only by dressmakers of the greatest skill. Such dressmakers are not within reach of a great many women. The princess form therefore can hardly become popular. Moreover, the class of rich women do not lead the mode. And for the rest, as long as a small waist is the ideal, the bodice and the skirt are naturally two distinct garments, and not only is no advantage gained, but it is a lapse from taste to run them into one.

The princess gowns that have been made have a bulge in the seams below the waist at the back, a sort of perfunctory bustle. This element appeared last spring in connection with the Louis XVI models. It may have importance and it may not.

The velvet stock collar, drawn to a squeeze and fastened behind, has persisted through all the past heat, and so must be vital enough to go on for some time to come. An alternative was offered during the summer in a square neck, old Venetian style, but it was accepted by no one but the petite bourgeoise out on a holiday, so condirmed has taste become for neck swathings. Meanwhile throats are getting feeble and scrawny.

ENLARGING SLEEVES SURVIVE.

The sleeve does not fall, but grows apace. Though the dressmakers continue to say that their most elegant clients demand and wear only sleeves of moderate size, yet all things are measured by comparison, and these moderate sleeves require some meters of cloth. Fortunately few women attempt the wear of a jacket.

They have imagined in place of jackets a sleeveless garment with floating drapery over the arms, half jacket, half cape, and some ravishing garments have been made on this model. The furriers in particular have fallen upon the idea as a resource, and fur jackets with sleeves promise to be this year the exception and not the rule. But capes, particularly in fur, will be the standing order of the day.

And the famous flowered silks that were to have revolutionized the mode have been reduced to the place of mere trimmings to garnish plain silk and cloth.

Plaids, on the other hand, have kept good their place and will remain stable all winter. The secret of this is that the design is merely the regular alteration of colored threads in the loom, and so is one of the simplest expressions to which a pattern can be reduced, and at the same time it has great variety; therefore it does not fatigue the eye, but appears always new. It is used for skirts and sleeves, while the blouse is draped with chiffons and galoons. It also has found this autumn a novel use as an accessory, and plaid neckties and plaid shirt fronts are affected by young women of dash. With bicycle dress these look particularly well.

But passementerie is the most important factor in the demi-season dress. Read for passementerie all sorts of open work garnitures of cord, whether silk, wool, gold or silver, mingled with appliques of velvet or cloth cut in fine patterns, and enrichments of jet, jewels and fur, also stamped galoons, embroideries, lace, ribbons and buttons. In the absence of any positive new forms these give variety to the dress. They are used more or less on the skirt, somewhat on the sleeves, and are deluged upon the blouse. They also make part of the substance of rich evening cloaks. Special forms are devised for the blouse, yokes with pendant bands running to the belt, heart-shaped decolete pieces, entire skeleton blouses to be laid over colored stuffs, etc.

Today France is the principal manufacturer of these garnitures, and possesses the authority to bring them into fashion. It is a very pretty affair in the matter of business, and the advantage is to be explained wholly in the domain of taste. France is able to create a demand that only herself can supply, because she has pursued the policy of making her artisans artists. All the world chooses to buy what is most beautiful, and the details and ensemble of feminine dress are no exception to the rule.

SOME NEW TOILETS.

A plaid street dress, in which red and brown predominate. The skirt is open each side the front to disclose a plaiting of brown velvet, and a large enameled wood button is at the head of each opening. The sleeve is very close on the lower part, with the material shirred in the seam, and is open, with three buttons like those on the skirt, but small, that fasten with cords. The fullness of the upper part falls below the elbow. The blouse has brown velvet bretelles laid in folds, wide on the shoulders, so as to fall out upon the sleeves, and passing under the velvet belt. The bretelles are garnished with buttons like those on the skirt, a row of three across each, to form the line of the yoke. With this gown a toque of black braided felt, with a rosette of green ivy leaves and berries on each side the front, a large rosette of red faille ribbon on each side of the back and a wall of black coque blades rising high between front and back.

A blue serge, made for Biarritz. The skirt is trimmed with clusters of stitching. The bodice is a fitted jacket with little basque in godets, the fronts rounded at bottom and open over a shirt of blue and green plaid. A large square collar covers the shoulders and falls in plaits on the front, where it falls into the jacket edge as revers. All the edges are stitched. Wide belt of jersey elastic, with yellow leather fastenings; white linen turn-down collar, with assorted necktie; black tarpaulin sailor hat, with yellow leather band and coque blade at one side; white point-applique veil.

Visiting dress of brown wool with moire pattern. It is richly trimmed with passementerie of brown cord, having all the pattern outlined with brown fur. The skirt has medallions of the passementerie appliqued at intervals along the edge. The bodice is fitted behind, with a double box plait down the middle, and the front opens in form of a figaro jacket over a bouffant front of yellow silk that has its plaits ruffled with brown satin ribbon. The revers and sleeve-tops have applications of the passementerie. Cape of the same moire wool with a yoke of the passementerie and a luxurious collar of sable that rolls high round the face.

Dinner blouse of white lace over rose. Sleeves of same reaching the elbow, only and very much draped. Garniture of white ribbon flowered with rose a la pompadour. The ribbon forms a series of loops across the bust, running each way from a rosette at the center, and a neck garniture of the ribbon forms a fanciful bow at the back.

Rich cape for visiting dress. On a foundation of myrtle-green satin is laid a cape of black lace not as long by some inches. The edge of the green is bordered with fur and the fur has the upper edge cut out in scallops to fit the edge of the lace, and all is appliqued down upon the green. High fur collar, with short ends.

Theater toque in form of a Spanish turban, very flat, with a considerable flare. It is of gray-blue velvet trimmed with roses and transparent iridescent wings, arranged together as rosettes. A black pompon rises high at one side.

PAJAMAS FOR WOMEN.

Change in Women's Sleeping Attire Is Coming.

The night dress, with its dainty frills and furbelows of lace and embroidery, must go because the up-to-date girls say so. She declares that as soon as the set she has on hand wears out, she will never have another. What will she sleep in? Why, pajamas, of course, made after the same pattern as those worn by her brother and of the same material. The head of a men's furnishing store in New York, which sets the style in wearing apparel for the smart set, said the other day:

"It certainly is a wonder that none of the dry goods stores keep pajamas for women in their stock of ready-made underwear, because all the fashionable women are beginning to wear them, and it is only a matter of time until there will be absolutely no demand for night dresses. We do not deal in goods for women at all, except that we make shirt waists to order for them, but we could do a driving trade in pajamas for women if we only had them in stock. A call comes for them every day or two. When a suggestion is made that the customer have her measure taken for the garments to be made for her, she backs right down and gets out in a hurry.

Why this should be the case I do not understand, because there is very little measuring to be done, since there is so little fit in pajamas. The waist, chest, inseam, and back measurements are all that are necessary, and I'm positive of one thing, those women who have adopted pajamas will never return to night dresses. We made up a half dozen suits for a fashionable woman not long ago, and she says that they are the greatest things out. They were made of cotton madras in delicate shades of pink and blue, and cost her $9 each, but there is more wear in a pair of pajamas than there is in half a dozen gowns, and it doesn't cost near so much to have them laundered. Because they cannot be bought ready made is no sign that they are not being worn by women. They either make them at home or have them made by a seamstress."

THEIR ADVANTAGES.

When a woman, who has had two years' practical experience in sleeping in these half-Chinese night garments, was asked what their advantages are over the regulation night dress, she answered most emphatically:

"Nobody could appreciate the merits of pajamas who has not tried them, and it is astonishing to the uninitiated to note how many women are beginning to wear them. If a woman ever sleeps in pajamas on either a very hot or a very cold night she will cast aside the night dress with its great possibilities of daintiness and beauty without a qualm, for pajamas are much cooler in summer and much warmer in winter. The way that I came to adopt them was rather amusing. My husband and I were taking a night trip from New York to Washington about two years ago. When I began to get ready to go to bed I found that my bag had been left behind, and I couldn't imagine what I should do for a night dress. My husband suggested in a joking way that I put on his pajamas, and before he had time to draw a good breath I was in them and in bed. They were made of white Japanese silk, and it was delicious not to be bothered with five or six yards of stiff frilling around my neck and sleeves and down the front. After that I kept borrowing his pajamas until he had some made for me. Those made of cotton madras are very pretty and cool, and this goods comes in lovely shades as well as white. Raw silk, Japanese silk, and twilled silk make up beautifully, and the material looks just as well when ready for the rag bag as when perfectly new. I use them a great deal in summer also, but for winter wear I have half a dozen pairs made of fine French flannel, and never know what it is to catch cold. Then pajamas have another advantage, especially in traveling. They take the place of a wrapper in a sleeping car. No man or woman should mind walking through the car in pajamas, because there is nothing in the least immodest about them."

"But they are such ugly things; and what will the woman do who is accustomed to doubling up her knees and wrapping her feet up in the tail of her night dress?" was asked in protest.

"They are not ugly," answered the advocate of pajamas. "Indeed, I know at least two dozen women who look better in pajamas than in anything else. I have specially in mind a small dark girl with masses of black, wavy hair and large brown eyes. She affects pajamas made of Japanese silk in fancy designs and gay colors, and I assure you she looks much more fetching than she does in a night dress made of muslin and lace, and I never saw a blonde woman yet who didn't look well in pajamas made either of madras or silk in pale blue and white or pale pink and white stripes or figures. A white ground with a colored fleur-de-lis design is specially popular with blondes just now. Now, as to the habit of women sleeping with their knees under their chins, that's one evil that pajamas will surely cure. There's no fun in doubling up if there's nothing to wrap the feet in, and of course there is nothing when one wears pajamas. Consequently a woman stretches out full length, which gives her blood a chance to circulate freely, and she sleeps much warmer and easier than where she tries to tie herself up in her nightgown, and then her bedfellow, if she has one, stands some show, too. Finally, one is less apt to take cold when pajamas are worn. They do not get all doubled up around one, and when the wearer wishes to throw off the cover she need have no fear of catching cold; and then, too, you know they are so much smaller than night dresses," she concluded as a clincher in favor of this new, new woman's fad.

WINTER MILLINERY.

Striking Revival of Former Styles Is Noticed.

The winter millinery presents many very elegant novelties and some striking revivals of former styles among the large picture hats, profusely trimmed with feathers, and the quaint Dutch bonnets, which are shaped very much like a child's hood, except that they do not entirely cover the head. These are usually made of black velvet, and the narrow roll which turns back in front is faced with some bright color. Long streamers of rather wide black satin ribbon are arranged to fall from one side at the back, while the bonnet is trimmed on the other side, nearer the front, with high standing black ostrich feathers and an osprey. There is said to be something magical in the effect of these bonnets, as they make young faces look younger and elderly ladies young, and yet they are not very becoming to long, thin faces.

The large hat is as flourishing as ever, but between this and the small flat bonnet there is every imaginable shape in medium size. Toques are very much worn, but they are larger and more elaborately trimmed than they were last season; in fact, all hats are very showy and picturesque in shape. Spangles in gorgeous colors and all sorts of glittering wings and buckles and brooches of rhinestones, pearls, jet, and steel are used for ornaments, and added to these are pins enameled in many colors. Miroir velvets, either plain or shot with another color, embroidered handsomely with gold and jet, or patterned all over in Oriental colors, are a distinctive feature of the new millinery, and are especially effective in the large full crowns of the wide-brimmed hats.

CHENILLE IS POPULAR.

Black and chameleon tinted chenille is much used with satin and velvet braid, which forms many of the new bonnets entire, and the fluted brims of many of the toques. Flowers have a conspicuous place on the list of trimmings, but they must be of velvet or they are not up to date. Capucine red and all the nasturtium shades are very popular beside purple popples and roses which are quite unlike any that ever bloomed.

Crimped velvet and silk make very pretty rosettes, and white, black and yellow laces are used in great abundance, alone and in combination with chiffon, for wings, rosettes, and high-standing aigrettes. The rage for applique lace is applied to millinery as well as gowns, and soft velvet crowns are effectively spotted with either black or white lace sprays. Ospreys of unusual length are a specialty this season, and are seen in either black, white, or colors on almost every hat and bonnet. The Louis XVI hats with rather wide brims and soft, large crowns caught up at one side are very much worn, and the trimming is of ostrich feathers and algrettes arranged in a bunch when the crown is raised, and sometimes velvet roses are added. Boat-shaped hats are still in fashion, and broad effects generally, in hats as well as bonnets, are worn. Strings are rarely seen except on bonnets for elderly ladies and on the eighteenth century bonnet, which has tulle strings tied under the chin.

Black velvet Tam o' Shanters are very jaunty little hats for young ladies, and they are trimmed on the side with quills and rhinestone ornaments, and at the back with dull red velvet roses. A so-called picture hat of black velvet is trimmed with nasturtium velvet in two shades and black feathers fastened with Egyptian ornaments. One of the fashionable toques has a crown of caracal fur and a full rim of plaited chiffon, edged with velvet. Feathers trim the side. A green velvet toque has a silver-spangled crown and a trimming of sable tails. This style of hat is usually accompanied by a fancy muff, which is made to match it. A large hat of black velvet has a twist around the crown and some loops of geranium pink satin ribbon. Four black tips and an algrette adorn the left side, and at the back under the brim a rosette of the pink ribbon nestles against the hair. Another very picturesque hat of black velvet shows a bell crown trimmed around with a band of black satin, which is fastened by an ornament of pearls and rhinestones, and at the back are black ostrich feathers held in place by bows of black satin ribbon, while other feathers curl over the side. Stiff silk beaver hats, in brown and black, and fashioned much like a man's hat, except that the brim is wider and the crown not so high, are worn by young ladies, and their only trimming consists of a small bow and two quills at one side. One of the novelties is a toque made of ribbon, and seven yards is the quantity required.

RAVELINGS OF FASHION.

Short double-breasted coats of black, brown or green velvet, faced on the revers and collar with fur, or white cloth edged with fur, are one of the novelties in outside garments. Large fancy buttons decorate the front. For more common wear there are coats of similar style with strapped seams and melon-shaped sleeves.

Russian collars with broad revers and high Medicl collars of fur, with narrow capes, are more fashionable than boas for those who can afford the luxury of such a trifle.

Necklets made of a band of fur four or five inches wide, finished in front with little beads and at the back with a big bow of velvet, are among the novelties in neck protectors, while others have lace ends or velvet tabs with velvet rosettes at the sides.

Ruffs of black chiffon, larger than any we have had before, are made very pretty with tiny bits of ostrich feathers on the edge like a fringe, and in addition to these are neck ruches of innumerable loops of velvet ribbon, a little more than an inch wide, or gauze ribbon with a satin edge, sewn to a satin ribbon two inches wide, which ties in a bow in front.

The newest models in capes are shaped to show the outline of the shoulder, which is not completely disguised by fluffy frills as it was in the spring; and the very daintiest things on the list are short capes for evening, made of white velvet patterned all over with shadowy roses.

Black satin ribbon, four or five inches wide and elaborately jetted, is used for trimming silk and velvet capes. It is sewn lengthwise at intervals all around, and the upper ends fold over in loops and are gathered in to partially form the ruche.

Brocaded silks in dark colors are made up into afternoon gowns for street wear.

One of the useful makeshifts of fashion is a wide collar and revers of satin, embroidered all over with jet and steel or gold and jet, which can be worn with any evening dress.

The latest sleeve is moulded to the arm from the wrist to two inches above the elbow, and the puff at the top is full, short and drooping.

Leather for dress waists is something unique in the winter fashions. It is tan in color, thin enough to be pliable, and is decorated with applique lace as if it were satin or velvet.

Fur trimmings from one to three inches wide are more in demand than ever, and they are in combination with lace, chiffon and dainty embroideries on the most dressy gowns. Stock collars, revers, wide belts and bretelles of fur are seen in the cloth gowns, and an entire bodice of fur is not unusual. Persian lamb, with cream lace on the waist of a black satin gown, makes a very elegant costume.

Another variety of the much-trimmed collar band is gained by tying the bow in front instead of at the back. If ribbon is used, one yard and a half is the necessary quantity. This passes around the back through a buttonhole, made in the ribbon at the back, and ties in front.

Six weeks ago I suffered with a very severe cold; was almost unable to speak. My friends all advised me to consult a physician. Noticing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised in the St. Paul Volks Zeitung I procured a bottle, and after taking it a short while was entirely well. I now most heartily recommend this remedy to anyone suffering with a cold. William Keil, 678 Selby avenue, St. Paul, Minn. For sale by all druggists.

VICE PRESIDENT HERE.

Masso Will Urge the Cuban Republic's Cause.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—Gen. Bartolme Masso, vice president of the Cuban republic and agent of the eastern, division, is believed to have landed in this country on Friday night from the steamer Leon, which arrived here at her wharf last night. The statement is denied, however, by Col. Nunez, of the local Cubans and Capt. Svanoe, of the Leon. It was stated on good authority that when she left that port she had on board Gen. Masso, his son, a young man about 22, Dr. Joaquin Castello, Senor Verona and twenty-five other Cubans. The four, it is stated were coming to this country in order to aid Delegate Palma to present to the American congress more fully the cause of free Cuba. While the Cubans in the United States desire to have their case made as strong as possible when the proper time comes, they have strongly advised against Gen. Masso leaving the island.

It is believed, however, that Masso has thrown these objections aside and has come here. Word was sent to New York and it was learned that 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Secretary Quesada, of the Cuban revolutionary party in this country, and H. S. Rubens, counsel for the revolutionists, met the visitors and went with them to New York.

The seizure of the steamer Laurida by the United States authorities created much excitement in maritime circles yesterday. Capt. John D. Hart, agent of the vessel in this city, said: "I leave tonight for Charleston and expect to be in the United States court in that city on Monday morning with my lawyers. I shall provide the amount of bail needed to release Capt. Hughes. I shall order the discharge of all the crew of the Laurida, excepting the captain, first and second officers and the chief engineer. I feel that the suit brought against her and the captain for violation of the neutrality laws and also one in libel by J. C. Kerr, of New York, cannot be proven. I know I will win the libel case and then I shall institute suit for damages for the loss sustained."

CLAIMS IT

State of Minnesota Wants Part of the Famous Section Thirty.

Lays Claim to the Northwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter.

The Land, it is Asserted, is of a Swampy Character.

Washington, Nov. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The famous section 30 case came up before the interior department under a new phase today. This time the state of Minnesota takes a hand in the controversy. Today John C. Judge, of Minneapolis, on behalf of Minnesota, through Robert C. Dunn, as state land commissioner, filed papers before the commissioner of the general land office claiming the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 30, subject to entry at Duluth, upon the ground that it is more than half wet and overflowed land and more than two-thirds part of the whole is unfit for cultivation.

No determination as to the character of this land has ever been made by the interior department and the state has ever been made by the interior department and the state has never heretofore attempted to submit any evidence going to show it is of a swampy nature. It is requested that opportunity be immediately given the agents of the state to prove by competent evidence the character of this land, and that pending this investigation all other claims to the land be held up. Affidavits are submitted from State Land Commissioner Dunn and Frank Plummer, surveyor, to the effect that the land is swampy, while a power of attorney is filed from R. C. Dunn and approved by Governor Clough, authorizing Judge to prosecute the case on behalf of the state.

Forty acres of land are involved and it is valued at all the way from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. Attorney Judge is confident that the swampy character of the land can be proved, and that more than one half of it is wet and overflowed, as contemplated by the act of congress, and is unfit for cultivation to the extent of an actual two-thirds part of the whole.

The effect of the filing of the state's claim for the land will be to suspend the patenting of the tracts to the successful contestants under the decision of Secretary Smith last spring.

The decision of Secretary Smith awarded the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter, which the state now claims as swamp land, to Houghton E. James. The latter subsequently relinquished his homestead entry on this land, and William Craig, manager of the Duluth Gas and Water company, filed Porterfield scrip on it.

MOPPING UP BLOOD.

Murderess of Her Husband Caught in the Gore.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 18.—A special to the Star from Wichita, Kan., says: Henry H. Leonard, aged 62 years, was murdered last night, and Mrs. Leonard, his second wife, and his son, Orville, are under arrest charged with the crime. At an early hour this morning John Carter, a teamster, found the dead body of Leonard horribly mangled, and lying in a pool of blood, half covered up in a manure pile back of the former's barn on South Lawrence avenue. There were many wounds on the head, made apparently with some blunt instrument, and a knife wound on the back.

A trail of blood showed that the body had been dragged along the alley for over a block. The trail was followed through the Leonard stable yard and up to the kitchen door, where Mrs. Leonard and her son were found mopping up the blood which was spattered over the floor and furniture. Both the woman and son were immediately arrested and lodged in jail. They refused to talk.

Leonard was a second hand dealer and an old soldier. Several months ago he secured a divorce from his first wife and married Mrs. Williamson, the woman now in jail.

BALTIMORE & OHIO'S ANNUAL.

New York, Nov. 18.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company today Gen. Louis Fitzgerald, W. A. Reade, Eugene DeLano and Howell Davis were elected directors. W. S. Dixon, representing the Johns Hopkins' university interests on the board will, it is said, decline re-election. The report for the fiscal year ending June 30 shows: Gross earnings, $22,817,182; increase, $214,520; operating expenses, $15,801,045; increase, $240,354; total incomes, $8,648,733, a decrease of $281,097; balance, $639,517; increase, $127,550.

TURKS THRICE BEATEN.

Aden, Nov. 18.—The Iman of Sana, the capital city of Yemen, Arabia, at the head of 45,000 Arabs, armed with Martini-Henry rifles, has defeated the Turks in three fights. The latter are now confined to Sana, which is a walled city about five and a half miles in circumference.

DROWNING AT LITTLE FALLS.

Little Falls, Minn., Nov. 18.—An unknown man about 35 years old was found drowned in the Mississippi one mile below this city yesterday. Nothing was found to identify him. It is the supposition that he had been drinking and either fell in or jumped in with suicidal intent. A whisky flask was found on the bank. He was evidently a laborer.

IS THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

Van Horne Building a Duluth-Chicago Road.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The Evening Post asserts that Chicago is to have a new line of railroad connecting it with the Pacific coast. It says the Canadian Pacific company is building a line into this city from the Northwest to connect with its "Soo" line at Lake Superior, and by that line with its main system. The construction of the new line has already been commenced. The work, it is said by the Post, is being done apparently by other auspices than those of the Canadian Pacific, and in such a way as to permit the management of that line to deny diplomatically all connection with the new enterprise until it is ready for operation. However, says the Post, the Canadian Pacific is back of the enterprise and will furnish all the means necessary to build it, which cannot be obtained in other directions. So far as it has gone the road is being built with local capital and by the sale of bonds, which are eagerly being bought up by the leading interests in the towns desirous of having the new road run through them. A number of these have no other railway facilities at present, but lying as they do between the Northwestern and Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads, the people have to drive for several miles over the country before they can secure railroad accommodations.

The corporate name of the company which is constructing the new road is the Chicago & Lake Superior Railroad company, of which E. J. Foster, of Madison, is president, and J. O'Connor, of the same city, is secretary. Iron is now being laid between Cambridge and London and surveyors are continuing the line from Cambridge to Fort Atkinson. The contract for completing the road at Fort Atkinson has already been let to the Western Construction company, which is doing the work.

More rapid construction of this road will be possible than is usual in connection with like enterprises, because the intention is to utilize an old grade which was built many years ago and is still in existence. Nearly forty years ago a charter was secured from the legislature of Wisconsin by a company known as the Chicago & Lake Superior Air line, in which authority was granted the company to construct a line from Chicago to Lake Superior. Work was begun and a line was surveyed from the Wisconsin southern state line from Lake Villa to Superior, and the road was actually graded for a large part of the distance. That grade is still in existence, and much of it is to be used in the construction of this road.

CHEAT THE ELEVATORS.

Warren Wheat Shipped Direct to Market.

Warren, Minn., Nov. 18.—A circular has been issued here which says: "The Warren board of trade, after a careful scrutiny of the situation, has decided to establish an agency in Warren for the purpose of buying, aiding and promoting the shipment of wheat. Any farmer who wishes to avail himself of the privileges of this agency can do so without any cost or charge whatsoever. The agency will order cars, notify parties of their arrival, help make the necessary papers for shipment, take care of and watch all wheat that is left or unloaded into the city for shipment. Every available means will be employed to remove any and all obstacles for the shipment of wheat on track. Grain sacks will be furnished whenever deemed necessary, and all communications or requests appertaining to this work will be cheerfully complied with. Now is the time to strike and conduct a battle royal. Let the watchword be: 'No wheat for the elevators.' Let every farmer, who is enterprising and energetic, compete with the elevators for cars, get together, and with the concerted and united action of the business men of Warren, success will crown your efforts, and better prices for your wheat will prevail."

HINES PROSPERING.

The Railroad Builder Resumes Cutting Ties.

Argyle, Minn., Nov. 18.—D. W. Hines, of Hines' railroad fame, is completing arrangements for putting in a large crew of men to cut ties for his road this winter. It looks now as if his road was a go. Nearly all the right of way and grading has been promised this road through this (Marshall) county. The farmers all favor it.

CLUNE FOUND GUILTY.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The supreme court of the United States today affirmed the decision of the court below in the case of the United States against W. H. Clune, one of the participants in the big California branch of the Debs' strike. Clune and others were found guilty of obstructing the mails.

METEOR WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS.

Morgan, Texas, Nov. 18.—A meteor passed over this city at 8:15 o'clock last night its course being southeast. It lighted up the heavens like lightning. A report was heard in about four minutes like thunder, and a shock was distinctly felt which caused windows to rattle.

Minneapolis, Nov. 18.—Minnesota university defeated Wisconsin university at football Saturday by a score of 14 to 10 in the most exciting game ever seen here. The spectators of the contest numbered 6000, of whom 400 came from Madison. Both teams are strong on the aggresive, but weak on the defensive. Endurance counted, Wisconsin falling to score in the last half.

A DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT.

Havana, Nov. 18.—A dispatch received here today from Santa Clara says that a serious engagement has been fought at Taguasco, near Santi Espiritus, province of Santa Clara, between four columns of Spanish troops and a strong force of insurgents commanded by Maximo Gomez. No details of the battle have been received.

ROGERS

Motorman In the Detroit Horror Held Without Bail.

One More Body, That of Miss Sauernheimer, Recovered Today.

At Least One or Two More Bodies to Find.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 18.—The life-saving and fire boat crew resumed work early this morning in the endeavor to recover additional bodies of the victims of Saturday night's terrible street car disaster at the draw bridge of the Central viaduct. Shortly after 1 o'clock the body of a woman was brought to the surface of the river and was later identified as that of Miss Martha Sauernheimer. She was a sister-in-law of Mrs. John A. Sauernheimer, whose body was recovered Saturday night. It is believed that there are at least one or two bodies still in the river, and the dragging of the water will be continued. Rogers, the motorman, who jumped from the car and thus saved his life, was bound over without bail in police court this morning for two weeks, during which time a thorough investigation will be made into the affair. The coroner's inquest will be begun tomorrow morning.

August Rogers, the motorman, who is detained at the central station, in talking about the accident, today said: "It was my second trip. Just after leaving the market house, I looked into the car and from what I can remember there were about twenty or twenty-five passengers. They were mostly women and children I think. When my motor reached the switch at the approach of the draw in the viaduct, I shut off my current and applied the brake. The car came to a full stop and the conductor ran ahead and threw the switch. He motioned me ahead with a wave of his arm. I put my lever at the first notch and as I passed the conductor, who always stands at the switch lever until the car has passed, was running at the rate of possibly four miles an hour. I looked back as I always do and saw him get on the rear platform. Looking ahead, I thought I saw the gates at the draw closed over the track, but as my lights were burning and I had current the thought occurred to me that my eyes must have been at fault. I was just in the act of giving, and possibly gave the lever a slight push forward, when I was startled by the gates just in front of me, and I heard some one yell, 'jump.' I don't know whether I reversed the current or not, for I realized the danger and leaped from the vestibule. As I leaped I thought that I would plunge headlong down into the river, but as the car struck the gate I fell on it and caught the iron frame and saved myself. The car went down with an awful crash, but I never heard a murmur or anything that resembled a scream."

"When I was freed from the iron gate, I scarcely knew what to do. I finally concluded to run back to the market house and tell the police. I did this and ran back to the scene of the accident. I hurried down the embankment and began to pull bodies out of the wreck. I worked there for fully an hour, may be an hour and a half. Then I grew sick and went home."

"When you first saw the gates of the draw, were the lights burning and did you have current."

"I did have current and my lights were burning. That's the reason I thought of no danger. When the draw is open the lights go out. As I told you I was surprised when I saw the gates and knew that I had both lights and current, which was never the case before, when the gates have been closed, as the swinging of the bridge cuts off the current and, of course, when this is done, the lights go out.

"How do you account for the strange fact?"

"I can't account for it, but I swear that it was so. I have never had an accident of any kind until this one, and I believe this will kill me."

Jake Heller, of Swan street, who stood on the car platform but jumped and was saved, says the car was going slow, and that he heard some one cry out, "Stop the car; stop the car." He also says there was a woman on the platform, and that she jumped safely away, but immediately cried that her daughter was in the car.

John Seriger related his experience as follows: "On nearing the draw on the viaduct, I noticed the conductor leave the car and pull a chain, which I supposed operated a safety device in the track. The conductor waved his hand and the car moved slowly forward. I first heard a cry, 'Stop, Stop,' then a little man standing nearer the car step than myself yelled 'jump.' I felt the rear part of the car begin to raise up, and blindly jumped over the platform railing, not knowing how or where I would land. I picked myself up about six feet from the edge of the open draw and picked up my hat from among several others lying about. There were three other men on the platform besides myself. One wore glasses and another, the one who yelled 'jump,' had on a mackintosh. It came through my mind that the car was going down as I saw the iron gate moving the moment I jumped. I was leaning against the door jamb, but turned my head when some one on the viaduct cried, 'stop.' I knew no one in the car at the time, and heard screams as the car was going down. There was an awful crash when the car struck."

KILLED THE SIREN.

Tragedy in Real Life Revealed at Helena.

Minneapolis, Nov. 18.—A special to the Tribune from Aberdeen, S. D., says: A tragedy in real life has been brought to light through the efforts of Editor Baldwin, of the Sentinel, who had upon his subscription list the name of Eugene W. Stanley, of Montana. It appears that Stanley lived here and at Columbia for several years and his real name was Thomas Daly. In 1890 he went to Montana and became a successful mine expert and prospector, amassing considerable money. While in Helena last spring, he fell into the tolls of people who by the aid of a siren, drugged and robbed him. The woman was arrested, but Stanley was so much under the influence of drugs that his testimony was of little account and the woman was discharged. Stanley, who had retired to the rear of the court room, on hearing the verdict stepped up and shot the prisoner twice. She gave a gasp and died in the arms of the judge. Stanley was tried on the charge of murder and convicted. His friends succeeded in getting the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The disgrace was too keen and Stanley killed himself a few days ago in his cell. He has a brother living here and two brothers in Butte, Montana. It will never be known why he changed his name.

MUST MAINTAIN WIRES.

Union Pacific Lease to Western Union Invalid.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States supreme court, in an opinion of Justice Harlan today, held in effect that the Union Pacific Railroad company had no right to make a lease practically giving the Western Union Telegraph company the right to maintain telegraph lines along the route of the railway company. The case came here from Nebraska, and the court by its decision reverses the judgment of the circuit court of appeals and affirms the judgment of the circuit court of the Nebraska district.

The decision rendered today holds that the United States has a right to maintain a bill in equity to compel the Union Pacific to maintain its own lines of telegraph along its railroad routes, and that the obligation imposed upon the railway company to do this was as strong as its obligations to maintain the railroad tracks.

In the case of the United States against the same two corporations to recover moneys paid for government messages to the Western Union since 1881 sent over the lines along the Union Pacific right-of-way, the court affirmed the judgment below in favor of the corporations. The court said that if it could be shown which messages were sent over the Union Pacific lines on the north of the railroad track and which over the Western Union lines on the south, it would hold that reimbursement should be made for the former messages, but since the evidence was to the effect that it was impossible to distinguish them, it would rule against the United States claims.

Mississippi Republicans Will Contest the Next Election.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 18.—John R. Lynch, the colored Republican leader, is in the city en route to East Mississippi on a political mission, and to confer with local Republican leaders with a view to placing a full Republican congressional ticket in the field next year. This is to be the basis of the proposed contest before congress and the courts over the Mississippi constitution. Lynch says the leading constitutional lawyers of the North advise this course, and that nothing would be left undone in the premises. He declares that McKinley is his presidential preference, but thinks that Southern delegations should go to the national convention uninstructed and conform to the dominant sentiment of the North in selecting a candidate.

PERJURY

Sensational Charges Made in Court Against Holmes' Attorney.

Evidence Produced That Testimony Was Manufactured to Order.

Shoemaker Alone Implicated, and Rotan Acquitted of All Blame.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—The Holmes case took another sensational turn today. In open court the senior counsel for the defense, William A. Shoemaker, was charged with manufacturing evidence in behalf of the alleged murderer by bringing a woman who knew nothing of the case to swear in his favor. Today had been fixed for the argument of a new trial for Holmes, and Judge Arnold, who presided during the trial two weeks ago, which resulted in Holmes' conviction of the murder of B. F. Pietzel, was joined by Judges Thayer and Wilson, sitting as a court en banc. The proceedings were begun by Mr. Shoemaker, who asked that the argument be postponed. He urged that since the verdict had been rendered, the defense had come into possession of new information and additional clues of vital importance to the case and which would result in Holmes' acquittal.

Subsequent to the trial he continued, they had obtained information of a person who had known Pietzel when he lived at 1316 Callowhill street. This person, Blanche A. Hannigan, had made affidavit in substance as follows:

In August, 1894, she kept a cigar store at 1239 Callowhill street and had known and talked with Pietzel, then known as Perry. On August 29 in her store she told him she would have to leave the store and visit a dying friend whereupon Pietzel spoke of the uncertainties of life, saying he had more troubles than any one would suppose, and that he would not care if it was he who was dying instead of her friend. He spoke of his many troubles and added that the end would come soon, as he could not stand it much longer. All his actions and words tended to show thoughts of suicide.

In presenting this affidavit Mr. Shoemaker said that Mrs. Hannigan would have come forward with this testimony before, but she disliked notoriety, and had been out of the city for some time. As soon, however, as she found that there was a life at stake, she had come forward. Besides this new testimony, Shoemaker went on, there were many other clues to be run down, some of which had come to their knowledge as late as last Saturday.

District Attorney Graham asked that before the application be passed upon, Mrs. Hannigan be called to the stand. Mr. Rotan, who is associated with Shoemaker, replied that they had been unable to find her; that the affidavit had been procured by John Sweckler, a detective, and that counsel would not permit her to testify until they had an opportunity to examine her previously and learn the truth of her statement. In response to questions from the court, Mr. Shoemaker then said that the affidavit had been written by himself at the dictation of Mrs. Hannigan.

Mr. Graham said it became his duty to make a painful declaration. During the early part of the recent trial he had received information that efforts had been made to procure false testimony by bribery. Subsequently he learned that these efforts were being prosecuted to the end. Thereupon he sent for the person thus employed to furnish evidence, and she was in the court at the present time.

"I will produce her and show that she was employed by Mr. Shoemaker; that she was taken to his office and questioned," said Mr. Graham; "that she said she knew nothing about the case, and the attorney told her that was all right, and that she was induced, upon the payment to her of $20, to sign the affidavit, which had been already prepared."

In support of this statement by Mr. Graham, Detective Geyer was sworn, and testified that during the trial he was called upon by John Sweckler, who said that Mr. Shoemaker had asked him to procure a woman who lived around Thirteenth and Callowhill streets who would swear to certain facts. The next day Sweckler again called and showed him the typewritten affidavit. This was before the woman had been looked for. Mr. Geyer submitted the matter to the district attorney, and on his advice, after the trial, Geyer procured the woman. He introduced her to Sweckler, who in turn took her to Shoemaker. After several interviews with him, she signed the affidavit and received the money in two $10 bills, which she marked with her initials, for the purpose of identification. The supposed Mrs. Hannigan, who said her name was Margaret Reah, took the stand and corroborated this tsory in detail, producing the money.

She testified that Shoemaker had neither read nor told of the contents of the affidavit and she signed it in absolute ignorance. The statement made in court by Shoemaker that she had dictated it to him was false.

The court united in acquitting Mr. Rotan of any part in the alleged securing of suborned evidence, and the district attorney asked that as the affidavit had been made as the basis of the application for a continuance, and it has been proven false, the application should fall. The court sustained him and ordered the argument for a new trial to proceed.

DELAYED

Disposition of Pine Lands of the Chippewa Indians Again Postponed.

The Timber Cannot be Sold Under Authority of Existing Laws.

Red Lake Reservation Likely to be Opened Early Next Spring.

Washington, Nov. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The order of Commissioner Lamoreux, of the general land office, suspending the work of examining and estimating the pine upon the Chippewa Indian reservations of Minnesota on account of a lack of money to pay the examiners, puts off for a longer time the disposition of the pine lands belonging to these Indians. A good deal of interest has been taken in this matter at the interior department, as the question has been a vexing one for several years. It was at one time thought that the pine timber upon these lands could be sold for the benefit of the Indians under authority of existing laws, but a careful investigation by the assistant attorney general for the interior department failed to disclose any authority for the disposition of this pine. As soon as congress convenes, Commissioner Lamoreux will recommend the enactment of legislation giving the secretary of the interior power to advertise this pine in forty-acre tracts and sell it off to the highest bidder. This cannot be done, however, until the amount of timber on all the reservations has been estimated in order that the government may get some idea as to its value. For this reason the stoppage of the work of the examiners on these pine lands will greatly retard their ultimate disposition. Whether the estimates made are absolutely correct or not does not make any material difference so far as the settling of this question is concerned. It is the opinion of officials of the land office that while the amount of pine on one section may be overestimated, that upon another will be underestimated, so that the Indians will get full value for their timber. The purchasers of the timber will not know the amount estimated by the government examiners and will use their own judgment as to what it is worth. After all, the examinations by special agents of the interior department are of little practical value to the government, except in a measure to protect the government from fraud.

From a comparison of the figures at the general land office, this business of examining and estimating pine upon the Chippewa reservations seems to have been largely a matter of guess work, and very poor guess work at that. There are many sections that have been examined by three different appraisers and their estimates varied several hundred thousand feet in some cases. The figures upon one section are amusing. This tract was examined three years ago and returned as having 310,000 feet of pine upon it. A later examination gave it 200,000 feet while the report of the present force of appraisers shows that there is no pine upon it at all.

Attorney Bottineau, of Minneapolis, in urging the appointment of two Indians as special pine land examiners, declared that they could do the work equally as well as white men. From the returns sent in by various parties who have performed this labor, it would appear that they could. At any rate the red men were appointed and no complaint has been heard as to their capability for doing the work. Thousands of dollars have already been spent by the government in an endeavor to get at the exact amount of pine on the White Earth and Red Lake reservations, and it is probable that by the time it is all disposed of the amount of its sale will not much more than equal the expense incurred in selling it.

A good deal of interest is being taken in the East in the prospective opening of the Red Lake reservation, and considerable regret is expressed that it could not be opened this fall. The general understanding now is that the proclamation opening it will be issued some time in the early spring so that there will be plenty of time for the settlers to make a crop before the early frosts. Reports sent to Washington from the Red Lake reservation are to the effect that the land is exceedingly fertile and the climate healthy. Considerable interest is being taken in the prospective opening in the East, and there will doubtless be a goodly number of people from the Atlantic states on the border of the reservation when the president's proclamation opening it is issued.

Hawaiian Minister Will Press the Proposition.

Port Townsend, Wash., Nov. 18.—According to advices received from Honolulu by the bark C. D. Bryant, sentiment is being cultivated to grant Princess Kaiulani, heir apparent to the throne, a pension of $6000 a year. Many of the legislators have expressed themselves as favorable to the proposition. The bitter contest which was waged against the confirmation of Mr. Castle, late minister to the United States, who was barely confirmed by one majority, culminated in a compromise by the permanent appointment of J. G. Hatch, a member of Dole's cabinet. A few days previous to the minister's departure for Washington, the cabinet convened in lengthy session and discussed the possibilities of Hawaii becoming a part of the United States. One cabinet officer stated that Hatch was instructed to proceed on lines tending to closely cement the two countries until the American administration changed, and then to insist on speedy admission of Hawaii as a territory.

UPRISING BY JAP COOLIES.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Japanese coolie labor has been tried by the French sugar planters of Guadaloupe with most unsatisfactory results, according to the report of United States Vice Consul St. Croix De La Rociere to the state department. Because this class of labor has been employed successfully in the Fiji Islands and New Caledonia, the Guadaloupe planters brought 490 Japanese to their island at the end of 1894, and the result was very disappointing. Numerous complaints followed, and the planters were dissatisfied with their work. Later in September 300 of the laborers deserted their work under various pretenses and invaded a plantation near the principality. Their Japanese inspectors were powerless to move them, and in the end the gendarmes were called in and placed 143 in chains.

GARZA OPERATING IN CUBA.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 18.—Advices were received here today from Palo Blanco, Neuces county, Texas, that Mrs. Zatarine Garza, the wife of the Mexican revolutionary leader, who created such a disturbance on the Lower Rio Grande border, a few years ago, and who was reported to have been killed in Colombia, South America, several months ago, while engaged in a political insurrection, has just received a letter from her husband. According to the information contained in this letter Garza is taking a leading part in the Cuban revolution, where he has command of a company of insurgents, and is known by the name of "Elmo." The full contents of the letter are not known, but it is said that Garza has been promised an important office with the Cuban government if the insurgents are successful.

SHIP WILL BE SEIZED.

Port Townsend, Wash., Nov. 18.—If the British ship, Lord Brassy, now over 100 days out from Shanghai, has not foundered at sea, and arrives in port, she will be seized by the British consul and forfeiture proceedings will be instituted by the British government. From official sources received from the customs department at Shanghai, it appears that Capt. Gunning obtained a custom house clearing by fraud and forgery in order that he might man the ship with inexperienced sailors. The United States government too has a big claim on the ship. She cleared and sailed from Shanghai without first obtaining American consular bills of health.

SCARED

The Sultan Frightened at Last Into Taking Preventative Measures.

He is Making Radical Efforts to Stop the Slaughter.

The Powers Believe it Unnecessary to Invade the Empire.

Constantinople, Nov. 17, via Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 18.—No details have yet been received here of the massacre of about 800 Armenians at Kharput, or of the sacking and burning of eight out of twelve of the buildings belonging to the American missionaries there, which outrages were exclusively announced by the Associated Press Saturday afternoon. The United States ambassador, Alexander W. Terrell, has telegraphed for particulars of the outbreak, asking especially whether the eight American mission buildings were set on fire by the rioters, or if they simply caught fire and were destroyed as the result of a general conflagration. The American and other missionaries at Bitlis have been compelled to return to Van, under an escort of Turkish troops, which was accorded them upon the strong representation of Mr. Terrell to the porte. Mr. Terrell, although granted leave of absence, refuses to leave his post, being determined to remain here until all the Americans are in safety and the authority of the sultan is once more established throughout Asia Minor. At the request of the United States consulate, the vali of Aleppo has detailed certain Turkish officials of high rank to protect the Americans of that place, and he has held them responsible for the lives of those placed under their charge. Further massacres are reported from Sivas and there is a report that 4000 Armenians have been massacred at Gurunja, though the reports of the latter are not confirmed.

The porte, it is said, has ordered special inquiry into the massacre of Christians at Alexandria, Northern Syria, where, as exclusively announced by the Associated Press early on Saturday, 100 Turkish troops are said to have looked on while the killing took place, abstaining from rendering any assistance in suppressing the disorder.

The police have torn down revolutionary placards referring to the British premier's utterance at the Mansion house banquet in London on Nov. 9. The making of arrests continues, and it is reported that a number of the Young Turks party have been secretly executed. The sultan is said to be alarmed to the verge of insanity at the assembling of the foreign fleets at Salonica bay, and it is known that he has sent urgent messages to the rulers of the district orering them to suppress the disorders. In addition a number of special commissioners have been hurriedly dispatched from this city to various parts of Asia Minor armed with power to quell the revolutionary outbreaks. Sir Phillip Currie, the British ambassador, cannot reach Constantinople before Wednesday. The British fleet it is reported here is to be still further reinforced. Another conference with the representatives of the powers took place at the official residence of the Austrian ambassador. It is understood that Sir Phillip Currie will make a brief call at the foreign office here.

Important news is expected daily from Zeitoun, where a desperate battle between the entrenched Armenians and the Turkish troops sent to disperse them is expected. The work of calling out the army reserves goes on slowly, the main difficulty being to find proper equipment and ammunition.

Anti-Christian placards have been torn down by the police at Scutari, Albany, where a dangerous agitation is in progress. The Turkish officials do not seem to be doing more than making a show of frowning upon it. The Armenian leaders of Constantinople are compelled to keep in hiding for fear of arrest. The Turkish police keep throwing Armenians into prison and secret executions are said to be of frequent occurrence. The Young Turks' movement is actively proceeding in spite of the desperate efforts made by the Turkish officials to suppress it, and it is said that much of the onslaught upon Armenians is due to the fact that the porte desires to detract attention from the Mohammedan agitation against the sultan. The palace spies and police are kept busy night and day in Constantinople, but this does not prevent the revolutionary movement from spreading. The police have just made a fresh seizure in the Turkish part of the city, of a large quantity of placards demanding a constitution, which were intended for distribution in the main thoroughfares. The two battalions of troops and the detachment of artillery at the Yleldish Kiosk are kept closely within the grounds of the palace. The life of the sultan is known to be in danger, and the lives of nearly all the ministers have been threatened. Hassan Pasha, the minister of marine, is known to distrust the navy to the extent that he has a guard of troops, and it is claimed, dares not go aboard a war vessel.

Assembling of Fleets Having Desired Effect.

London, Nov. 18.—It is understood in well-informed circles here today that the assembling of the British and foreign fleets in Salonica bay is having a good effect upon the Turkish government, and that the sultan has finally determined to make earnest efforts to put a stop to disturbances in Asia Minor. It is understood that the marquis of Salisbury had received assurances that the sultan had dispatched commissioners to Asia Minor instructed to put in force as soon as practicable the reforms insisted upon by the powers, and that beyond the assembling of the foreign fleets at Salonica, the powers will take no further steps at present, being desirous of giving the Turkish government every opportunity possible of restoring order in the disturbed districts, without having recourse to measures which might add to the state of anarchy prevailing.

The following telegram from Constantinople was received this morning: "The Armenians are being massacred everywhere in Asia Minor. Over 100,000 are dying of starvation and exposure. The work of relief is closed. For God's sake urge the government to stop the most awful events of modern times. The porte is powerless, as all the telegraphs are under the control of the palace officials, who have incited the massacre throughout Anatolia."

A dispatch received here from Rome today says that advices which have reached there from Constantinople announce that the agitation against the Christians of Northern Syria is extending, and that massacres have occurred near Alepho.

Rustem Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to the court of St. James, is dying of influenza. Rustem Pasha is an Italian by birth, and was known as Count Malini previous to entering the service of Turkey. He was at one time governor of Lebanon, and is described as having been a very just and firm official.

THURSTON'S OPINION.

Pacific Roads Should be Operated as One.

Omaha, Oct. 18.—Before leaving for Washington last evening, Senator Thurston made a statement announcing his resignation as general solicitor of the receivers of the Union Pacific road, because he could not give it his entire attention. The senator said his ideas of reorganization of the Pacific properties were somewhat in line with the recommendation of the government receivers, but not according to their method of reaching the result. "I believe it would be a great thing for the country at large," he added, "to have the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines operated together as one property. At present this whole country is largely at the mercy of the Pacific lines west of Ogden, operated by the Southern Pacific, which has the choice whether its traffic should go via the Union Pacific or the Southern line. I think it was one of the purposes of the government in chartering the roads that they should continue as one line operated together, and I think a reasonable legislation can be enacted to ensure that result. I have prepared a bill which I shall introduce in the senate early in the session looking toward this."

Senator Thurston said he thought the Republicans should try to organize the senate without combination with the Populists, and that he believes that the Republicans ought to pass a general tariff act in harmony with its idea of American protection, and on which they would be willing to go to the country in the presidential campaign.

The cities of Minneapolis, Omaha, Niagara Falls and Indianapolis contested with Cincinnati for the privilege of acting as host to the delegates.

A VENERABLE DECEIVER.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 18.—John Swan, alias John Mitchell, of Columbus, Wis., aged 60 years, was arrested in this city today for polygamy. The arrest was made on the strength of a telegram from Sheriff Schlukbler, of Beaver Dam, Wis., who is coming on with requisition papers for his prisoner. Swan was here with a young woman whom he married in this city last February. The deceived woman is Miss Sarah Alice Willman, formerly of Beaver Dam, Wis.

BRAZIL WON'T ARBITRATE.

New York, Nov. 18.—The Brazilian government, the Herald's correspondent in Rio Janeiro telegraphs, had definitely concluded that no arbitration is admissable with respect to the ownership of the island of Trinidad as proposed by the British government. The government also refuses to consider such suggestions as may arise through discussion of the question in the British parliament.

SHOULD UNITE AGAINST ENGLAND.

New York, Nov. 18.—A special to the Herald from St. Petersburg says: The Grand Duke Vladimir has an autograph letter from the czar to the kaiser relating to the situation in Eastern Europe. It suggests that in case England insists too much on the disintegration of Turkey the three powers which united upon the Japan question should again join hands against all comers.

KILLED

Ira Dibbell, a West Duluth Young Man, Shot Himself Yesterday.

He Was Hunting and Was Alone When the Accident Occurred.

Probability That Rev. Mr. Helming Will Not Return---Other News.

Another West Duluth home was darkened yesterday by a sad accident. Ira Dibbell, a young man 17 years old and the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Dibbell, of Bay View Heights, accidentally shot himself while out hunting, and is supposed to have died instantly from the wound.

The young men and Capt. Holmberg, of Company H, left the Heights about 7 o'clock in the morning with a horse and buggy for a short expedition into the woods. When they had driven about eight miles from home they left the rig and struck into the timber for game. Capt. Holmberg made a detour while Dibbell was stationed at a large stump to watch for any game that should be driven in by his associate.

After an extended skirmish Holmberg returned to the point where Dibbell had been stationed and signalled to him. There was no response and thinking that the latter had become tired and left for the starting point Holmberg retraced his way to the place where the team was left. When he arrived Dibbell was not in sight and his next thought was to again visit the spot where the two separated. When he arrived at the place what was his surprise and horror to find the dead body of Dibbell lying close to the stump.

The exact manner of the young man's death will never be known, but the fact that the shot took effect in the abdomen leads to the belief that he attempted to get up on the stump and while doing so the gun was accidentally discharged. It became the sorrowful task of Mr. Holmberg to pick up the body, carry it through the woods, drive home, and meet the anguish of devoted parents. The young man was highly esteemed and his unfortunate death is a shock to the whole community.

MAY NOT RETURN.

The present prospects are that Plymouth Congregational church will lose its pastor, who has been here so short a time. Word has been received that Rev. Mr. Helming is not recovering rapidly and that his physicians fear that his health will not permit him to spend the winter in so cold a climate as that of Minnesota. A call was extended to him by the church shortly before his departure for Indianapolis where he was compelled to go by reason of his present illness.

IMPURE BLOOD.

The Ills That Accompany it are Legion. The Sufferer Eventually Becomes a Loathsome Sight, with Death the Only Escape From Pain.

Let a diseased condition of the blood once exist, and unless it is stopped it will from day to day grow and spread. The disease germs in the blood multiply rapidly and impregnate the tissues throughout the entire body, creating ulcers and other horrible sores. The patient grows weaker and weaker. Every one of the great vital organs of the body become affected, and death is looked upon as a blessing. Do not let such troubles go too far; before it is too late take that most famous of blood purifiers, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. It quickly enriches and purifies this great vital principle of the body, and at the same time acting directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys, dispelling all lurking poisons. Thousands have been cured, and to-day sing its praise.

One of the many who have experienced relief is Amos Lord, of Conway, Iowa. He says, "I suffered from a chronic blood affection for 20 years. In September, '90, had an operation performed on my foot, but the poison still remained and went through my entire system, and placed me in such a condition I could not sleep nights on account of the hot, burning flushes all over me. I lost the use of my limb. My liver and kidneys became badly affected, and my general health so reduced that I gave up trying to live. Took over twenty bottles of certain Sarsaparillas with no relief. At last I concluded to give Kickapoo Indian Sagwa a trial, and am happy to state that after using it I experienced a great improvement. My liver and kidneys became normal, my limbs began to gain strength, so that now I can walk without crutches, and my health is good for a man of my age, being over 70 years old. I cheerfully recommend Sagwa to anyone afflicted with kidney and liver troubles. I think it is the greatest blood purifier I ever used."

Remember it is purely vegetable, and contains no poisonous ingredients whatever, being made entirely of roots, barks, herbs and gums. All druggists sell it. $1.00 a bottle; 6 bottles for $5.00.

THE pain that sometimes strikes a man at the most inopportune moment is due to indigestion. It may come in the midst of a dinner and make the feast a mockery. It is a reminder that he may not eat what he chooses, nor when he chooses. He is a slave to the weakness of his stomach. A man's health and strength depend upon what he gets out of his food. This depends on his digestion. Constipation stops digestion. Remove the obstruction by taking Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are a positive cure for constipation and its attendant ills—headaches, sour stomach, flatulence, dizziness, biliousness and "heartburn." The "Pellets" are very gentle in their action. They simply assist nature. They give no violent wrench to the system. They cause no pain, nor griping.

The Scripps Control Another Chicago Evening Paper.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The Press company, a corporation with a capital of $500,000, the stockholders in which are George G. Booth, James E. Scripps, and John R. Wilson, has bought the Evening Journal, or rather obtained a controlling interest in it. For the present the Press and the Journal will be conducted separately, but within a month the two papers will be consolidated. The name has not yet been decided upon, nor has it been determined who will be editor-in-chief. Marcus Pollaski, the general manager of the Press, will, however, have the same position on the consolidated paper. The price paid for the controlling interest was not stated. The Journal is the oldest paper in Chicago, and the Press, until recently called the Mail, the youngest. The price of both papers was 1 cent, and there will be no change in that respect.

THOUSANDS MAY STRIKE.

Walkout to Follow Housesmith's Strike in New York.

New York, Nov. 18.—Eight hundred members of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union were called out on strike today on buildings where the work is being done by J. B. and J. M. Cornell, and Milliken Bros., two of the most prominent members of the iron league. Of the men, 400 have been employed by the Cornells, on twelve buildings, and about the same number were on eight buildings where the iron work is being done by Milliken Bros.

The demands of the strikers include a wage scale, running from $3.50 a day for foremen and finishers, to $2.50 a day for blacksmiths' finishers. The strikers also want recognition of their union, the employment of only union men and new regulations about Sunday work and overtime. Should non-union men be substituted for the strikers, then a sympathetic strike will be ordered, and from 5000 to 10,000 men are likely to be called out. The sympathetic strike will affect the plumbers and gas fitters, plasterers, carpenters, hoisting engineers, steam fitters, derrickmen, laborers, cement workers, stair builders, elevator constructors, painters, varnishers, framers, mosaic workers, tin and sheet iron workers and granite cutters. The bricklayers who do not take part in sympathetic strikes will be forced out in many buildings through the strike in the other trades.

The state board of mediation and arbitration met today to consider the strike. Frank Larry represented the strikers. The following members of the board were present: William Purcell, Rochester; ex-Judge Robertson, of Troy; M. J. Feeney, of Brooklyn, and Secretary Charles Madden.

DECLINED

Wheat Started Out Steady and Advancing But Got a Setback.

The Visible Supply Report Showed an Increase of 3,390,000 Bus.

This Was a Million More Than Expected and Depressed Prices.

The wheat market opened steady this morning owing to bullish weather conditions, fair cables and the fact that, for the first time in several weeks, the Northwestern receipts are below last year's. Duluth's receipts were 360 cars, as against 367 on the corresponding date last year. The Chicago receipts, however, were sufficient to bring the total up to 388 cars ahead of last year's at the same time. This was sufficient to subdue any considerable bull fever. The price began to creep up gradually under the influence of the bullish conditions, but when the visible figures came in showing an increase of 3,390,000 bus, which was about 1,000,000 bus more than expected, the bulge gave signs of blight. But the decreased receipts in the Northwest had made such a strong impression that the decline was but slight. The English visible decreased 267,000 bus. The Liverpool market was unchanged. Berlin was ½ mark lower. At Paris wheat was 5 centimes higher and flour 5 centimes lower. New York reported one load of wheat worked for export and freight room taken for thirteen loads to Antwerp. A London dispatch says that advices from the Caucasus indicated that the wheat crop there, which is usually 80,000,000 bus and nearly all available for export, will amount to only 20,000,000 bus, and there is only one-half the usual number of vessels loading at the Baltic sea ports. Receipts in the United Kingdom from the River Platte during October aggregated only 210,000 cwt. against 12,235,000 cwt. in the corresponding month of 1894.

There was not much speculative trading here today. May opened unchanged at 58⅞c, advanced to 59¼c but after the visible was posted sold down to 59c. December started ⅜c up at 54⅝c and sold down to 54⅜c. There was good business in cash stuff, shippers and elevators taking about 300,000 bus at ⅜c over December and the mills buying 15,000 bus at ½c over December. Flax was dull at 88c. Barley sold by sample at 23½@28c. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—For several days past a leading local trader has been a heavy seller of puts on wheat, and the market has been so dull that they formed a barrier to any decline beyond their limits. Today the same outlook was apparent until near the close, when parties who have been prominent buyers early (without getting much response from the market) suddenly turned large sellers, causing a quick break to below the put price and closing the market weak. Northwest receipts continue to show a falling off, and export demand and clearances are good, yet our visible supply continues to pile up in a very discouraging manner. Shipments from foreign countries are increasing as well. The outlook tonight seems decidedly in favor of some further decline, and though there has been considerable liquidation of the December contracts, yet there remains a large amount of long wheat to be sold or changed over.

Corn dull and easier with continued selling of near futures by receivers and elevator companies. Nothing new in oats, and provisions were heavily sold by packers, shorts being the only support.

Stocks—Light trade with prices about the same as Saturday. Western Union was raided toward the close and sold off about 2 points.

Puts, December wheat, 56¾c.
Calls, December wheat, 57¼@⅜c.
Curb, December wheat, 57⅛c.
Puts and calls, May corn, 29⅜c.

SHOULD BE HAPPY.

Farmers Better Situated Than Other Classes.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The report of the secretary of agriculture begins with a review of the work of the bureau of animal industry. The total number of animals inspected at the slaughter houses was considerably over 18,000,000, an increase of over 5,000,000 over the previous year. During the year ante-mortem inspection was also made of 5,000,000 animals. The cost of inspection was reduced to 1.1 cents per animal. In 1893 inspection cost 4¾ cents per animal, and in 1894 it cost 1¾ cents. Over 1,360,000 animals, cattle and sheep, were inspected for foreign accounts, of which 657,000 were shipped abroad. Over 45,000,000 pounds of pork were inspected microscopically and exported, as against 35,000,000 in 1894 and 23,000,000 in 1893. Of the amount exported last year 23,000,000 pounds went to Germany and over 9,000,000 pounds to France. This inspection involved the placing of over 19,450,000 specimens in the microscope. The cost of each animal was less than 5 cents. Losses of cattle in transit to Europe was less than in 1894, being respectively for 1894 and 1895 0.65 and 0.37 per cent. Over 30,000 cars carrying over 820,000 animals were inspected for the Texas fever at quarantine pens during the quarantine season, nearly 9000 car loads of cattle being inspected at quarantine. Besides, over 156,000 cattle from the non-infected districts of Texas were inspected for shipment to the Northern states.

The secretary urges their importation free of duty as advantageous to feeders having a surplus of feed, and to the consumers, who outnumber the producers. Much space is devoted to discussing the opportunities for American meat products in foreign markets. Of 341,000 tons of meat received at the London central market in 1894, 71,000 tons were American, while nearly 50,000 tons came from Australia. The American proportion has not been maintained during 1895. In the imports of live cattle to Great Britain the United States and Canada had a practical monopoly until the last two years. Since 1893 Argentine shipments have greatly decreased, during the first eight months of the year over 25,000 head. The export of American horses to Great Britain has increased steadily, having more than doubled in the first eight months of 1895, being valued at nearly $3,000,000. American geldings averaged this year in the English market $155. A rigid inspection of horses for export will be undertaken.

The foreign trade in dairy products is carefully reviewed. In cheese the United States, while a large shipper to British markets, holds a conspicuously unflattering place in the extreme rear as to quality and price. In butter the United States is out of the race.

The secretary says the crop reporting work is the subject of constant criticism. As at present organized it can hardly fail to be otherwise, though more satisfactory at present than at any previous time. The secretary thinks the ascertaining of the acreage of staple crops in each state on June 1 of each year might be imposed upon the authorities of the agricultural colleges and stations in consideration of the annual appropriations they receive from the national treasury. Such acreage being given and the character of the soil known, with the climatic conditions published daily by the weather bureau, approximations as to the yield of each crop could probably be computed with more accuracy than under the present method.

Of the savings in the department he says the total amount remaining unexpended out of the appropriations for the years 1894 and 1895 aggregates $1,300,000 available for return into the treasury. He commends the extension of the civil service, which now includes all the chiefs of divisions in the department. He regards an extension of the law to include all non-political officers as essential to efficient work, recommends radical reorganization in the matter of salaries to conform the government service to that of reputable commercial establishments throughout the country, and condemns the spoils system as one by which injustice is done.

The report closes with a discussion of the question of the future of farms and farming in the United States. The average value of farms by the census of 1890 was $2900, the value of implements, domestic animals and sundries will make a total farm plant of $4000, for a family averaging six persons. The farms have fed the farmers and their families and 40,000,000 urban residents, besides supplying over $500,000,000 worth of prducts to foreign consumers. In the presence of these facts, the secretary asks, "How can anyone dare to assert that farming is generally unremunerative and unsatisfactory to those who intelligently follow it?" The mortgage on farm values does not exceed 16 per cent—a less encumbrance on capital invested than in any other line of industry. He foretells confidently a steady increase in the value of farm lands as the population of the country increases.

NAVAL MILITIA.

Some Recommendations for Developing the Plan.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Assistant Secretary McAdoo has transmitted to Secretary Herbert the report of Lieut. Niblack on the operations of the naval militia during the past year. In endorsing the report Mr. McAdoo says that the organizations are growing rapidly in favor and the interest of the public in them is steadily increasing. This organization is founded on patriotic zeal and is entitled to every encouragement at the hands of the government. He says that above all things the battalions need national encouragement and sufficient boats to perfect themselves in drill. His report shows that New Jersey and Georgia were the only new states to make returns and share in the allotment of funds during the year. Under the present system of allotments an undue share of them goes to these organizations which Lieut. Niblack suggests might be corrected by dividing only one-half of the total appropriation among the militia pro rata and then using the remaining half to aid the new organizations. The loan of a ship or boats and arms should also be made.

In the line of improvement of the militia as a whole Lieut. Niblack has many important recommendations to make. He says that there has been considerable diminution in the enthusiasm of the older organizations due largely to uncertainty as to the real purposes and aims of the naval militia, as is indicated by the number of resignations. Unless it is desired that the movement should drift on in an uncertain and hesitating way with possible ultimate failures, a vigorous state and national initiative should be at once taken. The state laws should be made uniform and the navy department should be empowered to bring three or four different state organizations together in camp, which with a co-operating squadron of ships would result in increased efficiency and give definiteness of purpose. The appropriation for the naval militia should be $25,000 to $50,000 annually. As boat work is of the utmost importance the battalions should be provided with good navy cutters, with all equipments necessary and to ensure uniformity in methods signalling outfits should be provided. The outfits of the various divisions should be standard and to this end Lieut. Niblack indicates just what a suitable outfit should consist of. Steps should be taken to organize a naval reserve of officers, seamen and ships under national auspices.

In this ex-officers of the navy and former enlisted men, naval militiamen who have served a specified term and seafaring men generally can make up the personnel and yachts and merchant steamers the material.

SINGING CONTEST.

Five Hundred Vocalists to Enter at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Preparations are being made to bring about a novel singing contest, to be held at the Auditorium Saturday, Jan. 1, 1896. It is under the auspices of the Swedish National association for the benefit of the Swedish labor bureau of this city to help unemployed Swedes. People of almost all nationalities will participate. The Swedish singers, with a chorus of 500 to 600 voices, will open and close the concert. The judges will award a handsome silk banner to the best singers. Well-known newspaper men and other prominent citizens of this city are the judges. The large chorus of Swedish singers have already begun their practice work for the entertainment.

THE LIFE SAVING SERVICE.

The annual report of Superintendent Kimball, of the life-saving service, contains a review of the important work which it has done during the last fiscal year. It is a splendid record and shows the great value of the service and the necessity of keeping it in an efficient condition. There are now 251 life-saving stations, of which fifty-three are on the lakes. This is an increase of one on the lakes during the year, the Duluth station having been manned and put in operation. The people of this city have already had demonstration of the value of such a station, several persons having been rescued from almost certain death in the bay and lake by the crew from this station.

The number of disasters to documented vessels within the field of operations of the stations during the year was 484. There were on board these vessels 5402 persons, of whom 5382 were saved and 20 lost. Eight hundred and three shipwrecked persons received succor at the stations, to whom 2232 days' relief in the aggregate was afforded. The estimated value of the vessels involved was $8,001,275, and that of their cargoes $2,645,960, making a total value of property imperiled $10,647,235. Of this amount $9,145,083 was saved and $1,502,150 was lost. The number of vessels totally lost was 73. In addition to the foregoing there were during the year 192 casualties to small craft, on board of which there were 421 persons, 415 of whom were saved and 6 lost.

Besides the number of persons saved and vessels of all kinds, there were 100 others rescued who had fallen from wharves, piers, etc., the most of whom would have perished without the aid of the life-saving crews. The crews saved and assisted during the year 379 vessels, valued with their cargoes at $3,561,665, and rendered assistance of minor importance to 181 other vessels in distress besides warning from danger by signals of the patrolmen 249 vessels. The investigations prove that no life was lost through the lack of prompt and faithful efforts on the part of the life-saving men.

These figures show the great value of the service. While the value of the vessels and their cargoes saved by these crews can be stated in dollars and cents, who can estimate the value of the many lives that were also saved? This is a feature of the work that should give the life-saving service a strong hold upon the consideration of the public and also upon the members of congress. The cost of the maintenance of the service during the year was $1,345,324. By the expenditure of this amount the country saved 12,013 lives and property to the value of $102,342,047. There seems to be good ground for the complaint made by the general superintendent that the appropriation made by the last congress of a uniform rate of $1600 per annum as compensation for the district superintendents, reducing the salaries of eight of them from $1800 to $1600, and increasing those of four from $1500 to $1600, works an injustice. He shows that the duties of these officers are of great importance and responsibility, and that they are required to furnish bonds ranging from $10,000 to $50,000, and considers that $1800 per annum is none too large. It is also contended that the surfmen should receive $65 per month each, and when the great dangers of their occupation and the hardships which they endure frequently are taken into consideration, this amount is certainly not excessive compensation. Men who thus risk their own lives to save the lives and property of others should be well paid, and the country can afford to more fully compensate them for their valuable services.

Referring to the condition of the treasury gold reserve, Henry Clews, the New York banker, says: "The spectre of another $50,000,000 bond issue rises before the public imagination, and there is nowhere much doubt about that ogre materializing sometime before next spring. That constant disturbing possibility stands as a fixed obstacle to any really inspiring recovery of confidence. Could it be removed, the effect would be worth ten points added value to the entire stock list." This is true, and it may be added that the only way to remove the cause of the gold exports is to restore bimetallism in this country, placing silver upon an equality with gold as standard money.

IN M'CLEARY'S DISTRICT.

Mr. McCleary, who was here recently arguing in favor of a single gold standard, is likely to find some strong opposition when he comes up for a renomination next year, and it is understood that he desires to again be the Republican candidate in the Second district. For years the district was represented in congress by John Lind, who was and is a strong advocate of genuine bimetallism. The people of the Second district were with him on this question, and there is strong evidence that their sentiments have not changed. Already there is much criticism of Mr. McCleary's course on the money question, and it is not improbable that a bimetallist will enter the field in opposition to his candidacy next year. Lieutenant-Governor Frank A. Day is already prominently mentioned in this connection, and there are rumors that Mr. Lind may also enter the race, in which case Mr. McCleary would probably be invited to return to school teaching, in which occupation he is more of a success than as a member of congress.

The miserable exhibition which he made in the recent debate with Mr. Harvey in Duluth has caused much talk throughout the Second district. The Herald's exchanges from that district are filled with articles upon the question, and some of them handle Mr. McCleary without gloves. The Madison, Minn., Independent Press says:

"To the people of the Second congressional district it makes little difference which man made the most able argument at Duluth. The people and the people's cause was represented by Mr. Harvey, while the gold standard and the money classes were represented by McCleary. The Independent Press cannot speak as to the balance of the district, but so far as Lac qui Parle county is concerned, its people are being misrepresented by Mr. McCleary. This is not a gold standard county, and in all likelihood Mr. McCleary will find it out one of these days. The most prominent Republicans of the county are not gold standard men, and there isn't a paper in the county which comes out openly for it. The Independent Press regrets that Mr. McCleary has chosen to take up arms against the true interests of the people who have honored him, but since he chooses that course there is but one thing that the people can do, i. e., elect some one in his place. No man who attempts to defend the method of making laws practiced in securing the passage of the law of 1873 has any right to ask the support of any party or any people. Either such men as Blaine, Allison, Conkling, Thurman, Voorhees, Holman, Kelly and Garfield are misquoted by the Congressional Record or that law was passed through chicanery and fraud. The Independent Press believes it was accomplished by fraud, a fraud which has resulted in more misery than a war, pestilence or famine would have caused, and the law ought to be repealed, every word of it."

A new terror threatens the United States navy. It is the deadly drydock, in which the keel frames of our big cruisers "buckle," and the cement and other things about their hulls are peeled off. First the Columbia and now the Texas have been damaged in this way. The St. Louis Star-Sayings thinks if this thing keeps on, all our foreign foes will have to do is to lure our warships into drydocks and save their powder.

Bishop Doane's recent address in Albany on the liquor question has awakened much criticism because of his suggestion in favor of taking off all restrictions upon the traffic and leaving it to be governed by the laws of supply and demand. In no other way, he argued, can the saloon element be gotten out of politics. It is possible to say considerable in favor of such a course, but the tendency is all the other way at present.

The Philadelphia Record states its views on the third term question so that he who runs may read. It says: "A third term for any Democratic president would be most conclusive proof of the degeneracy of the Democratic party. When the time shall come that the fortunes of any political organization are to be found buttoned up under the waistcoat of any particular individual, that organization might as well disband."

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says that one of the old-time football teams which has played a Thanksgiving game every year for thirty years, now declines because "all of the members have grown baldheaded, and there is no sport at football without a chance to pull hair." But they could still kick each other in the ribs and indulge in other little pleasantries.

A New York youth committed suicide because his salary was too small to enable him to get married. The Buffalo Express thinks that a man who showed such consideration for the girl he was in love with really ought to have lived. The ordinary man in such circumstances would marry any way, and then let his wife take in washing.

The proposition made by the Duluth battalion of the National Guard in regard to the building of an armory should receive the careful consideration of the council. The amount now expended for rent, heat and light would pay the interest on a sum sufficient to build a combined armory and market house.

Archibald Forbes, the war correspondent, opines that within another year all of Europe will be entangled in a contest the final outcome of which is beyond the prediction of mortal man.

The News Tribune quotes from some Eastern goldbug papers to show that the silver sentiment is declining, and this is its sole answer to Mr. Bryan's arguments in favor of bimetallism. But perhaps the morning paper does not know anything about the subject, and is therefore unable to reply to Mr. Bryan.

So the News Tribune thinks the "silver craze" is dying out. That is what the goldbug organs have been saying for the past twenty years, but there never was a time when the silver sentiment was so strong as it is today. Gold monometallism, which the News Tribune supports, is moribund.

The New York Evening Post says that "the people resent nothing so much as the assumption by either set of politicians that they (these professionals) have been given indefinite control of the government. The independent voter was never so omnipresent as now."

Referring to the Harvey-McCleary debate in this city, the Wadena Journal says: "This whole silver discussion seems to develop both self-conceit and bad temper." A more apt description of Mr. McCleary's condition could not be written.

Every Duluth delegate to the immigration convention at St. Paul tomorrow and the following two days should attend it and aid in devising ways for settling and developing the great territory tributary to Duluth.

Col. Breckinridge has entered the race for the Kentucky senatorship. If the old saying about "the race is to the swift" holds good, the colonel ought to get there, because he is reported to be decidedly fast.

As they mournfully study the recent election returns, the Democrats are cheered by the thought that there is always a resurrection.

The number of real orators in the country is very small, but among the number is Mr. Bryan.

STANDS ON THE PLATFORM.

Cloquet Pine Knot: The Princeton Union endorses Congressman Towne's attitude on the silver issue and says he stands squarely on the platform of the Republican party. Sime time ago when the Pine Knot made the same statement it was intimated by some of our worthy contemporaries that we had stretched the truth. That may be the case with the Union, but we doubt it.

ADMIRES HIS ATTITUDE.

Staples World: Hon. C. A. Towne delivered an address at St. Cloud Friday night, and for nearly three and one-half hours held the attention of a large audience. Mr. Towne has been misrepresented in a shameful manner, not by the opposition press but by those of his own party, and we are pleased to note that whatever he speaks there seems less of criticism than formerly. We believe Mr. Towne has not in any manner repudiated the platform on which he was elected, and admire him for the stand he has taken in the face of much opposition in certain quarters. He proves by his speeches that he has studied his subject deeply, has something to say, knows how to say it and does say it, which is more than could be truthfully said of many congressmen.

THE SAME KIND.

Two Harbors Iron News: It don't require a careful consideration of the reports of the Harvey-McCleary debate on the financial question, in Duluth last week, to indicate that McCleary went into it with the same degree of nerve that Fitzsimmons took with him to Texas.

MISREPRESENTS THE PEOPLE.

Madison, Minn., Independent-Press: When Mr. McCleary or any other man goes down to Washington as the representative of the Second congressional district of Minnesota, and stands with the gold bugs he fails to represent the people of the district.

DO NOT DRINK WATER.

Two Harbors Iron News: If some of those Eastern Duluth property owners would visit the Zenith City and flood their interior with germy water, they could understand why they made a mistake in securing an injunction to prevent the issuing of new water bonds. But they never sample water when there, as the average Eastern man considers it a breach of Western etiquette to indicate a familiarity with aqua.

NOT ALL GOLD BUGS.

Madison, Minn., Independent-Press: Congressman Towne spoke at St. Cloud on Friday last. The audience was a large one. It seems that the people of St. Cloud are not so strongly infected with the gold calf worship as Mr. Eastman would have the outside world believe.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Award of the Coal Contract Was Postponed.

The matter of awarding the contract for coal for the schools came up at the meeting of the board of education Saturday night. The committee on fuel and janitors reported that the bids for additional coal were alike, excepting that on a certain quality W. C. Sargent's bid was 5 cents below the others. Only two of the firms were willing to submit to the condition insisted on by the board that the coal be thoroughly tested. It was decided that the committee investigate before the contract was awarded.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to have the executive committee send a diplomatically worded telegram in an effort to bring the National Educational association here for their next convention.

The bids for heating and ventilating the Washington school were as follows: Allen Black, $6174; Farrell & Sullivan, $5985; W. W. McMillan, $6225; Thompson, Waugh & Co., $6300. The contract was awarded to Farrell & Sullivan, and E. J. Duffy & Co. secured the plumbing at $1150.

The Duluth Typographical union, in a communication, requested the placing of the union label on all board printing. The matter was placed on file.

Mr. Hugo's resolution requiring board employes to become naturalized was laid over until the next meeting.

Superintendent Denfeld reported for October an increase in the enrollment of scholars of 389 over the preceding month. There were eighteen cases of corporal punishment.

Then after ordering pianos for four schools and fixing the salary of the superintendent of construction at $4 a day, the board adjourned.

THE BETHEL MEETING.

Many Addresses and an Interesting Report Given.

A union meeting of the churches of the city was held at the First Presbyterian church last evening, and about 1400 people gathered to hear the annual report of the Bethel management. H. H. Hanford, president of the Bethel association, acted as chairman, and introduced the speakers, among whom were Rev. C. C. Salter, Dr. Humason, Dr. Cleland, Rev. C. H. Patton, Rev. B. Franklin, Rev. W. W. Dawley and Rev. H. C. Watson. Each speaker made an earnest and energetic plea for more help for the Bethel, not only in a financial way, but for work and influence, which shall result in good to the Bethel in its work.

Owing to the serious illness of Superintendent Charles F. Robel, of the Bethel, the annual report was prepared and read by Dr. H. C. Watson, superintendent of the branch Bethel. The work of the two Bethels was reviewed. Several incidents which illustrated the importance of the work were related, and some touching scenes of the slums were portrayed.

Dr. Watson said that an important move in the last year's work was the opening of the branch Bethel, or the "Baby Bethel," as he called it, because it is the youngest of the Northwestern Bethels. The reading room continues to be a regular place of resort for the floating patrons of the Bethel. Even discarded texts books are seized with avidity, and it is not an uncommon sight to see men study simple school books by the hour.

"During the fall and winter evenings," he said, "the hall is open to the Boy's club. Fully fifty boys are attracted from the street into Bethel by the aid of books, magazines, games and the efforts of volunteer young men and women. More means could accomplish more in all these practical directions. It is to be hoped that the day nursery and other agencies may be put into operation again.

"Twenty-one good rooms on the second floor are in constant demand at 25 cents per night, and we need in addition a large dormitory where beds could be furnished at 25 cents per night."

Wants to Farm Again.

According to the Wadena Pioneer L. A. Paddock, who is engaged in the commission business in Duluth is anxious to return to farm life, but unfortunately has leased his farm for three years. He has brought an action to get it back and the Pioneer says:

"A justice court case of more than ordinary interest was tried before Justice Wiswell this week. L. A. Paddock last year leased his farm to John Wiltsie for a period of three years, and he was going to Duluth to go into the commission business. But he didn't have as good luck as he expected, and now desires the farm back again and yearns for the benefits and emoluments of a bucolic life. Accordingly Paddock commenced proceedings to eject Wiltsie from the farm, and if his story is to be believed Wiltsie has violated his contract, inasmuch as he didn't run the farm in a workmanlike manner and has failed to live up to the contract in several other ways. Wiltsie on the other hand claims he has done the fair thing, and wants to live on the farm the required length of time. The case was submitted to the justice without a jury, and his decision is expected in a few days. Whichever way he decides, the case will probably be appealed to the district court, and every inch of the ground stubbornly contested."

LONDON STOCK MARKET WEAK.

London, Nov. 18.—Leading wealthy operators in the mining market were compelled to assit the smaller men to an enormous extent during the past week to prevent further collapse, so that although the settlement was effected without serious trouble and some investment buying commenced at ruling low prices, there was not over much confidence in the future of mining enterprise. Turkish affairs still prevent any real improvement in foreign stocks, but most other departments are distinctly better.

BRIGHTER EVERY DAY.

Prospects for the Bonspiel Are Very Flattering.

The bonspiel plans are looking up beautifully. Letters with assurances of good attendance are coming in every day, and the prophecy that the bonspiel will be the greatest ever held yet holds good.

Secretary Macrae this morning received a letter from D. R. Dewar, secretary of the London, Ont., club, which reads as follows: "On behalf of the London club, I have to thank you for your kind invitation to be present at the bonspiel in January next, and if I can possibly manage it will arrange for our club to be represented with two clubs. Will duly advise you as to this later on."

Sarnia, also, will be represented, Capt. Robertson, of the Monarch, having fully made up his mind to bring up the rink of which he is skip. Neither of these points have ever been represented at the bonspiels of the Northwestern Curling association, and it will be quite a feature if they can se secured.

A meeting of the board of directors was held Saturday afternoon, and the committee on program brought in a draft of the program. It is not yet complete, but it probably will be during the week. In addition to the Duluth jobbers union event, there will be a new event, which will be a great feature of the spiel.

An event for beginners has been arranged, participants in which are to have commenced curling since Jan. 1, 1895. This will undoubtedly prove popular among new recruits, and will prove a strong incentive to the work of new members. There are several new clubs and many new players who will benefit by this event. The first prize will be four gold medals, and the second prize will be four curling design scraf pins.

At Saturday's meeting letters were read from J. P. Robertson, secretary of the Manitoba branch of the Caledonia Curling club; E. G. Barrett, secretary of the Granite club, Winnipeg, and H. W. Potter, of Spring Valley, Wis. All gave the impression that large crowds would be present from those places. Mr. Robertson said that the circulars sent out by the Duluth club were creating quite a stir in Manitoba, and from all appearances there would be a large crowd from there.

OPPOSES DISCUSSING OF POLITICS.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—What is expected to be the hardest fight that will occupy the time of the coming convention of the American Federation of Labor was started yesterday at the meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly when that body went on record as opposed to the discussion of politics in trades unions and instructed its delegates to the coming convention to work against all political measures that might be brought into the convention.

EAU CLAIRE PEOPLE AT HARPUT.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 18.—The following telegram was sent today to Secretary of State Olney by Congressman Griffin: "Constituents of mine have relatives who are missionaries in Harput, Turkey. In their behalf would urge that utmost possible efforts consistent with conditions and relations be made for the protection of all such." The people in Harput referred to are the Rev. Orson P. Allen and family, relatives of F. C. Allen, president of the Commercial bank, of this city.

SHORTENED THE RECORD TWENTY-THREE HOURS.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—B. D. Blakeslee, a Chicago cycling club member, completed his long journey across the continent from New York at midnight last night, and cut twenty-three hours off the record. He made fully 600 miles further than Martin Duxbury, of Providence, R. I., who pedaled the distance in forty-eight days and eighteen hours last summer, and created what was then the record by a large margin. He left New York at 5 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 1.

MURDERED BY ROBBERS.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—Albert Neville, a carpenter, was murdered early this morning by two masked robbers. The police have no clue to the murderers.

ABOUT BELLS.

There is scarcely anything with which we are more familiar than bells, and yet they are a product of the Christian era, the first authentic mention of bells of any size being about 400 A. D. It is true that in Exodus xxviii, 32, bells are spoken of, but they were probably only small tinkling ornaments attached to the high priest's robe. Layard, in his explorations of the ruins of Nineveh, found some objects which he believed to be small bronze bells. Church bells were introduced into France about 550 A. D., and imported from Italy to England about 680. In the eleventh century a bell weighing 2600 pounds was looked upon as a monster, and it was not until the sixteenth century that the Amboise bell at Rouen, France, was cast, weighing 36,000 pounds. The great bells of the world are: The great bell of Moscow (cast in 1733, but left in the earth for 103 years), height 19 feet 3 inches, circumference 60 feet 9 inches, thickness 2 feet, weight 440,000 pounds; the second Moscow bell (largest in use in the world), 256,000 pounds; the Pekin (China) bell, 106,000 pounds; the Nanking bell, 44,000; the Vienna bell, 34,000; the Notre Dame (Paris) bell, 34,000; the Cologne cathedral bell, 50,000. The name is derived from the Anglo-Saxon, bellan, to resound, and is closely akin to peal. The first peal or chime of bells in England was the gift of Pope Calixtus III to King's college, Cambridge, in 1456. To ring all the changes possible on a chime of twelve bells, at two strokes to the second, would take ninety-one years. The history of the world has been rung in and out by bells; its great victories have been thus celebrated, its great massacres have been begun to the sound of bells, and its insurrections that toppled thrones have been ushered in by bells. In fact today the world's life and work are attuned to the sound of bells. We have the dinner bell, the school bell, the factory bell, the door bell. We go to our long homes to the funeral bell. We start on our journeys to the sound of the locomotive bell. "Look out for the engine when the bell rings" is familiar to us, and if we attend to the signal, and always be sure that our railroad agent gives us a ticket via the Burlington route when we start for Chicago, St. Louis or any of the great cities, our journey will be safe and pleasant. SILVER

Ex-Congressman Bryan's Argument for Free Coinage Saturday Evening.

An Eloquent and Convincing Presentation of the Great Financial Question.

Congressman Towne Complimented and the People Urged to Support Him.

Saturday night to a large and appreciative audience at the Lyceum ex-Congressman Bryan amply demonstrated his right to the title of silver-tongued and for over two hours held his auditors spell bound with magnificent bursts of eloquence. Probably no more convincing arguments in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 have ever been heard by Duluthians.

In the absence of President Gilbert, of the Gold and Silver club, E. C. Gridley presided and introduced the speaker of the evening with a few well chosen words on the importance of the theme.

Ex-Congressman Bryan was greeted with a burst of applause as he commenced to speak and his speech was punctuated frequently by marks of the approval of the great audience.

"A few years ago," said the speaker, "I should have thought impossible what I am here tonight to do. I am come to assist a Republican congressman in a great fight for the right and if I can say one word or advance one argument which will strengthen Congressman Towne in his advocacy of silver at 16 to 1 I have not come in vain.

ADVOCATING RESTORATION.

"In advocating the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1 we are advocating the restoration of a policy which existed in the United States from 1792 down to 1873. There never was a law passed from the beginning of our government down to the act of demonetization of 1873 which discriminated against either gold or silver. During all that time gold and silver were treated exactly alike. They were admitted to the mint on equal terms, and, when coined, were made a full legal tender for all debts public and private. No party in the United States ever adopted a national platform which declared in favor of a gold standard or advocated a discrimination against silver, and yet those who advocate the coinage of gold and silver on equal terms are now denounced as cranks and lunatics, and the free silver sentiment is called a disease and a craze. The Republican platform of 1892 explicitly declared for bimetallism, but, as has been said, some of those who were elected upon it repudiated it by their votes in congress. The last Democratic national platform contained these words: We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to the coinage of both gold and silver without the discrimination against either metal or charge for mintage.

"When we demand the free coinage of silver we simply carry out the declaration of the platform, which says that there will be no charge for mintage. When we declare in favor of unlimited coinage of silver, we simply carry out the declaration of the platform which insists that coinage shall be without discrimination against either metal, because we now have an unlimited coinage of gold. The qualifying words used in the last Democratic national platform cannot be construed to destroy the demand for free and unlimited coinage. When our opponents tell us that we are disturbing the harmony of the party we answer that they are the ones who are disturbing the harmony of the party, because in advocating the gold standard they are advocating that which the Democratic party has never favored. I am reminded of an incident recently described in a newspaper. The mother said: 'Johnny, stop pulling that cat's tail,' and Johnny replied: 'I'm not pulling the cat's tail; I am just holding the tail, the cat is doing the pulling.' We are holding to a principle, and the gold standard Democrats are doing the pulling.

WEARY OF SOUND MONEY.

"We are in favor of the free coinage of both gold and silver because the coining of money is a function of government and there is as much reason why money for all the people should be coined at the expense of all the people as there is that the other work of government should be paid for by general taxation. There is another reason for the free or gratuitous coinage of both gold and silver. The only idea of sound money that most of the gold standard advocates have is that the money should be made of a material which is worth as much in the form of bullion as in the form of coin, that is, that sound money should not lose any value by melting. This definition of sound money betrays the absolute ignorance of the money question. According to that definition a silver dollar in Mexico is just as sound a money as a gold coin in England. In England gold is the standard and the pound sterling is defined by law to be a certain weight of gold of a certain fineness, and since the holder of that amount of gold can always convert it into money at the mint price there can be no difference between the bullion value and the coinage value of gold. Since the pound only purports to be worth a certain amount of gold bullion there never can be any material fluctuation. The same is true of silver in Mexico, because there the country has a silver standard, and the Mexican dollar is defined as a certain weight of silver of a certain fineness, and the holder of that amount of silver can convert it into a dollar at any time. Therefore there can never be any material difference between the bullion value and the coinage value of the Mexican dollar.

"According to the definition given by the advocates of sound money silver in Mexico is a sound currency. The only way, however, in which the bullion value and the coinage value can be made the same is to give free and unlimited coinage to the metals. If a charge is made for coinage that charge will create a difference between the bullion and coinage values. In other words, if the government should charge 5 cents for converting 25 and 8-10ths grains of standard gold into a dollar, then the market value of that weight of gold could never be more than 95 cents, because the holder of the bullion would never pay 5 cents to have it converted into a dollar if he could sell the bullion for more than 95 cents. Free coinage is, therefore, necessary in order to have a money which will not suffer in value from melting. We are in favor of the unlimited coinage of gold and must treat them exactly alike in order to have bimetallism. Some have advocated the free coinage of the American product only, but this is objectionable for several reasons. In the first place to advocate the free coinage of American silver only is to give color to the argument that the silver question is of importance only to the mining states, whereas the silver question is as broad as humanity. The state of Minnesota is interested in the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver, not because it produces either, but because it uses both, and needs all the gold and all the silver available for coinage.

THE EFFECT ON BULLION.

"The limitation placed upon the amount of silver to be coined is of no effect unless it excludes some silver from the mint; that is, if the amount to be coined is great enough to take all that comes then the limitation is of no importance. If, on the other hand, the limitation excludes any silver from the mint, it leaves a certain amount of bullion upon the market which must seek a purchaser and the value of that surplus bullion is used to measure the value of the silver in circulation as money. The present silver dollar is spoken of as a fifty cent dollar, not because the dollar is worth less than 100 cents, but because the same amount of silver in the form of bullion is only worth a little more than half of the coinage value of the dollar. So long as there is any surplus silver upon the market, the price of silver bullion will fluctuate, but whenever our mints are open to the free and unlimited coinage of silver as they are now open to the free and unlimited coinage of gold, then silver will have a fixed value. The fact that the holder of silver bullion can at all times convert 412½ grains of standard silver into a dollar will enable him to demand that amount for his silver bullion from any person who desires to use it for any purpose.

"We are in favor of the ratio of 16 to 1 because that is the ratio at which our gold and silver coins circulate and has been the ratio since 1834. The silver of France is circulating at a ratio of 15½ to 1, and most of the silver in circulation in other countries is circulating at a ratio still more favorable to silver than ours. The phrase 16 to 1 simply means that a silver dollar weighs sixteen times as much as a gold dollar, or in other words, that one ounce of gold is equal to sixteen ounces of silver in debt-paying power. To change the ratio is unnecessary because the apparent value of silver bullion I say 'apparent' because it is more correctly speaking the rise in the value of gold rather than the fall in value of silver—has been produced by hostile legislation. The demand for gold has been increased by legislation, and hence gold has risen; the demand for silver has been decreased by legislation and therefore it has fallen to some extent. The restoration of the old conditions would increase the demand for silver and decrease the demand for gold, and thus bring the two metals together at the mint ratio.

CAN DO IT ALONE.

"We are told that it is impossible for this nation alone to restore silver. It must be remembered that India, China, Japan and other silver standard countries are now using and will continue to use enormous quantities of silver. It must be remembered also that a large amount of silver is used every year in the arts and manufactures. It must be remembered also that the gold standard countries buy large quantities of silver every year for coinage into small denominations of token money. It will only be necessary for the United States, therefore, to take what other nations do not need, but the fact that the United States stands ready to take it all will compel those nations which do buy to buy at our mint price. With 70,000,000 of enterprising people, and a nation only partially developed, we believe that the United States is able to coin and utilize on a parity with gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, every ounce of silver presented at our mints.

"Under free coinage there will be no advantage in bringing silver to this country for coinage, except to use in this country, just as there is no advantage in bringing gold to this country except to use in this country. We cannot be injured by a flood of silver. If a foreign holder of silver brings silver into our mint and has it converted into coin, there are three uses to which he can put his silver money. He can give us his silver and go home; in that case we shall not suffer as much as he will, which is simply saying that he will not try to injure us in that way. In the second place he may desire to exchange his silver for gold, but he must first find someone who has gold, and not only that, but he must find someone with gold who is willing to exchange it for silver. No one who has gold will exchange it for silver unless the silver is equally desirable. In other words, the foreigner cannot take our gold away in exchange for his silver unless we are willing for him to do so, and if we are willing for him to do so, it is conclusive proof that we are benefited by the operation rather than injured. The last way in which he can dispose of his silver is to use it in the purchase of property in the United States, but he cannot buy any property with his silver until he finds somebody who is willing to accept silver in exchange for hs property. It will be seen, therefore, that the threatened dangers of a flood of silver are imaginary rather than real.

"The most important objection to a change in ratio is that a change of ratio made by increasing the size of the silver dollars must necessarily lessen the number of silver dollars. For instance, if a new ratio of 32 to 1 should be adopted by international agreement, it would require the recoinage of about 4,000,000,000 of silver into coins twice as heavy, which would mean a shrinkage of $2,000,000,000. Since the total volume of metallic money is established at about 8,000,000,000 a shrinkage of 2,000,000,000 would mean a shrinkage of about one-fourth of the total volume of metallic money. This shrinkage would increase the purchasing power of each dollar remaining, and thus, in effect, increase the debts of the world many billions of dollars, and decrease the value of property still more.

RATIO SHOULD REMAIN.

"We are opposed to a change in the ratio, therefore, not because we produce silver, but because we own property, owe debts, and would suffer by any legislation which would make our debts heavier and our property less valuable. It is important that we shall understand not only the effect of the gold standard, but the reason why certain people advocate a gold standard. Senator Sherman made a speech in 1869 in which he said that a contraction of the currency is a very serious thing, and added 'to every person except a capitalist out of debt or a salaried officer or annuitant, it is a period of loss, danger, lassitude of trade, fall of wages, suspension of enterprise, bankruptcy and disaster.' It will be noticed that Senator Sherman not only described the effects of a contraction of the currency upon the masses of the people but he expressly declared that the capitalist out of debt is exempt from the suffering which comes to others. Mr. Blaine made a speech in 1878 in which he said: 'The destruction of silver as money and the establishment of gold as the sole unit of value must have a ruinous effect on all forms of property except those investments which yield a fixed return in money. These would be enormously enhanced in value and would gain a disproportionate and unfair advantage over every other species of property.'

"It will be noticed that Mr. Blaine recognized the effect of a gold standard upon the masses of the people and that he also expressly declared that those who hold investments which yield a fixed return in money, in other words the capitalist out of debt, will thus obtain an advantage over other people. Mr. Carlisle in 1878 recognized this same fact when he declared that Mr. Sherman as secretary of the treasury would coin as little money as possible because his sympathies were with the 'idle holder of idle capital.' We find that the gold standard is advocated by the capitalist classes and we find also that they are the only ones who profit by it, and we must therefore conclude that they advocate it because they profit by it, and not because of their interest in the people.

"The farmer declares himself in favor of bimetallism because it is good for him, the laboring man declares himself in favor of bimetallism because it is good for him, and when the Eastern financier says that he is in favor of a gold standard because it is good for somebody other than himself, he adds hypocricy to avarice. There is no class in society which contains people so much better than other people that it is safe to trust that class with legislation for others. As a rule, when we find men who are always 'feeling' for us it is well to see to it that they are not able to 'reach' us. The silver dollar is denounced as a 50 cent dollar by those who desire to collect their debts in a 150 cent dollar or 200 cent dollar. Silver dollars will not become cheap unless they become too plentiful, and those who have suffered because dollars were too scarce will not be frightened at the prospect of their becoming more plentiful.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND GOVERNS.

"Under the bimetallic system the supply of standard money is determined by the production of gold and silver, and money cannot become too plentiful unless the supply of gold and silver increases more rapidly than the demand for money. The cost of production is not material in determining the value of gold and silver. Values depend upon supply and demand, and the cost of production is of no importance whatever, except as it has an influence upon the supply of the metals. In other words, if the cost of producing gold should fall to 1 cent per ounce, the value of gold would not fall so long as the supply of gold is not increased. The same is true of silver. Under the bimetallic system the government stands ready to coin all gold and all silver at a fixed price, and so long as the government is able to coin and use all the gold and silver produced and presented for coinage the bullion price of gold and silver will be maintained at the mint, regardless of the changes in the cost of production. Neither is the relative production of gold and silver important, because so long as the demand is great enough to take all of the gold and all of the silver presented it is immaterial whether the production of gold is five times as great as the production of silver or the production of silver is five times as great as the production of gold.

"Gold and silver are precious metals, because they are limited in production, and it is possible to furnish an unlimited demand for them by legislation, for the reason that the production of them is limited. It would be impossible to furnish an unlimited demand for wheat or oats or corn because these can be produced in unlimited abundance, but in the case of gold and silver they must be found before they can be produced. In fact, we can hardly speak of the production of gold and silver in the sense that we speak of the production of wheat or corn or manufactured products, because there is no basis upon which to calculate the cost of production. We know that a certain amount of labor employed on certain kinds of land will on an average produce a certain crop, but there is no basis upon which we can calculate the cost of producing an ounce of gold or silver. No two mines produce at the same cost, and no one mine produces at the same cost for two consecutive years. Many seek for the precious metals and few find them. Those who are lucky enough to find realize enormous profits; those who do not find simply waste their money.

MINING IS GAMBLING.

"Mining is gambling. It is like a wheel of fortune, many buy paddles, but only a few realize anything out of the investment. The Molly Gibson was a few years ago pointed to as a silver mine which produced silver at a very low cost, but now the cost of production is greater. The Comstock Lode, which formerly produced immense quantities of silver at a low cost, is now almost exhausted. Gold has recently been discovered on Cripple Creek and the Independence mine is producing gold at a low cost. Sometimes a rich deposit is found from which gold can be extracted at a cost of a few cents per ounce, but while the owner of the Independence mine is realizing a fortune more than 20,000 holes have been dug in the Cripple Creek region by prospectors who have realized nothing for the money expende. At Helena, Mont., I saw a box of gold nuggets worth probably in the aggregate $10,000. One of those nuggets contained $343 worth of gold. These nuggets were found. What was the cost of production? And yet it can be safely asserted that taking all the gold in the world and all the silver in the world more money has been spent in the production of both metals than could be realized from the gold and silver found if converted into money at the present coinage rate.

"The silver question as it now presents itself is the most important question ever submitted to the American people in time of peace. The action of our nation will influence the action of other nations. We are the greatest nation in the world today, as well as the largest producer of silver, and our example, if we desert silver and join in the demand for universal gold standard, will do much toward driving other nations from the use of silver to the use of gold. Every new demand created for gold raises the purchase power of that metal. There is no end of the gold standard policy but distress and suffering among the masses and unjust profit among the money changers and capitalistic classes."

Cod-liver oil suggests consumption, which is almost unfortunate.

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw cod-liver oil would be a burden.

KOLA KILLS ALCOHOLISM.

Darkies Use the Kola Nut to Bring Sobriety and Doctors Say It Cures Dipsomania.

A learned physician was recently asked what, in his opinion, was the effective ingredient in the so-called gold-cure for inebriates, and answered:

"The secret has been kept well, but from observation and reading I believe the Kola nut is the base of the cure." He is not alone in that opinion.

British consuls report that natives of the lands where the Kola nut grows eat the fruit when intoxicated to produce sobriety, which it invariably does in from one to two hours. They also eat it after a debauch to bring their nerves, muscles and stomachs into order and are successful in this also.

Dr. J. V. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, says, "in men who have drunk freely Kola is an efficient drug." Dr. L. E. Monnet, of Paris, writes: "Wherever tried Kola has been found a most marked remedy in cases of confirmed dipsomania, modifying the taste for intoxicants."

These things are true only when fresh, undried Kola nuts are used, and the compounders of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets guarantee that none other are employed in this famous remedy.

The proprietors absolutely guarantee infallible results from one box of Tablets. $1.00 per package (one month's treatment). See Dr. Charcot's name on package. All druggists or sent direct. Kola booklet free. Eureka Chemical and Manufacturing company, La Crosse, Wis.

GRATIFYING RESULTS.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS WITH THE NEW STOMACH REMEDY.

Not a Patent Medicine, But a Safe Cure for all Forms of Indigestion.

The results of recent investigation have established, beyond question, the great value of the new preparation for indigestion and stomach troubles; it is composed of the digestive acids, pepsin, bismuth, Golden Seal and similar stomachics, prepared in the form of 20-grain lozenges, pleasant to the taste, convenient to carry when traveling, harmless to the most delicate stomach, and probably the safest, most effectual cure yet discovered for indigestion, sour stomach, loss of appetite and flesh, nausea, sick headaches, palpitation of the heart and the many symptoms arising from imperfect digestion of food. They cure because they cause the food to be promptly and thoroughly digested before it has time to sour, ferment and poison the blood and nervous system.

Judge Frank Ives, of district court of Crookston, Minn., says: For some time I have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with seeming great benefit, with few exceptions. I have not been so free from indigestion in twenty-five years.

George W. Roosevelt, U. S. consul to Brussels, Belgium: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, safe, pleasant to take, convenient to carry, give keen appetite, perfect digestion.

W. D. Tomlin, mechanical engineer, Duluth, Minn.: One box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets has done its work, and I am again gaining flesh and strength.

O. E. Ransom, Hustonville, Ky.: I was distressed and annoyed for two years with throwing up food, often two or three times a day; had no certainty of retaining a meal if I ate one. Four boxes of the Tablets from my druggist have fully cured me. I find them pleasant to take, convenient to carry.

Rev. G. D. Brown, Mondovi, Wis.: The effect of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is simply marvelous; a quite hearty dinner of broiled beef steak causes no distress since I began their use.

Over 6000 people in the state of Michigan alone in 1894 were cured of stomach troubles by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Full-sized packages may be found at all druggists at 50 cents, or sent by mail on receipt of price from Stuart company, Marshall, Mich.

ADVERTISING ALONE

Won't sell goods. If it would there are stores in Duluth that do enough advertising to sell ten times the amount of goods they do.

We know and you know there has got to be something back of the advertisement—something in it, too, besides big words and glowing headlines; there has got to be truth in it, there has got to be belief in it—belief on your part that we will do as we say; belief, in fact, certain knowledge on our part that we can do as we say. It is a mistake to think people don't look at things pretty sharp now-a-days; they do. Their eyes are open for a chance to save a dollar. Thousands have taken advantage of our Closing Out Sale to Save a dollar—aye, dollars. There are, perchance, a few who have neglected this dollar-saving chance. This ad. is for their benefit. There are no skeptics after a trial purchase.

How often do you see things advertised and the price guaranteed the lowest on earth, when you have come to us and found the same thing at a still lower price. It happens often—happens on all sorts of things.

Happens on Dress Goods and Sheetings, happens on Underwear for men, on Underwear for ladies and children, happens on Blankets, Shirts, Pants, Overalls and hundreds of other things.

Honor bright, did you ever see $6 Underwear any better than our $3:50 or $4.50 Underwear? Any better or as good as our $2.50? Did you ever see $1 Henriettas or Serges as good as our 60c ones? Did you ever see $5 Blankets that were any better than those we are selling at $2.50?

Did you ever see a $3 Wool Pant as good as our $1.50 ones? We could mention many things there is the same saving on; space forbids.

But this cheap selling, this Dollar-Saving Sale, this retailing at wholesale prices cannot last always.

This immense wholesale stock is rapidly being closed out—unimpaired as yet in the staples, but a few more busy weeks like the past one will close out many lines. The beginning of the end comes on apace, get in with us while we are with you.

THE STORE IS OPEN MONDAY EVENING TILL 9:00 O'CLOCK.

AMUSEMENTS.

DONNELLY AND GIRARD.

Tonight Donnelly and Girard will appear at the Lyceum in their new comedy, "The Rainmakers." This will be the first appearance of these popular players in this new play and it is said to be even better than their famous "Natural Gas." The company includes Ross and Fenton, the travesty stars; the Rogers brothers, German comedians; Imro Fox, the comic conjurer; Belle Black, soubrette; Jessie Gardner, Florence Clarke, Grace Langley, Ada Mansfield and May Irwin.

PRIMROSE AND WEST.

Next Friday and Saturday evenings Primrose and West's famous minstrels will appear at the Lyceum. The company numbers seventy people, forty whites and thirty blacks. Two distinct first parts, concluding the most pronounced sensation ever introduced, are only a few of the features promised, and the promises of Primrose and West are always accepted with that degree of faith which means crowded houses everywhere. A popular priced matinee will be given on Saturday.

SAM P. JONES.

Sam P. Jones will lecture at the First Methodist church Friday evening on "Manhood and Money." Some of his sayings are as follows:

"The subject of my lecture is 'Manhood and Money.' These are two great forces in this nineteenth century. This world is a great battlefield with money on the one side and manhood on the other; the war is going on with the prospect in favor of money. It is my purpose to discuss their relations. Manhood stands for character and money for property. Money seems to have the odds in its favor. There is a great deal of money in this country. God never made but one man and one woman. Everything that wears pants is a gentleman and everything that wears dresses is a lady. We put gold above God. Noble, true, well rounded manhood is almost an impossibility. Greece centralized her whole life in literature, Rome focused her whole life in law. America centralizes her whole life in the dollar. Some of these days America will turn her toes upward under a dollar worth 58 cents. Our national and social life is on the dollar. You can not get to congress nor into social life without it. If a man wants his daughter to marry, if the fellow who wants her has money he is all right. If a man is in a hotel and pays his bill, he is all right. If an angel is there and does not pay, he is all wrong."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

A SUNDAY BLAZE.

St. James Hotel Narrowly Escaped Destruction Yesterday.

While the guests of the St. James hotel were at dinner yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the rear portion of the building and smoke began to fill the rooms. An alarm was turned in at 1:20 o'clock and by the time the department arrived the flames had made great headway. The corridors were quickly crowded with guests and frightened servants, who carried out their belongings done up in sheets and bedspreads to the amusement of a big crowd of spectators which lined the opposite sidewalk.

Soon the roof of the rear portion of the structure was ablaze and the flames began to communicate with the front part. When the department arrived a skylight was broken and the flames which had obtained a hold under the wainscoting were driven back. In the meanwhile the rear portion was being flooded with water which found its way through the ceilings and drenched the carpets and furniture. Several of the guests and waitresses who had gone back after their valuables were almost overcome by smoke and fright. They were immediately transferred to the Tremont hotel, where those whose dinner had been interrupted finished their meal.

Within a half hour all was over, but the shouting. The origin of the fire is shrouded in mystery. It started in an attic occupied only as a store room for beds and furniture and no chimneys are near. The diningroom will probably be in shape to serve meals by tomorrow, but the guests will have to be accommodated at the Tremont for a couple of days.

Manager Lawler estimates his loss from fire and water at about $2000, which is mostly on the household goods. The insurance on the furniture aggregates $3000, placed through John A. Stephenson & Co. and divided as follows: New Hampshire Fire Insurance company, $560; Lumbermen's Insurance company, of Philadelphia, $1000; Firemen's Fund of San Francisco, $500; the Trades' Insurance company, of Chicago, $500; the Scottish Union and National Insurance company, of Edinburgh, $500.

The building is owned by the Brown estate of Providence, R. I., and all loss is fully covered by insurance.

A PRIZE FAKE.

A Duluth Newspaper Correspondent is at it Again.

In the St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago and other papers of yesterday there appeared one of those false sensations which are sent out from Duluth by a newspaper correspondent who values the little pecuniary remuneration he receives much higher than his reputation and standing. Here is the article:

"With his throat cut from ear to ear, an unknown man lies dying at St. Luke's hospital, this city, and the deepest mystery surrounds the case. Who the man is or how he came by his injuries the police and the doctor who took him to the hospital refuse to state. The man, who is not over 25 years of age, a short, well built young fellow, with smooth face and blue eyes, is known at the hospital as Charles Benson, but that is simply a name he was given by the hospital people when he was brought in.

"Early last Sunday morning Benson was taken to the hospital by Dr. James McAuliffe and an unknown man, so the hospital people say, but this is denied by the doctor, who says he knows nothing of the case. The wound in the man's throat had already been dressed when he was received at the hospital, and the attendants were instructed to see that he wanted for nothing. All attempts to find out who the man is, or how he received his injuries are discouraged by the police, Dr. McAuliffe and the hospital authorities, and the man will die without being able to explain it.

"It is reported tonight that Benson is in reality a wealthy young man from one of the large cities, who came here to visit the wife of a Duluth citizen during the absence of the latter from the city. The husband returned unexpectedly, and, finding his wife and the young man together, drew a knife and attempted to kill the destroyer of his home."

For a downright and deliberate manufacture that is about as bad a specimen as one can find. In Duluth there is no mystery. The whole matter was explained in last Monday's Herald and the perpetrator of the fake knows the truth of it.

The young man's name is Charles Bentson and he is a son of Bernt Bentson, who lives on First avenue east between Fourth and Fifth streets. Week before last he returned from Pine City sick and despondent and in a moment of delirium attempted to end his own life by cutting his throat. When he came to his senses he was sorry for what he had done and was very anxious to live. Dr. McAuliffe was summoned and although he found the throat horribly cut and a high fever raging, was of the opinion that his life would be saved. He was removed to St. Luke's hospital and is now in a fair way to recover.

When he was taken to the hospital he requested Dr. McAuliffe to keep the matter quiet because he did not wish his friends to know of it. This the doctor attempted to do, but the facts came out nevertheless.

This is the whole story and the author of the fake could have secured it as easily as did The Herald. And the man who wrote it still unblushingly asserts that he never wrote a fake in his whole life.

THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

There was a regular swarm of drunks in the municipal court this morning and ten unfortunates lined up before Judge Edson for trial. Philip Sullivan, Dan McGinty, Herman Dopper, Edward Falon, David Stewart and Ed Anderson were fined $10 and costs each, and John Johnson was taxed $15 and costs. Alfred Anderson, Gust Erickson and Eric Dalberg were more fortunate and escaped with suspended sentences.

MEETINGS

D. W. Hines, North Dakota Railroad Promoter, Will Be Here Tomorrow.

Will Hold Afternoon and Evening Meetings at the City Hall.

Great Enthusiasm Exists Along the Line---Forty Miles Are Graded.

D. W. Hines, the North Dakota farmer's railroad promoter, will be here tomorrow morning to talk his railroad scheme to the business men of Duluth, and he will hold meetings at the city hall at 2 and 8 p. m. Robert McEldowney, formerly secretary of the Y. M. C. A., returned today from the proposed line of the road, and he says that Hines' eloquence has ignited a solid train of blazing enthusiasm all along the line. The farmers are right in for it, and they are both willing and anxious to aid in every possible manner.

Forty miles of the road are already graded, ready for the rails, and sixty miles more is let so that it can be had at any time it is wanted. One town has agreed to grade twenty miles and so on, and all interested are making personal efforts to complete the plan.

Where some of the people thought Hines a lunatic they now think him a genius, and where they would have ridden him on a rail they now want to ride him in carriages. They look upon him as a public benefactor and they figure that the competition secured by the new road will reduce freights fully one-half. Hines is working like a beaver and has never relaxed his efforts for a minute.

IT WILL NOT DOWN.

Steam Ferry Project Coming Up Again Tonight.

Like Banquo's ghost the steam ferry project will not down and Alderman Trevillion is going to introduce a resolution again bringing the matter up at the council meeting tonight. If it carries the intention is not to start up the steam conveyance before May 1.

The ferry is more lucky than the Lake Superior telephone ordinance which is still friendless and without prospects.

This afternoon the citizens interested are invited to meet the council at the caucus to discuss ways and means for floating the water bond issue. It is unlikely, however, that the result of the conference will affect the revised ordinance offering the bonds at 4½ per cent and it will in all probability pass its second reading tonight.

GRIDIRON AT ATLANTA.

Celebrated Washington Club to Visit the Expo.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 18.—The Gridiron club of Washington will visit Atlanta Thursday, Nov. 21, by invitation of the exposition, and arrangements have been made to fill two days with sight seeing and pleasure. President Collier today appointed a committee of arrangements, with H. H. Cabanniss, of the Atlanta Journal, as chairman; Clark Howell, of the Constitution; D. S. Day, chief of the mines department, and W. G. Cooper, chief of the department of publicity and promotion. The first day will be given to a tally-ho ride out to the exposition, a ride around the grounds, a reception at the woman's building, a reception at the mines and forestry building, fireworks and the midway. The second day will be go-as-you-please, with particular attention to the interesting features of the fair. Friday night the party will go in a body to the opera.

LIBRARY FOR ROCHESTER.

Rochester, Minn., Nov. 18.—The bequest of $5000, left by Huber Bastian for a public library building, has after much delay been formally accepted by the city council. A suitable site for the building is being looked for, and when the formalities of choosing and purchasing this site are completed, the long-wished-for structure will be begun.

STEAMER MANITOBA ASHORE.

Beach Haven, N. J., Nov. 18.—The steamer Manitoba from Rio Janeiro for New York, is ashore near this place. The Manitoba, Capt. Millington, sailed from Rio Janeiro on Oct. 27, bound for New York. She is a screw steamer of 1886 net tons register, built at West Hartleport, Ont., in 1887. Norton & Son are the agents in this city.

KIRK'S EVIDENCE

The Wife of the Chief of Police of Duluth Praises Kirk's Eos—She says it is an Admirable Article and Worthy of Every Praise.

"I have never had anything better than Kirk's Eos in my house," said Mrs. Harry Armstrong, wife of the chief of police. "The preparation is an admirable article and worthy of every praise that can be bestowed upon it. I have tried it on my silverware, and in the laundry it is unequaled."

Kirk's Eos can be had of all grocers. A large package for 5 cents.

LUMBERING.

What the Woodsmen Are Doing These Days.

The Moon-Kerr Lumber company have fifty men employed at their camps two miles from here, says the Virginian. Skidding is going on at a rapid rate. It is the intention of the company to cut about 10,000,000 feet this winter. Besides this cut a number of large contracts have been let and the company expects to do a rushing business the entire season.

At W. T. Bailey's camps everything is progressing finely. About fifty men are at present employed. Mr. Bailey expects to cut between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 this winter, and it will all be sawed here next summer.

C. A. Smith & Co. expect to cut about 20,000,000 feet during the winter. Their camps are located near Hibbing and the cut will be shipped over the Swan river road.

The planer at the Moon-Kerr company's mill is still in operation, and preparations are being made for the Northwest trade, which is quite extensive.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE.

Duluthians Have Organized a New Company.

The Universal Mutual Accident Insurance company filed articles of corporation this morning with the register of deeds. The incorporators are F. P. Foster, H. S. Lord, C. E. I. Foster, J. J. Le Tourneau, D. D. Murray, Emil Schmied, Andrew Ringsred, B. H. Hanford, C. A. Towne and E. W. Matter. The object of the incorporation is said to be for the transaction of the business of casualty, life and endowment insurance upon the assessment plan. The government of its affairs is vested in a board of directors, who have been elected as follows: C. E. I. Foster, four years; F. P. Foster, three years; H. S. Lord, two years; E. W. Matter and H. H. Hanford, one year each.

The officers are as follows: H. H. Hanford, president; C. E. I. Foster, vice president and general manager; F. P. Foster, secretary; E. W. Matter, vice president; H. S. Lord, counsel.

A Dismissal Asked.

In district court this morning Judge Morris' court was hearing the case of Gust Lundquist against the Street Railway company. Friday afternoon, when the case came up, W. W. Billson asked for a dismissal upon the pleadings and upon the plaintiff's statement to the jury on the ground that it appeared that the alleged negligence which caused Lundquist's injuries was on the part of a colaborer rather than on the part of the company. John Jenswold, Jr., finished his argument against the motion shortly before the noon adjournment, and Judge Morris took the matter under advisement.

Before Judge Moer the case of J. R. Mitchell against Ellen B. French, to recover $500 as the value of minutes alleged to have been furnished by the plaintiff to the defendant. Bert Fesler was plaintiff's attorney, and W. B. Phelps was attorney for the defendant.

Tale of a Shirt.

Mark Jester is a gentleman of appropriative propensities who has constituted himself into a sort of old clothes scavenger, and strolls through the backyards picking up cast-off garments. It was through an unfortunate mistake that Mack appeared in the municipal court this morning on a charge of petit larceny. Mrs. Caroline Christenson alleged in the complaint that Mack did carry away "one lady's shirt of the value of $1, with the intent to appropriate said shirt to the use of him, the said Jester, and to deprive the true owner of the use and benefit thereof."

Mrs. Christenson said she had washed the shirt and put it out in the clothes basket preparatory to hanging it on the line. It was here that Mack's eagle eye espied the garment. It was this espial that cost the unfortunate man $10 and costs, aggregating $18.36.

THE SECRETARY DECIDES.

Secretary Hoke Smith's decisions in four cases were received at the land office today. In the ex parte cases of S. R. Thastenson, Lars A. Raene and Ole T. Nelson, homestead claimants, the decision of the general land office sustaining the local officers in rejecting the final proofs on the ground that they were not bonafide entries, but were made for speculation is affirmed.

In the case of Alfred Rudin vs. the state of Minnesota and Joseph Burns, Ruden appealed from the rejection of his timber and stone application. The secretary sustains the rejection.

DEATH OF MRS. GIBSON.

Mrs. Jessie Gibson, wife of Andrew Gibson, of Glen Avon, died yesterday morning at 3 o'clock after an illness of about two years. She was 64 years of age and leaves besides her husband eight children, Angus, Thomas, Dr. A. J., George E. and Murdo Gibson, Mrs. John MacLeod, Mrs. A. J. Frantz and Miss Agnes Gibson. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence at Glen Avon.

ON THE VERMILION.

The Minnesota Company is Still Shipping Ore.

Tower, Minn., Nov. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steam shovel at the Minnesota is working at the large stock pile of 200,000 tons and will get out several cargoes of ore before navigation closes. The Minnesota Iron company has its own steel steamers to carry a large portion of its ore, and in consequence has not been obliged, on account of the high vessel rates, to restrict shipments so much as the independent companies.

The prevailing high prices of iron have started a movement towards acquiring undeveloped iron lands and next year will see a number of claims on the Vermillion actively prospected. The Sheridan property near Mud creek, not far from the operations of the diamond drill on the Minnesota Iron company's lands, will be thoroughly explored, it is said, as a good-sized vein of ore has already been found there. A number of properties on the Western Vermillion, in the vicinity of Pike and Sturgeon rivers, will also be developed.

A miner employed by the Minnesota was killed the other day on the ninth level of No. 5 shaft by the fall of several tons of rock on him. Deceased was an Italian and unmarried.

W. A. Hayden, a member of the Minnesota Chippewa Indian commission, is here endeavoring to untangle matters on the reservation. Several times an effort has been made to get the natives to remove to the White Earth reservation, but they have absolutely refused and threatened to make trouble if force were used to change them. A few miles from town, in one of their villages, the government has erected a neat school house and employed a teacher who lives right among them. All who attend school are given a dinner at Uncle Sam's expense each day, as the easiest way to influence an Indian is through his stomach. The attendance is large except during the berry and rice seasons. At Wake-em-up bay (so called after the chief), near the head of Lake Vermilion, the Methodists have established a mission and placed it in charge of Rev. John Clark, a full-blooded Indian. Services are held regularly every Sunday, and consist mainly of a sermon and the singing of a number of hymns, all in Chippewa. The Indians were all supposed to choose their allotments from vacant government lands before Jan. 1, but comparatively few have done so, and these have sold their rights to speculators.

JUDGES BY THE PEOPLE.

Knights of Labor May Favor Their Election.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The question of minority representation was discussed by the Knights of Labor today. At present there is no provision for minority representation, and a majority in a local or district assembly controls the entire selection of men as delegates or other business. The sentiment is for a change which will give minorities a representation, and to this end the proposition was referred back to the committee on laws for amendment, after which it will likely be adopted.

The restriction against saloon men and barkeepers was also discussed. The laws of the order are so strict that waiters who occasionally serve drinks with meals are subject to the restriction. This will be changed in favor of waiters or others who act as barkeepers only temporarily. There is no purpose to loosen the rules of the order against saloon men who are permanently in the business, but only to liberalize it in favor of persons compelled by circumstances to engage in it temporarily.

An important resolution has been read and referred to the resolutions committee demanding that members of the United States supreme court shall be elected by popular vote. The resolution meets with general favor and is likely to be acted upon affirmatively. The sentiment in the Knights of Labor is that the executive and judicial branches should be entirely separate and that the right of a president to appoint supreme judges gives the executive practical control of the judiciary. The feeling is said to be due to the granting of several injunctions in strike cases by the judiciary, and also to the alleged unfavorable course of the courts on laws relating to labor, as in the decision against the income tax.

A resolution favoring the recognition of the Cuban insurgents is pending.

INDIANS DEFEATED.

Appeals of New York Tribes Denied.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Judge John Davis delivered the opinion of a majority of court claims today, dismissing the petition in the case of the New York Indians who claimed from the government $2,393,600 because of the alleged loss of certain lands in Kansas. In 1831 and 1832 the United States, through treaties with the Menominee tribe in Wisconsin, set aside land in that state for those Indians of the New York tribes who should emigrate there. Some Indians went to Wisconsin and received land, but the number was relatively small. Another treaty was therefore made in 1838, which provided for a removal further west. In that treaty the government agreed to set aside land for the tribes in what has since become the state of Kansas, and to give them funds to establish themselves in their homes. Less than 400 Indians, however, were removed, and after the lapse of several years, the land was given over to white settlement.

She is a fine boat of 2051 gross tonnage, 291 feet in length, and she was built in 1891 at the Wheeler yards in West Bay City.

BIG SHIPMENTS PROMISED.

A great deal of business is being done today in grain tonnage at 5½ cents for wheat and 4½ cents for barley, and the rate may be said to be firm at that. This is to be a heavy week in grain shipments, estimates running as high as 2,500,000 bushels for the week. One vessel man alone has 1,500,000 bushels placed for shipment this week.
